The lucky ticket-holder is Steve Kish of the tiny community of Young, Sask., which has a population of 485. His ticket, number 2228 3816 with the noun-de-plume Bucky, was first out of the drum today.

This is the ninth time the jackpot has gone to Canada in 15 drawings of the sweepstake.

Imported Beef Will Cut Price Of Hamburger

OTTAWA (CP) — A beef specialist with the food prices review board says retail ground beef prices, which have been soaring recently, will continue to drop in the next few months due to decreases in the price of imported boneless beef.

John Morris said recently that beef imported from Australia and New Zealand makes up only 10 per cent of the content of ground beef but sets the retail price of ground beef to consumers.

Imported boneless beef prices, he said, have dropped to about 63 cents a pound from 72. In a month or two, he added, the price of hamburger may drop by 14 cents a pound.

Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the board, warned that a contract dispute in the packing industry might throw the predictions off kilter. A lockout of employees now in effect in Alberta could spread to other provinces.

U.S. Coal-users Want Exports Restricted

WASHINGTON (CP) — A group of private electric-power companies called Tuesday for restrictions on the export of United States coal. Canada is the second-largest customer for American coal, with Ontario Hydro a major consumer.

In full-page advertisements in prominent newspapers and magazines, the seven companies which make up the American Electric Power System (AEPS) said the energy shortage in the U.S. "leads to but one conclusion: Restrict coal exports."

Exports mean tying up "engines and hopper cars and miners who could be working for an energy-short U.S.A."

"Surely, if the Arabs could restrict the export of oil for which they had no critical national need, we shouldn't hesitate to restrict mined coal — which America needs so badly."

Dief's View Of Freeze Explained

TORONTO (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said today that wages of Canadian workers have been so adversely affected by inflation in the last eight or nine months that wages should be allowed to "catch up with prices."

Speaking to a party convention, the 78-year-old former minister said he does not disagree with Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield's proposal for a short-term price-and-income freeze.

"But after the initial 90-or 95-day period, wages should not be frozen until the gap is closed." Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He said remarks that he made in Prince Edward Island last week concerning the proposed wage freeze need no clarification. He stands by his opinion that wages should be allowed to catch up as soon as possible with the present high prices.

Queen Mother Arrives

Toronto Scottish Greets Regiment's Colonel-in-chief

TORONTO (CP) — Although earlier thunderstorms and hail dampened the airfield, red carpet and dais, aides were bright for a brief period as Queen Mother Elizabeth arrived at Toronto International Airport to start a seven-day visit to Toronto and Montreal.

The inclement weather sent the welcoming party of several hundred scurrying indoors to greet the 73-year-old Queen Mother on her ninth visit to Canada.

The skirl of bagpipes played by the Toronto Scottish and the boom of a 21-gun salute by the Toronto Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, thundered inside the cavernous hangar as Her Majesty paused for official ceremonies after an eight-hour flight aboard a Canadian Armed Forces Boeing 707.

Looking slightly tired but cheerful, the smiling Queen Mother left later for Windfields, the Toronto estate of industrialist E. P. Taylor, which will serve as her headquarters for the tour.

Today, she begins a full itinerary of public and private events culminating in her attendance at the 119th running of the Queen's Plate and a provincial government picnic Dominion Day at Queen's Park.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Canada, representing Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger who is recovering from a stroke, greeted the Queen Mother as she stepped from the aircraft.

Ontario Lt. Gov. Pauline McGibbon, federal Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner and Mrs. Faulkner, and Ontario Premier William Davis were also among the official welcoming party.

The Queen Mother stopped frequently to chat with the men clad in their fighting kilts of bodden grey. She is colonel-in-chief of the Toronto Scottish and the Black Watch Royal Highland Regiment which she will visit Thursday in Montreal.

While in Canada, Her Majesty will present new colors to her troops replacing the present design which since Canada adopted the maple leaf flag.

Dozen Die After Move From Home

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Twelve of 13 senior citizens transferred recently from rural Niagara homes for the aged to smaller facilities in another part of the region died within four months of the transfer, the regional director of homes for the aged said Tuesday.

Doug Rapely said that he cause or death is much higher than normal.

The 13 he mentioned were transferred earlier this year in Douglas Memorial Hospital in Fort Erie from Northland Manor in Port Colborne and Sunset Haven in Welland, Ont.

Mr. Rapely, speaking to Niagara region's social services committee, said he is convinced it is traumatic for elderly persons to be taken from a city atmosphere and a staff with which they are familiar.

The policy of transferring patients requiring special daily medical attention is of homes for the aged and into chronic-care hospitals has been developed under former health minister Richard Potter.

Skeleton Found by Son

Sir Peregrine Took His Drink in Study and Stayed 3 Years

LONDON (Reuter) — British police today were confronted with the mystery of a locked room containing the body of an intelligence chief who disappeared almost three years ago.

The body of Sir Peregrine Hamilton-Heaton lay unnoticed all the time in a study in his West London house.

A spokesman said police could not comment before Thursday's inquest into the death of Sir Peregrine, formerly an intelligence chief specializing in Middle East affairs. His disappearance at the age of 68 on Oct. 5, 1971, after telling his wife he was off for a morning stroll, prompted fears that he had been assassinated by foreign agents.

He found the remains of his father slumped on the end of a bed in the same dark brown suit in which he disappeared.

Some British newspapers said that near the body were found an empty bottle and a note in his wife, Ora newspaper today quoted the note as saying Sir Peregrine was unable to carry on and asking his wife "not to make much of his funeral."

Sir Peregrine's son, who had decided to look around the study after finding an old key which fitted the lock, thought at first he had found only a bundle of old clothes.

The police say that when Sir Peregrine vanished, they were assured that the house had been thoroughly searched.

The double-fronted villa was apparently split into two apartments after Sir Peregrine's disappearance, with Lady Hamilton-Heaton and her son living on the ground floor and a lodger on the second floor, where the locked study was located. One of the mysteries was why neither the lodger nor the family's three dogs detected the dead man's presence.

Sir Peregrine was reputed to have worked during the Second World War as an agent for MI5, the British intelligence service.

A wing-commander in the Royal Air Force, he was in charge of security in Palestine during the British mandate there and escaped assassination attempts.

He retired officially in 1950 from the RAF but his family was never quite sure he had given up his intelligence work.

Full-time Executive For Health

The Hastings — Prince Edward health board has appointed its first full-time administrator.

He is Clifford Cotton, 45, of Tweed, who is currently business administrator and treasurer for the Lennox and Addington County board of education at Napanee.

He will take over his position as administrator-secretary-treasurer with the counties' health authority in Belleville July 15. He succeeds Carl Bateman. Hastings County administrator to the post. Tenures of county duties resulted in Mr. Bateman's resignation earlier this year.

Mr. Cotton is a Tweed-area native. Before the centralized county school area was introduced in 1969 he was administrator for Hastings school area No. 2 which supervised education facilities in the Tweed-Marmora-Madoc district.

The health board is formed of municipal representatives and appointees from Belleville, Trenton, Hastings and Prince Edward.

It is the governing unit for Hastings—Prince Edward Health Unit which was organized seven years ago from an amalgamation of local health authorities in both counties. Mr. Bateman has been administrator for the board since its inception.

Sentence 3 In Cottage Break-ins

MADO — Three Oshawa youths who pleaded guilty to breaking into eight cottages Tuesday were given two-year suspended sentences in provincial court here.

David Alexander Bovay, 17 and David Wayne Bacon, 16, were ordered to spend their sentences at the Salvation Army's Home of Concord, Toronto. Terry Allan Aylward, 18, was placed on curfew while serving his sentence at home.

The three were charged with breaking May 22 at cottages on Stoco Lake, five miles east of Tweed. Police said goods taken, including alcoholic drinks, were valued at about $250.

Rotary Gets New Officers

PICTON — A Cherry Valley merchant, Milton Fennell, Tuesday was inducted as president of Picton Rotary Club.

Mr. Fennell succeeds retiring president Howard Mallett of Picton.

First vice - president is William Duggan and second Vice-president, William West. Secretary for new term is Clifford (Rippy) McCalpin and assistant secretary, Carman Slack. New treasurers is Arthur Lloyd and assistant treasurer is Gordon Oden.

A Serenade For 30 Years

PICTON — Picton Rotarian William (Bill) Purtelle, yesterday was saluted by fellow club members as he completed 30 years of perfect attendance.

For their veteran club member Rotarians joined in singing his favorite song — Home on the Range.

Ellis Wants Post Office At Coe Hill

COE HILL — At a Conservative rally here Tuesday, Jack Ellis spoke of the long-needed post office for this community and criticized the government for its slow response.

"A post office for Coe Hill was first discussed over two years ago," said Mr. Ellis. "In the past year the government has set up 125 new post offices — many in areas smaller than Coe Hill and that didn't need one as much as Coe Hill does."

Mr. Ellis said that a Conservative government would balance a budget — now risen by 35 per cent — so that federal spending would not exceed income.

"The Conservative price-income freeze would endeavour to hold prices down while income can catch up and pensions would be able to cope with the cost of living," he said.

Ore talk: Jack Ellis, Edward Willis, Stanley Randall

At Marmoraton:

Possible Ore Source Discussed

If the project was realized it could lengthen operations into the next decade at Marmoraton — now facing complete shutdown by 1979.

Under study is the possibility that iron ore supplied could be available to the Marmora mine's smelter from a site nearly 60 miles northeast in Anstruther township. Anstruther is on Highway 28 in Peterborough County.

A Toronto mining company believes its ore holdings in Anstruther may prove a viable supply source for Marmoraton, employing 300 and largest single industry in rural Hastings County.

Brion Bay Gold Mines holds extensive mineral acreage in Anstruther which company officials believe may have extensive development potential.

But predictions for any future working agreement between both companies are guarded at present.

Both Marmoraton and Biron Bay representatives met here Tuesday but emphasized discussions were merely preliminary and exploratory.

Precise value of Biron Bay's findings have also to be formally confirmed by detailed, on-the-spot exploration.

But engineering studies, including preliminary drilling and a magnetometer survey, give reason for optimism, said a Biron Bay spokesman.

"We're not shooting pie in the sky. We know we have something solid here," said company president Edward Wills after Tuesday's sounding-out discussions here.

With him at the meeting with Marmoraton representatives was Stanley Randall, Biron Bay director and former Ontario trade and development minister.

Discussion of a feasible supply tie-in with Marmoraton was facilitated by personal friendship between Mr. Randall and Jack Ellis, now seeking re-election as Conservative MP for Hastings. The mine is in his riding and since Marmoraton announced it was closing in 1979 the company has been seeking solutions

Cleric Departs Congregations

West Lake Petition

Ban Sought on Commercial Fishing

By MARGARET HAVLOCK
Staff Reporter

WEST LAKE — The West Lake and District Environmental Association, a newly organized group, has circulated a petition seeking a ban on commercial fishing in West Lake.

The petition says that since the tourist industry adjacent to West Lake and Lake Ontario depends on a sufficient stock of game fish, it claims that commercial fishing jeopardizes tourism through depletion of fish.

Everett Stuart, association vice-president and operator of a Wellington sports shop and resort, says that hundreds of names have been signed already.

The group also has started a second petition to eliminate a winter dam across the channel between West Lake and Lake Ontario. Fishermen build the dam to raise the lake level. When the dam is opened the waterflow clears the channel for the coming season. This affords access to fishing boats and pleasure craft.

Resort operators say the dam raises the winter lake level to a point where ice damages lakefront property.

Mr. Stuart has discussed the conflict of tourism and commercial fishing with James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox and has suggested the provincial government buy out at least one fishermen who is offering his equipment for sale.

Mr. Taylor has said West Lake fishing industry must be regenerated to assist both tourism and commercial fishing.

The MPP has been quoted as saying the government might consider buying out some fishermen who feel they are in a losing job and wish to sell.

"But there is no question of putting them out of business," he says.

Mr. Taylor has suggested that ways must be found to permit the sport fisherman and the commercial fisherman to co-exist.

Plan New Hatchery Near Bath

GLENORA — Tenders will be called this fall for a fish hatchery at Bath near the Lennox Ontario Hydro generating station as Jerry Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Taylor said construction should begin in early next year. Fish production, hopefully, will start in the fall of 1976.

In its initial phase, spokesmen from Ontario fish and lake trout will be produced, says Jack Christie, chief biologist, Glenora Fisheries Research Station.

Splake have been selectively bred by the natural resources ministry as Maple and, says Mr. Christie, the future for the species appears good.

A six generation program has been utilized to create the early sexual maturity characteristics of the brook trout with the deep water cannibalistic of the lake trout.

"I recognize it has a couple of wild generations further before we can be sure, but I do not think nature is going to reject this fish," he comments.

Mr. Christie adds that experimental white fish hatcheries also will be initiated and attempts will be made to bring the white fish up to a reasonable size economically.

Special Days At Museum

PICTON — The Prince Edward County Museum will feature a special crafts presentation this weekend as part of a series of summer projects.

Mr. Surcombe weaving study, Cherry Valley, will give a demonstration of her work at the museum on Sunday and Monday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. each days. Articles woven by the couple will be on sale.

New Clerk For Court

PICTON — Donald Beaumont, operator of a Picton service Station, has been appointed clerk of Prince Edward County small claims court.

Mr. Beaumont succeeds Earl Marvin of Wellington, clerk for the past 23 years. He submitted his resignation this spring. Mr. Marvin will continue as county constable, a position he has held since 1936. From 1940 to 1960 he served as Wellington village chief constable.

Students' Initiative

Recently they were selling draw tickets at the Quinte Mall to help defray the cost of a month-long visit to China — surely a journey as exciting and educational as any undertaken by Canadian students in recent times. The young people should be home soon and we may be sure they will have much to talk about. Meanwhile the school continues to make the tin presently in the lobby of the Quinte Mall cinemas there is a remarkable piece of art work by five of the Brighton area students.

In keeping with the school's current interest in the Orient, the exhibit is a giant dragon. In line too with public interest in a cleaner environment and economizing on materials, the dragon is a product of recycled waste. Each scale was cut from a soft drink can.

Catherine Pickles designed the mammoth — it will adorn a wall of the school — and she was assisted by Donna Bain, Maxine Mulse, Gary Ringrose, and Tanya Thompson.

It took them three months to complete and it is not only a striking piece of art but an example too of youthful initiative and perseverance.

Shades Of Expo

An impressive display of Chinese art reportedly is the main attraction of the current offspring of the late, magnificent, and now but a nostalgic memory, Expo 67.

Nobody expects a repeat of the great event of seven years ago, but apart from the fact some exhibits were not ready on time for the opening, the latest offering of Man and His World is apparently not without interest.

Again, a new generation of young people will have put on that many more years and may be expected to find in the old Expo site much to stimulate them.

The Montreal Gazette's Dave Thomas says that while interest locally may have palled somewhat, none of the U.S. visitors interviewed regretted coming. "We're really impressed", he quoted a Chicago couple as saying.

The Montreal woman, sensing some of the old magic, said it was still something for Canada to be proud of.

Artistry and craftwork dominate the exhibition and of course it is still a great place for people watchers.

Where economics are concerned, last year's deficit was about $2 million, but against that it generated $125 million in business for Montreal hotels, restaurants and stores.

It's True!

Inflation really is a world-wide problem. And in one corner of the world women are threatening counter measures.

Above the din Chief Minister Michael Somare shouted: "We are trying our best to do something about the prices." But after two hours of being harangued from all sides he abandoned his attempts to placate the women and left.

In a petition presented to Mr. Somare earlier by Parliamentarian Josephine Abaijah makes interesting reading. Some of it is in line with a suggestion we made in recent days that a part of any $1,000 from each Cabinet minister's earnings would never be missed.

The women's demands included a 50 percent cut in parliamentary salaries, an immediate price freeze and wage increases for low and medium income earners.

Out Of Control

Inflation is all the more curious a malady when we consider it continues to defy all efforts of man to control it. After all it is an inanimate thing and yet man the innovator, supposedly able to control his own destiny, seems to be impotent in face of the ever-upward surge of costs. As an example, in the U.S. a typical family of four now requires $12,000 annually to maintain a moderate standard of living — or nearly $1,200 more than the previous year. Inflation controls people rather than the other way around.

Canada Still 'Pressing' For Compensation For NATO Base

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — "Has Canada ever received compensation from France in respect of our having lucked out of Marville?" Edmonton Conservative MP Steve Paproski asked External Affairs Minister Sharp in the Commons just a few days before Parliament fell.

You will perhaps remember Marville was Canada's NATO base that existed in France, out of which former French President Charles de Gaulle booted the Canadians when he deserted the Western Alliance.

"No," Mr. Sharp replied, "we have not received compensation but we are still pressing for payment."

Now how about that, "still pressing"?

It was back in 1967 that the French evicted the Marville base summarily and took over the base without so much as a "sorry chaps," much less any payment.

The bases had cost Canadian taxpayers, well, neither External Affairs nor National Defence will admit how much.

And the External Affairs Department bought what had to be out-size compensation, asking for only $5.3 million.

But it might as well have asked for the moon.

That was seven years ago.

And Mitchell Sharp is "still pressing."

That "pressing" is a continuous, if non-productive occupation for Mr. Sharp.

For years he has been "pressing" India to stick by New Delhi's agreement with Ottawa not to use Canadian nuclear equipment and supplies — much of it, like hundreds of millions of dollars in free aid, provided as a gift — to fabricate bombs.

And suddenly, whoomp, the agreement is blown into a mushroom cloud.

But this sort of performance — failure as a way of diplomatic life — from the very outset has been habitual with Mitchell Sharp.

Only a few months ago, the French Navy boarded and seized the Canadian registered Greenpeace which her skipper, David McTaggart, had sailed as a symbol of world protest, into that area of the South Pacific where France was testing nuclear devices.

Then the External Affairs Minister issued seeking retroactive compensation of $13,000 from France to recoup the fee for bringing back the Greenpeace to Canada[?] and Sharp is "pressing."

"No," replied Mitchell Sharp, "but we are seeking compensation from France for damage done to Mr. McTaggart's eye" in the assault of the French marines on the Greenpeace and her skipper.

Then under further questioning from Vancouver Conservative MP William Clark, the External Affairs Minister described the process of "pressing."

"I have made presentations to the Government of France on a number of occasions," he said, "and the Department has made direct representations to the government of France through the embassy here."

What has Mitchell Sharp done to deserve such a devastating descent?

"I'm not what he's done," says Steve Paproski, "it's what he hasn't."

Well, just recently, — no need to go back far to establish what he calls "Sharp's astonishing record for consistent failure" — there are half a dozen benchmarks of Sharp ineptitude.

— Item: The failure to secure "satisfaction," even so much as an admission of responsibility — from the Zambian government for the killing of eight young Ontario girls.

— Item: The failure, despite the fact that it "just begging to fight," to persuade the Americans to change their policy of tankering Alaskan oil through the dangerously confined Dixon Entrance instead of Juan de Fuca — and threatening massive pollution of the lower British Columbian coast — enrote to the Cherry Point refinery just below the border.

— Item: The failure to persuade the Persian Gulf oil sheiks to rescind Canada from that wicked-long boycott against the United States.

— Item: The failure to rout out disloyal elements from the External Affairs Department responsible for leaking to Marxist sympathizers dispatches from the Canadian ambassador to Chile.

— Item: The failure to stand up against leftist elements pressuring the department into subverting basic anti-guerilla revolutionaries in South Africa.

— Item: The failure to protect our West Coast or our Atlantic Provinces fisheries from foreign raiders.

That's a quick and recent sampling," says Steve Paproski. "If Mitchell Sharp's name were success, a litany of diplomatic disaster."

Company Is Fined

Sewing-Machine Gimmick Bombs

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

A "contest" with 30,000 second prizes!

This particular sales-promotion gimmick resulted in a $5,000 fine for a Toronto-based sewing-machine company the other day.

It's hard to believe, but there are people who actually think they have won something when they receive a "prize" of a pseudo-cheque in such contests. The sewing-machine company apparently took in 30,000 "entry forms" in a draw held at the Canadian National Exhibition. And 30,000 entrants received congratulations from the company on their good luck in picking second.

The meaning was false," said the trial judge. "No draw took place for a second prize. The statement was untrue, deceptive and misleading."

Prizes consisted of a phonograph record, worth pennies, and a certificate that resembled a cheque and purported to be good for a $79 discount on the purchase of a sewing machine.

The ministry of consumer and commercial relations, Ontario, offers this warning about pseudo-cheques and certificates:

"You will get the "discount" offered, but the selling price on the article you buy will be increased to more than cover the discount.

Sometimes consumers don't even have to go through the charade of receiving a certificate to receive one of these worthless "gifts":

A retailer offered a free radio with the purchase of a dishwasher for $388. The appliance regularly sold for $259. The free gift radio therefore cost $48, or several times its actual value.

—A salesman offers free installation of aluminum siding, explaining that your house will "advertise" the product to your neighbors. Don't believe it—you pay for the installation through the inflated price of the aluminum siding.

Then there are those carpet stores—don't free bid don't cheap ("three rooms for $149"). The gimmick here could be the unstated limit on the size of the three rooms, for example, or a catch in some fine print.

Beware, too, of the telephone solicitor offering "free" magazine subscriptions—free, that is, except for a weekly "delivery charge" that happens to equal the regular subscription rates.

Another major source of free gifts is the record clubs. You are invited to send away for up to six free records (and in time you may actually receive them) but you must commit yourself to buying a certain number of other records each year at the so-called regular price. Many record clubs sell them at discounts of 20 per cent or more.

If there is one such thing as a truly free item in the high-pressure, hard-sell world of merchandising?

Yes, indeed. If any company sends you unsolicited goods through the mail, you are under no obligation to pay for them or return them, and you may either ignore their attempts to collect or, if you're sure you're not somebody didn't order them on your behalf).

As a general rule, consumers should be wary of any "free" offers, and shop around carefully before signing or spending. Thousands of dollars are lost every year in the pursuit of phony gifts and discounts.

Bible Digest

"And they clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head." Mark 15:17

His cross and His care continues to reach out touching the untouchables and reaching the unreachables. He is still not ashamed to take His place among the poor sinners whether they are a part of the "down and out" or "up and out". He said, "for this cause came I into the world."

Problem Of Drinking Driver

Peterborough Examiner

Ontario's Deputy Attorney-General Frank Callaghan has run out of patience with bad drivers.

The losses — in lives, property, wages and time — caused each year by drivers who have consumed at least some alcohol are absolutely staggering," he said.

"We've got to figure out a way to stop this carnage."

Mr. Callaghan even has some ideas on how the carnage might be stopped.

Persistently lawless or inept drivers should be removed from the highways indefinitely — or perhaps even for life, he said.

Serious offenders, such as those who repeatedly drink and drive, might also learn more safe driving if they had their vehicles impounded during the course of their licence suspensions. When they had to pay storage costs on their impounded cars, they might be even more susceptible to good advice.

Mr. Callaghan suggested the penalties could also be tailored to people who drive while they are disqualified. At present, the maximum penalty is two years.

The deputy attorney-general's hackles were raised recently by a copy of a driving record held by a man involved in an accident suit. Despite 11 licence suspensions in four years, the motorist still held a valid driver's licence. Mr. Callaghan was not happy.

Language Legislation in Quebec

Quebec A Prepos: A public opinion poll on the language question in Quebec brings the verdict of the silent majority to the current debate.

The results reinforce positions taken by opponents of the Quebec government's proposed language legislation, especially French-speaking nationalists.

Six times as many people are opposed to a law barring French-speaking parents from sending their children to English-language schools as are in favor of such a law. Even among those who give their preferred Quebec political party as the Parti Quebecois, a majority are opposed.

On the whole, the poll results show that a small majority of Quebecers believe the French language is not endangered in their province

Gaggle of Hate-mongers Enters Election Fray

TORONTO (CP) — The federal election has brought out a mixed gaggle of hate-mongers, racists and revolutionaries.

The fringe candidates include those advocating violent revolution, and several marching under fascist banners.

Two Fascists are spouting white-power blockey in Toronto and are supported by the Western Guard—an ultra-right group that dresses its members in Nazi-style armbands and dark shirts.

One of the candidates—Martin Weiche-vaining in Toronto Trinity, was formerly associated with the so-called Canadian Nazis. He greets his followers with the arm-raised fascist salute.

On the other side of the political spectrum, Communist banners are far more numerous and their financial backing appears more plentiful.

Communists are running as Marxist-Leninists, the older Communist Party of Canada, and the Revolutionary Marxist Group and they spend almost as much time sniping at each other as they do sniping at the capitalist system.

John Bizzell, Toronto organizer for the Communist party, said his group's funds come primarily from collections in unions and factories.

His party recently celebrated its 50th anniversary, and he says the Marxist-Leninists are a Johnny-come-lately organization which is attempting to confuse the stand of the Communist party and take its place.

The Marxist-Leninists—also known to some as Maoists—form the most militant group.

Keith Corbill, a Marxist-Leninist running in Toronto York South, said his party considers the election as only a side avenue in its struggle.

"We can do a lot in Parliament by showing capitalist veneer for what it is," he said.

Mr. Corbill said the Communist party is content to seek peaceful means to make Canada Communist.

The spokesman for the Marxist-Leninists dismissed the older Communist party as being tied to the Moscow party line, but admitted his party has close ideological ties with Peking.

The Communist Party of Canada has 79 candidates across the country, while the rival Marxist-Leninists have 104.

A separate Communist organization—the revolutionary Marxists—is referred to by the other groups as a splinter Trotskyite faction.

But all Communist groups claim to be fighting for the worker and most are conducting door-to-door campaigns.

Communist candidates have complained of violent harassment by the right-wing factions, notably the Western Guard, and have asked for police protection.

For the white-power candidates, Mr. Welchs preaches a supremacist line reminiscent of Idi Amin in Uganda. Amin ousted all Asians from his African country and the Toronto Trinity candidate would send all blacks "back to Africa."

He is guarded by a motorcycle escort during some of his travels, and supporters greet each other with the fascist salute coupled with the exclamation "white power!"

Rena Cunningham

She Manages Husband's Campaign

It's the first time Rena Cunningham has been a campaign manager but as the wife of the candidate for the Liberals in Prince Edward Hastings, she's hardly a stranger to politics.

"I've been involved in my husband's campaigns before (George Cunningham, elected to township office several times). He sought federal election twice before) but never quite to this extent."

Mrs. Cunningham, who has been married to her husband for 23 years, says she has an advantage as campaign manager: "I know his approach. I know his stand on issues, I know his outlook."

Helping out with the campaign, too, are almost all of the pair's six children: Jane who is in her third year at Guelph University; Richard, 20, the only one away from home (he's with the militia in Cairo); Ellen, 17, right hand man according to her mother, who enters grade 13 this fall; Jeffrey, 14 a BCI student active in 4-H; Glenn, grade five student who's still in school this week and the pride and joy of the whole family Caleb, just three.

Mrs. Cunningham, a teacher before her marriage, still supply teaches as well as being active in the Ameliasburgh community where they farm.

The Women's Institute and 4-H work are just two of her interests outside her home. On the farm, Mrs. Cunningham is in charge of the annual vegetable garden.

Organizational work at the Treston campaign headquarters is taking so much of her time that Rena Cunningham is finding little time for the usual wifely travelling with the candidate.

She hopes as election date draws near she'll be able to do less administrative work and make more appearances with her husband.

Meanwhile she sees part of her function as supportive.

"Nobody knows what a candidate and his family gives through unless they're involved. When you get right down to it, it's your husband people are talking about. It all comes home."

Form New Group

EDMONTON (CP) — Teachers here have formed the Association of Classroom Teachers, an organization which they say will provide "strictly a teachers' voice" in negotiations. A spokesman for the new body said she believes it will be more effective than the Alberta Teachers' Association, which includes administrators.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Redner, Carrying Place, are happy to announce the engagement of Doreen Allison Hawley to David Blaine Redcliffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Redcliffe, Trenton, Ontario. The wedding will take place in the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church on Saturday, July 6 at 3 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Lynch are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter Sandra Mary to John S. Chambers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Chambers of Ottawa, Ontario. The marriage will take place July 6 at 11 a.m. at St. John The Apostle Church, Baseline Road, Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Durkin, Read Ont., are very pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Ann Marie to Clarence Le Berge, Tweed, Ont., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Prosper Le Berge. The marriage will take place on July 20 at 3:30 p.m. at St. Josephs Church Belleville Ont.

* * *

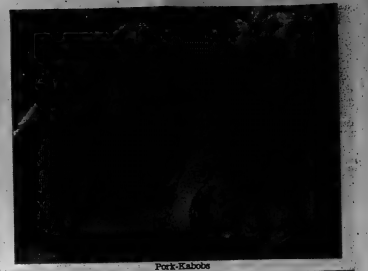
Mr. and Mrs. Leonard V. Holland of Belleville are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Lenna Christine to Ronald William Hannah, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hannah of Belleville. The marriage will take place on July 27, at 3 p.m. at St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville.

Pork a Flavor Value

For those of you who are worried about waistlines, it's nice to know weight loss organizations have included pork as a nutritious, lean, good tasting meat.

Pork is an easy food to digest and in combination with other foods it makes a nice light food for hot summer days.

The recipes listed are high in nutritional value and contain both protein and vitamins. Fruit gives pork a delightful flavour and these recipes contain such fruits as pineapples, apples, oranges and grapefruits.



Perkabobs

3-4 lbs. pork loin, boned
½ teaspoon salt
freshly-ground pepper
6 whole coriander seeds
6 whole cumin seeds
½ cup thinly sliced onion
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons soya sauce
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate (optional)
dash of ground ginger
½ cup lemon or lime juice

Remove excess fat from pork and cut meat into 1-inch cubes. Arrange them in a shallow pan. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over meat. Let it stand several hours or overnight in refrigerator. Drain off marinade into saucepan. Dip skewers in salad oil then thread pork cubes on them, allowing 4 per serving with ¼-inch between cubes so they will cook on all sides. Brush meat with marinade. Place on grill about 3 inches above heat. Grill 5 minutes, turn, brush with marinade and grill another 5 minutes. Continue to turn, baste and grill until meat is well browned on all sides and cooked to total time. Serve with fruit kabobs. These perkabobs serve 6.

Fruit Kabobs

On small metal or dampened bamboo skewers, alternately thread fruits such as canned pineapple chunks, maraschino cherries, canned apricot halves, canned mandarin orange segments and marshmallows. Brush with melted butter or a mixture of ¼ cup honey and tablespoon lemon juice heated together. Broil kabobs on grill just a minute or two, turning often. Keep separate from the meat.

Pork-Kabobs

Tenderloin Fruit Casserole

1 pound pork tenderloin
2 beaten eggs
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons cooking oil

Pre-heat your deep fryer at 375°. Cut the pork into ½-inch cubes and dip the pieces into the beaten eggs, then roll them in the cornstarch. Deep fry the meat for about 10 minutes and drain.

Melt the cooking oil in a large skillet and add the pork along with:

2 tablespoons of white vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup chicken stock
1 tablespoon of catsup
1 cup canned pineapple pieces
1 chopped green pepper
¼ cup thinly sliced carrots
1 teaspoon salt
a grating of fresh black pepper.

Mix and cook over high heat for about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Serve at once. This casserole makes 6 servings.

Pork Grapefruit Salad

2 cans (15 oz. size) grapefruit sections
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
one and three-quarter cups cold water
2 cubes chicken bouillon
½ tsp. onion salt
1 cup diced cooked pork
½ cup sliced celery
pimento stripes; salad greens

Drain grapefruit, reserving juice. Measure cold water into saucepan. Sprinkle gelatin on water. Add bouillon cubes and salt. Stir over moderate heat until gelatin and bouillon cubes are dissolved.

Add juice from grapefruit and chill mixture until consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Fold in grapefruit, pork, and celery.

Turn into 8 individual moulds or one 1½ quart mould. Chill until set.

Holiday Tips For Travelling Kids

The end of June signals the beginning of summer family travel — and whether the trip is to the cottage or across the country, it can be a source of shared enjoyment or frantic squabbling, depending on parental preparation.

Once out on the blasting highway, it's hard to think of something to keep the kids from whining "When will we be there?" unless you've got a few well-organized tricks up your sleeves. . .

Here are a few suggestions to keep the family amused, gleaned from other clever parents and library games books, with special credit to Lucille E. Hein's book, "Entertaining Your Child".

Most of these ideas can be altered to suit your child's, your journey, and number and ages of the children.

THINGS TO BRING

If it's a long trip each child should have his or her own shoe bag or box of playtime supplies, plus an empty one in which to collect souvenirs. A bag with a draw-string is best, as it can be hung on a door handle or around the back of the seat head rests.

Each child should have a small pillow to make snoozing more comfortable.

Older children should be given their own map on which to trace the route. The parents leaning over the front seat, and encourage a lively interest in geography and fun-ny place names.

Well-seasoned travellers keep a supply of treats in the glove compartment to serve as prizes for games or rewards for pleasant behavior. Peppermints are good; avoid salty things like chips which promote thirst and its resulting travel difficulties!

Long trips to new places should be accompanied by a 35-cent scrapbook for each child in which to paste or tape daily souvenirs — placemats, postcards, pressed flowers, sugar cube wrappers — each evening in the tent or motel room.

Take coloring books, crayons, blunt scissors and an enormous supply of paper in a large envelope to be kept in the front seat.

Indispensible for families without complete-type memories is a songbook with words to the "old favorites" that are part of the travelling fun.

For the very young, take along favorite dolls, pipe-cleaners, play-dough, or other creative material to occupy their hands.

Puzzles and playing cards may be entertaining — but if your kids fight over "Snap" at home, it's a sure thing they'll end up bickering even more in the confines of the car. Leave them at home. (The cards, not the kids!)

THINGS TO DO

Change places in the car often. Nothing is so maddening to a child as not being allowed "to sit in front", stated about 15 minutes is

Dear Ann Landers: You printed a column recently from a lady lawyer who compared the morals of lawyers with those of physicians. It was not a theoretical argument. No doctor had ever made a pass at her, she said, but the lawyer who handled her divorce propositioned her and she agreed — right in his office on his leather couch.

You were skeptical, but that lady was right. At least 35 per cent of the divorced women I know have had pitches from their lawyers — ranging from overt offers to bear rapt.

You said poor judgment, weak character, etc. don't belong exclusively to any one profession. I agree. But how about a test? Why don't you ask your readers to drop a postcard with one word on it. The question: From which profession did you receive the most brazen pitch? But let's not limit it to doctors and lawyers. The third category should be clergymen. I'll bet lawyers will come in first, clergymen second, and doctors a poor third.—Cynical Fan A Mason

Dear Cynic: You have a weird circle of acquaintances, but I accept your challenge.

Please, women — no jokes with details. Just a one-word postcard banning the profession. I'll report the results after we do a 10-day count.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to respond to the widows and divorcees who say they can't find a decent man. I'm sure the complaining females have met several very nice men, but the man stayed around long for the following reasons. As a man who has been divorced for six years and taken out dozens of women, I speak from experience. Here is what I've been running into:

Every divorced girl tells me what a rat her ex-husband was. When he drank, gambled, ignored her, slept around and lied like a Persian rug. Not one of my friends' wives has ever admitted that her husband was a good guy. Not one has ever said, "I'm sorry we got divorced. I made a mistake and I'd like to try again." Not one has ever said, "I'm willing to change my ways." Not one has ever said, "I'm willing to go to counseling with you."

Ann Landers

Which Profession 'Wins'?

The divorced women I took out never mentioned the possibility that perhaps there was something wrong with HER.

The widow is worse. She wants to have you over to dine her right away. Then out comes the family album with the endless monologue on how wonderful her "Albert" was. What a beautiful guy he was — without a single human flaw. A saint. So generous, so considerate. And of course there are photographs of him all over the place.

Who cares? The answer is NOBODY! I can't understand these divorcees and widows get this through their heads, the better their chances will be for a second marriage.—Also Single And Looking

Dear Single: You've had a run of bum luck, mister. There are plenty of divorcees and widows around who don't fit your description. I hope you find one soon.

Dear Ann Landers: I did a dumb thing and I could kick myself. For my 15th birthday, like a Persian rug. Not one of my grandmother gave me $15 so I would go to a doctor and have my ears pierced. Well, last year, my girl friend pierced her own ears with ice cubes and a needle, and she offered to do mine for nothing. I let her, and she put the holes too far down. .

If I don't wear earrings, will the holes close up? Can I then have my ears pierced by a real doctor? Or will those first holes always be there?—Dumb Doris

Dear Doris: A doctor can make the new holes imitate reality. The old ones will close in time.

Successful Living

Foster Parents Need Patience

By DORIS CLARK

We don't have the orphans we used to have. But the child who worries the social workers now is the one who is caught in the squeeze — the pressures of a big city living found in a foster home, for a while, at least.

For example: Mary, who was eight, began stealing other people's money about the same time her mother began stealing other women's husbands. Her father's reaction to unfaithfulness was alcohol; Mary's reaction to the behavior of both parents was rebellion against all restraint.

Requirement in a substitute home? Parents to act as a unit; a satisfactory share of the limelight; an environment where rules and regulations are observed; and love.

The foster parent who can help Mary will need patience and understanding of a superior kind, working with a trained children's worker to bring Mary back onto the rails.

Dear Doris: I'm worried about the puffiness under my eyes, and dark circles. I wear glasses. My work requires a good deal of reading of unreadable handwriting. . .

I don't like to complain about this to my various bosses, since they always have troubles to be in a rush and prosper to be in a rush and they are not likely to be around when I am typing out their work anyway. . .

Desk Work

Dear Desk Work: This is something I can't diagnose — but a specialist could. Puffiness or dark circles appear under the eyes from so many causes, physical or mental.

Reading between the lines, I'd guess there is plenty of tension in that job of yours, besides the bad handwriting. And this could in turn cause a nervous reaction related to the puffiness.

For eye help you need the right food, too: vitamins A and B 2 (found in green and yellow vegetables, fish liver oils, fish, meat, liver, wheat germ, cheese, eggs, milk and yeast).

If you are peering down at your desk most of the time, you should be taka — even a brief change in focus rests the eyes.

None of these routines should substitute for a visit to your doctor.

Confidential to Just Joe: I'd say you have done your level best to make your marriage work in spite of your wife's bad temper. Didn't you suspect incompatibility when you had all those arguments before marriage?

You are asking me to write to your wife in your behalf — but this would be wrong, and not helpful. Your wife has not given your marriage a fair trial, but I doubt if she will be able to change. Better roll with the punches; you may have to plan a future without her.

Preliminaries Said Essential

The newly elected president of the Crown Attorney Association for Ontario yesterday told the province's leading policemen that he disagreed with a recent suggestion by the Law Reform Commission that a preliminary hearing be done away with.

Speaking in a panel discussion at the opening session of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police annual conference in the Four Seasons Hotel, Blake Ward, the Crown Attorney for Peel County told the conference's 175 delegates that he was very much against" any suggestion to do away with preliminary hearings and felt that "any such recommendation should be discouraged."

"I am very much against that suggestion myself, "Mr. Ward told the policemen. "I feel that we have to consolidate the evidence of a witness by a preliminary hearing."

Mr. Ward noted that in cases where a witness was out of the country, was too ill to attend a trial or had died, his evidence could be read into a trial, provided that it had been taken at a preliminary hearing in the presence of the accused person.

Mr. Ward made his remarks in answer to a question from Chief Albert Keesman, the head of the Regional Police.

Chief Keesman had asked Mr. Ward what the Crown Attorney Association was doing to prevent defence counsel from turning preliminary hearings into examinations of discovery" and says, thereby, making them costly.

Standard Uniform Urged by Police

NE of Ontario's policemen may soon be dressed in new forms of a standard style, color and cloth. If the provincial solicitor general's department decides to act upon recommendations made by the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police.

Police Chief C. R. Johnston, president of the association, said yesterday that standardization of police uniforms and vehicles throughout Ontario is necessary to distinguish policemen from security guards, investigators, and "even truck drivers."

The Police Chiefs' Association has recommended that the government introduce a uniform badge of office, a design for all of the province's police forces, with a distinguishing red hat band for identification.

Chief Johnston also said he would like to see all police cars in the province painted white, with blue stripes.

"We feel the yellow cruiser is easily recognized, especially in traffic detail," Chief Johnston said.

Last week the uniform rank standardization committee of the association met in Toronto with members of the Ontario Police Commission, the Police Association of Ontario and authorities.

The police commission is preparing a brief based on the group's discussions to present to the attorney general's office.

Chief Johnston said that he is "hopeful and optimistic" that the recommendations made by the association will be implemented by the government.

Coming Up Roses

Mrs. Art Marshall adjusts a display of Sirbertian Iris in the Belleville Garden Club's display at Quinte Mall last weekend. The display focused attention of the Rose and African Violet show to be held at Centennial Secondary School this weekend, June 29 and 30. The show is the largest flower display between Toronto and Montreal.

Advance Polls This Weekend

Advance voting in the July 8 election will be registered at three polling stations in Belleville this coming weekend.

The polls will be held Saturday and Monday at both city fire halls and Quess Victoria public school on Bell St. Times of voting on both days will be 9 a.m. -9 p.m.

Because of summer vacations, advance polls in this campaign have an added significance, say electoral officials.

Eligibility requirements are flexible. Anyone having any reason to believe they will be unable to vote election day may cast their ballots during the two-day advance poll.

Long-range Plan

Centralized Garbage Disposal Recommended

Formation of a single countywide agency for the administration and operation of a waste management system is proposed for Hastings, Belleville and Trenton.

This is the recommendation of Gore and Storrie Ltd., Toronto consulting engineers, who Tuesday evening presented the report of their $33,000 waste management study to a joint meeting of county councillors and representatives from Belleville and Trenton.

Formation of the county waste management organization is recommended as soon as possible, along with the obtaining of options on new disposal site properties within two years, setting up of a rural collection system and the phasing out of existing small disposal sites throughout the county.

Report recommendations include the consolidation of present waste disposal sites from the current 29 sites, and the establishment of a three-container system for the collection of rural refuse in conjunction with a pre-paid rural collection system to replace the phased out small disposal sites.

Sanitary land fill would continue to be the most economical method of disposal but incineration would be designed as to be able to accommodate recycling of materials when and if some time in the future.

The county-wide waste management study was authorized by the then county municipalities at the county of Hastings, Belleville and Trenton, on the recommendation of a joint committee set up to consider study and means of effectively dealing with the mounting problem of waste disposal.

Committee chairman, Alderman Ken Smith of Belleville, said Tuesday night's meeting that while there was no action taken on the report yet, there would be in the future unless property were made now.

This time the disposal site now being used by Belleville and Trenton and a few other municipalities is due to be full of only seven years.

Discussion on the study recommendations was necessary to avoid future problems.

"This is only the first step," Alderman Smith said, referring to the waste management study and the report received.

She urged councillors to talk to the number one man, local level.

"We do have to have some kind of an organized program," she said.

Lt.Mr. Storrie, supervisor of the Ministry of the Environment branch, received councillors that all that had been done to date is to place a document before them as an encouragement.

If councils did not like the target areas for recommended disposal sites, they could be moved 40 miles if they so wished.

"But it would cost you more money," he warned.

He said the study was merely a step toward a final solution on the waste disposal problem. Sanitary land fill was not necessarily the final answer. Re-use, reclamation and recondition were goals to be strived for if economically feasible.

The study report and recommendations were presented by Ron A. G. Simmons, Gore and Storrie engineer, who said the conclusion reached by the consultants was that the most efficient and economical method of handling, transporting, treating and disposing of solid waste from the county area was with centralization of facilities and operation on an area basis.

The 20-year study period, the total of household, commercial and industrial refuse generated in the county area is expected to grow from the present 89,000 tons a year to 220,000 tons by 1993.

Future development of the study proposal is expected to remain mainly concentrated in the Northern part of the county and no drastic changes in garbage collection practices are expected in the next 20 years.

Disposal of solid wastes on land was considered to be the most economical for some time in the future. Mr. Simmons said total refuse generated in the county falls well below the economic limits of central reclamation and other disposal methods.

Centralization of disposal sites would see the gradual phasing out of the present 29 and the use of only four major areas — one in the north of the county in the Bancroft area, two in the Belleville, Trenton area and a third in the Moira area.

Mr. Simmons estimated that 900 acres would be required to handle county garbage for the 20-year period.

But apportionment of costs for the study is likely to result in some serious discussions at the local government level.

Estimated capital costs for the recommended waste disposal centres, phasing out and landscaping of disposal sites, and establishment of new sites is estimated at more than $5 million, with annual costs, not including urban collection, ranging from $304,000 in 1975 to $1,184 by 1993.

For the second 10-year period ending in 1993 operational costs would remain fairly static with a figure of $1,158,250 given for 1984 and just over $1 million for 1993.

On a household basis, total system costs for all Hastings for the 20-year period would range from $34 in 1975 to $53 in 1993.

In Belleville and Trenton total system costs per household would range from $46 in 1975 to $71 in 1993.

It was these household cost figures that brought a comment from one northern reeve.

"For some properties, that would be more than the total present tax bill," he objected.

Municipal Reshuffle Decision Is Deferred

Hastings county council will make a decision as to the composition of a committee to join with Belleville and Trenton in a committee for a provincial study on municipal reform for the area.

The study, already requested by Belleville and Trenton, would take in the two urban municipalities and all of the county.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen, chairman of the county council municipal reform committee told council Tuesday morning that her committee had met with Belleville and Trenton representatives on the issue by possible study.

Under guidelines for the proposed study, there could be recommendations either to add or delete an administrative area. Both Belleville and Trenton were said co-operative in the idea of splitting or county boundaries is suggested.

Personality, Reeve Allen said, she did not feel a study on reorganization was needed at this time although both Belleville and Trenton representatives felt there was some urgency.

In other business, council went along with the request of Belleville General Hospital for permission to purchase more than 20 residences in the Dufferin-Pinnacle area east of the hospital.

Letter from hospital executive director Phillip Rickard said the properties were needed for future hospital expansion. The properties would be purchased as they came on the market with funds from council estate and at no cost to the county.

Council concurred in a Pittsburgh township resolution asking a change in provincial legislation to allow municipalities to charge up to two per cent on wealth possible for non-payment of taxes.

Hastings Reeve Reeve Grareen Bell moved concurrence, stating that in his township the office had developed the idea of sometimes had difficulty in locating non-resident taxpayers who moved without leaving a forwarding address. Increased possibility for non-payment of taxes might encourage more co-operation, he said.

Council concurred in a resolution from the Industrial Engineering Association asking provincial legislation to remove the restrictions and commercial businesses to seek approval of design and specification of equipment from the Ministry of the Environment before allowed a water would be affected by the resultant discharge from such equipment.

All Right Here

Last week French-speaking Belleville resident quarrelled with the local returning officer over election forms, saying more than five per cent of Hastings riding is French speaking.

Andre Mercier, responsible for the inquiry, said: "I don't have proof as the law runs if I could have gotten the correct information locally"

But Hastings Returning Officer couldn't give me the right information as I went right to the top," to Mr Hamel's office, he said.

Mr. Hamel, drawing information from the 1971 census (the most recent) said there are about 5,000 officially French-speaking people in the area to make necessary bilingual forms

"I am satisfied, said Mr. Mercier, "that I was in the law and I am willing to abide by it".

Regional Government Not Automatic: Rollins

The proposed study dealing with possible municipal restructuring in Hastings County, Hastings area would not lead to regional government.

That was the assurance given Tuesday to Hastings county councillors and MPP Charles M. Rollins who said that nothing was being forced on municipalities.

As an example, Mr. Rollins cited the case or Prince Edward County where a one-tier government has been proposed but was now being delayed in the face of local objection.

At the same time, the Hastings riding member said he was opposed to regional government and suggested that restructuring was a form of regional government.

The member had no comment on the proposed study for municipal restructuring. Belleville and Trenton officials asking for such a study, but the county will not make a final decision until its September meeting.

Speaking on another matter, Mr. Rollins said he did not agree with a government department statement that there were no regional differences in the design of 39 Highway on which there appeared in the news that the normal number of accidents.

Referring to the recent traffic death of a young school girl north of Coleville, near the 2th concession of Thurlow, Mr. Rollins claimed decleration lines were required at this point.

County Official Plan Passed

After nearly three years in preparation and an expenditure of $160,000, the official plan for Hastings county has seen final approval at county level.

The plan still requires approval from the provincial minister and from the Ontario Municipal Board.

Third reading for the official plan by-law at the county's meeting of the county body but not before objection were raised in regards for delay until the next council session.

The recommendation adopted the planning committee report and giving approval in principle to the by-law was carried by a 21-14 margin with two absentees.

The by-law was given two readings at an earlier session with third reading being delayed to allow possible amendments.

Since that time 134 changes have been approved by the planning board and even with final passing still more amendments are expected.

Rawdon Reeve Ray Shortt led off the discussion stating he would not approve third reading because amendments had not been discussed at the local council level.

Elzevir Reeve Kenneth Smith wanted third reading deferred until a later meeting, declaring that by the end of the year there would be three or three zoning changes.

By giving third reading now there would be "tying a knot with our tongue that we cannot untie with our fingers," he said.

But Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen, urging third reading, declared there must be a starting point somewhere.

Pittsburgh that the official plan had been under preparation for nearly three years, Reeve Allen said "we have got to have some place to stand, we have vacillated long enough."

Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey also urged third reading.

He said he Quinte Planning Area, of which his township was a member, like the county still didn't have an official plan and because of this all commercial development in Thurlow had been frozen.

Developers and property owners are shouting about restrictions and regulations they would be trying to change changes to the plan, he said.

Bancroft Reeve Jack Hatch also urged final bylaw approval. He said there must be a starting point somewhere. But as conditions change there would be further amendments and a complete review should be made every five years.

One of the last-minute amendments to the official plan dealt with a requirement for 10-foot privacy buffer strips between individual sites at camping grounds.

Depot-reeve French felt the regulations was unnecessary there were no buffer strips were such as called for by campers.

At camping ground operator he said areas where there were no litter strips were always first filled.

County planner Nail Carney said the regulation calling for a strip of natural vegetation was an attempt on the part of the planning board to give a measure of privacy for campers.

The ruling, he said, would be effective only on new sites.

Ellis Campaign Keeps Moving

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter-Summertime. The living is easier.

It's not the most strategic time of year to stir voter interest in such a sector, Jack Ellis admits.

"There's a real voter apathy. So there won't even the voters aren't interested. But it's summer — and there are outdoor things to do, holidaying.

But the campaigning goes on. The buff Mercedes rolls down the highway, away from a picnic, beach or an official opening, then on to a convention, then a meeting.

Anywhere people have congregated long enough to meet.

By now — in the campaign's 4th week — the scheduling has become a familiar routine for the 44-year-old Conservative seeking re-election to his second term as MP for Hastings.

But mobility has been an integral part of the Ellis campaign, what seems a compulsive personality trait that gives the impression of resting easier when things are moving.

A licensed pilot for 12 years, he takes to the air when necessary, to maintain schedules. When the pressing need for constituency offices, he put his on wheels, making up the balance between official funds and the cost of running a campertrailer to ease access to rural committee.

In the first year as MP he estimates he ran up 50,000 miles on the Mercedes. Before this campaign ends he expects to clock up maybe 8,000 miles on the road.

The mileage gets him where he wants to go — meeting people at "lunches, picnics, rallies, after that mainstreeting and canvassing door-to-door."

His campaign emphasis therefore is traditional: "getting to meet as many people as reasonably."

There's something else that is traditional: Hastings' Tory political loyalty.

Mr. Ellis says he's confident of the re-election but not primarily because of the tradition. "I think I've done a decent job for the last 18 months and I think most people appreciate it."

But, he was the first campaigner to notice a shift that bears watching — the increase in voters with no apparent party loyalty.

This centres mainly in the Belleville section of the riding, which also is the largest voting bloc in Hastings. Like the election, at last count, the city registered 18,000 voters, almost compared to 19,800 for the rest of the constituency.

In 1972 Mr. Ellis won Belleville by about 2,000 votes over his Liberal opponent, the rural area by almost 3,000. But the population of the citycentred sector has been declining in recent years, with a turnover of residents.

"The county would probably have voted Tory by 60 per cent percentage points," estimates Mr. Ellis. "But in the city it's a whole different story."

"This is one reason why he will concentrate much effort in Belleville in the last two weeks of the campaign.

Although only his second federal election in less than two years, he's a political veteran. He moved from rural-urban affairs on Sidney township council in 1957-58 to provincial politics in 1959. By 1964 he was mayor of Belleville, tasting defeat at the end of 1967 — an overdose that took him temporarily out of politics, until he won the federal Hastings nomination two years ago.

Now, while it may be a poor time for an election, there's the fact it was precipitated by the government being brought down by opposition parties. Has he had any indication voters feel the campaign is more politics than issues?

No, says Mr. Ellis. In fact, he hasn't "bumped into anyone who has said to me sincerely they don't think we should have had an election now."

At no other time has the distinction between parties and their policies been more clearly defined, he feels. For this reason this campaign probably turns more on party lines than in the past.

"And I think there'll be a greater number of people crossing party lines (in vote)."

The issue; inflation, and his own party's economic and controls program. "I'd be less than honest if I said a number of people don't understand it. But more and more people are coming to appreciate the need for controls .. worried about costs ..."

Campaign costs don't escape inflation either. The expenses of modern election-seeking bolsters him.

"No, I'm not a wealthy man. It does concern me," says the campaigner.

To get elected every candidate must add some of his own money to funds raised by the party. In 1972 the Ellis campaign registered costs of almost $13,000.

This time the campaign machine is being programmed to trim costs, recycling signs and material left from 1972, by carefully planning advertising. To lower publicity expenses he's set up a committee in his basement to develop photographs.

Yet "I wouldn't like the idea of a campaign every two years. I'd hope this time we'd have a majority government and conservative rule. And of course — that would last four years."

But campaigning still is a welcome choice, seen as an open penalty to renew and make friendships as at the Bancroft Rotary picnic last week behind.

People tend "frequently to become names you write or talk to. But when you see them like this afternoon at the picnic, it makes it worthwhile."

Twenty-five Years After

Trudeau Returns to Scene Of His Earlier Struggle

ASBESTOS, Que. (CP) — Twenty-five years ago lawyer Pierre Trudeau and journalist Gerard Pelletier came to this town 100 miles east of Montreal to help their friend Jean Marchand, then a union leader, champion the cause of striking asbestos workers.

Tuesday, on the sixth anniversary of his first election as prime minister, Mr. Trudeau returned to the mines and announced them much improved. Both Mr. Pelletier and Mr. Marchand now are members of his cabinet.

"I see lots of progress," he told reporters after climbing down from a massive ore truck. "The air was much less clear then: you had to wear goggles everywhere, and masks."

The scene now gave him a "good feeling: I see harmony amongst workers and management."

Throughout his tour of five ridings Tuesday, he asked that the Liberal team be returned to continue its programs begun in the last 18 months.

"Two thousand years ago Jesus Christ hoped for justice in society. He didn't succeed immediately."

Similarly, the Liberal government needed more time.

On the steps of the town hall in Asbestos, he compared his fights for better conditions 25 years ago with election campaigns.

During the four-month mine strike in 1949, unions were not trying to gain "power without reason." Similarly, the incumbent government was not seeking power for power's sake, but rather to be able to do for the country the type of things accomplished by the unions.

THE ROMANTIC REBELLION — Kenneth Clark.

In his new book — and incidentally his new television series — Kenneth Clark concentrates on the development of art, particularly painting — from the second half of the eighteenth century to the middle of the nineteenth. He bring into focus the creativity of many outstanding artists — David, Goya, Fuseli, Blake, Ingres, Turner, Constable De, Degas and Rodin. They were all successful and influential and all part of the European movement. The author, with his humanity and gift of communicating it a style that is lucid and stimulating, has written a fascinating book.

OUT IN THE MIDDAY SUN — Kate Caffey.

A fresh and original account of the fall of Singapore. It is a tragic and appalling story of the campaign and is based principally upon accounts by people who were there. The whole gruesome story is made clear-able by the author's vivid re-creation of the physical and domestic details of the camps and his account of the ways in which the men kept each other going and how some survived.

This second volume of Mrs. Lindberg's diaries and letters covers the years of her early married life. This shy and introspective girl was thrown into the world of action of her famous husband. He taught her to fly and to be his radio operator in flights they made together. Their happiness seemed complete when the terrible kidnapping of their young son took place. Her diary registers the impact of the tragedy on her life: her character and marriage. It shows her efforts to overcome bitterness and despair.

TAKE MY WIFE, PLEASE! — Henny Youngman.

A very funny and totally candid autobiography by popular American comedian Henny Youngman. He has played the London Palladium and Las Vegas clubs. He was born in London and raised in Brooklyn and entered show business at an early age. Frank Sinatra once told him, half jokingly, half seriously — "Quite right" replied Henny, "but you can't be rich without it."

OJIBWA SUMMER — R. A. King and J. Huston.

Mr. Houston spent much of his early life on Lake Simcoe and knew the Ojibwa well. His text tells of the ancient, exciting history of the people of the Three Fires, of the Ojibwa he remembers, and of their way of life. There are many beautiful photographs and an excellent commentary to provide a record of the passage from one way of life to another, from an old culture to a new, unknown future.

THE PERSIAN BOY — Mary Renault.

In "The Persian Boy", Mary Renault tells of the extraordinary but true story of the last seven years in the life of Alexander the Great. In those few years, before his death at thirty-two, Alexander carried his conquests to the end of the known world. His story is narrated by Bagoas, a young Persian of celebrated beauty, who, adrift from the court of the dead Persian King Darius, is taken into Alexander's household and becomes his favorite attendant.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League — Eastern Ontario Club

Gasoline availability in the United States continues to improve with motorists paying slightly more for fuel, but finding it increasingly obtainable as service stations except their hours because of greater supplies.

On a nationwide U.S. oasis, regular gasoline now averages 67.2 cents for the equivalent of an imperial gallon with premium gasoline at 70.2. These prices compare favorably with the approximate averages in Southern Ontario of 69.6 and 73.6 respectively.

The states of Colorado, Utah, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming enjoy the best over-all conditions as 85 per cent of the local stations contacted in an American Automobile Association survey are pumping gasoline after 6 p.m. weekdays. On Saturdays, 89 per cent of the stations are open after 6 p.m. and 76 per cent are open Sundays.

The New England states of Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont have the most limited availability in the United States, but even there conditions are improving as 46 per cent of the stations are open after 6 p.m. weekdays, 38 per cent are pumping after 6 p.m. Saturdays and 33 per cent are open Sundays.

As further evidence of the sustained improvement, the number of states using any type of odd-even distribution system has been reduced to six, with Canadians exempted in every one and purchase restrictions in effect only in Maryland where the limit is eight gallons. Local county and city odd-even plans have been discontinued throughout the United States.

Keeping the 15 million Ontario Motor League, Canadian Automobile Association and American Automobile Association members the best informed of travellers (and least likely to lose their way while driving) is a mammoth operation.

A major role in supplying them with up-to-date travel information is played by A.A.A.'s Cartographic Office at Falls Church, Virginia. In 1973, the Cartographic Office prepared more than 38 million regional, provincial and state maps and one and half million downtown and city area maps. Also last year, it printed more than 166 million strip maps. The latter are computer aids and are assembled for easy bending into the exclusive "trip-tik", a detailed routing service tailored to a member's individual preferences.

In addition to the above mentioned publications, the department updates more than 600 separate maps and charts that appear in tour books, camping guides, and other travel publications.

The cartographic office is constantly expanding to provide better and more up-to-date maps for members. Recently it acquired a 36-inch camera for film production, a type composition system to produce all type matter for maps, and facilities for storing five million characters on magnetic tape cassettes, making it possible to re-use them indefinitely for printing map indexes and place names.

All CAA and AAA offices co-operate with the cartographic force in reporting on regional, provincial and state route data in their areas. CAA-AA field reporters also help and so do three cartographic office employees who log 150,-000 miles annually in Canada, U.S.A. and Mexico gathering road information.

Late-breaking news of highway changes are sent to all club offices daily in a series of highway and construction bulletins. Thus the information the travelling members gets is the most recent available.

The strip maps now comprise 814 separate units which are printed around the clock in three eight-hour shifts, six days a week. From December through June, seven computer printing schedule prevails as 68 individual large sheet maps are produced in advance of the heavy spring-summer travel season.

Food Firms Attacked

Unionists Applaud Lewis Plea for More Farm Pay

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis charged Tuesday night that farmers have not been making a fair income even though consumers are paying more for food.

About 1,500 supporters at a public rally heard Mr. Lewis say he felt most Canadians would gladly pay more for food if they felt farmers were getting a fair income.

Mr. Lewis said the operations of large food companies are a mystery to the public and high dealings are "not in the economic or consolidated financial reports."

"I believe that every company in Canada should have to file its own report on people will know what it is doing."

He said farmers are being "ripped off" in the same way that as consumers are "every time they go to the supermarket."

Mr. Lewis said that in December, 1973 — hog producers were receiving 49 cents a pound for their meat. Wholesalers sold pork for sausage at 86 cents. The retail prices for sausage was 77 cents a pound.

In June, he added, the producer got 36.5 cents while the wholesaler sold at 79 cents and supermarkets sold sausage at 95 cents a pound.

"This is madness! Why should the hog farmer get 13 cents less a pound while the wholesale price goes up four cents and the retail price soars by 18 cents."

Mr. Lewis said a national prices control board, advocated by the NDP, would investigate alleged price gauging.

Labor Urged to Pay More Attention to Poor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — NDP Leader David Lewis urged organized labor Tuesday to pay more attention to the needs of unemployed workers and the Aged.

Powerful unions have been largely successful in protecting their members from rising living costs, he told about 1,500 persons, most of them possibly members of the United Auto Workers, at a rally in this strongly pro-union city.

But inflation hit everyone; the unemployed workers, those in small unions, and above all, the aged. He reminded the unionists that historically one of the major purposes of labor is to fight for equality among all people.

Mr. Lewis said in his speech Canadians fight strongly for their own rights but not enough for others. He appealed to unionists "to join with us in the fight."

There is no excuse for poverty, slums and insecurity in Canada, he said, but there is a reason: multinational corporations accustomed to investing the country like a colony.

Jury Backs OHC Call For Change

TORONTO (CP) — A coroner's jury investigating the deaths of six persons in a suburban North York townhouse fire May 12, recommended Tuesday that immediate action be taken on two Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC) resolutions.

Following the deaths of Vicki Guerin, 25, her four children, aged nine years to one month, and John McMaster, 24, OHC called for the installation of two combustion detectors and one cool-floor balconies in all back-to-back units in the townhouse development.

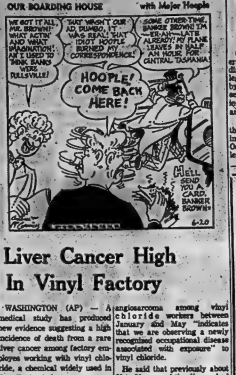
The jury recommended that OHC expedite plans to install detectors in all its remaining back-to-back, single-exit units, about 1,000 in number. It said that balconies should be installed where they are found necessary.

OHC's plans to establish a safety inspection branch to carry out a preventative safety program and inspect all property for hazardous conditions regularly also should be expedited, the jury said.

It further recommended government action to initiate the development of low combustible materials for use in household furnishings.

Provincial fire investigator Dennis Merkley told the inquest Monday the fire probably was caused by careless smoking.

Smugglers Shot



TEHERAN, Iran (AP) — Six narcotic smugglers were executed Tuesday by firing squad raising the toll of criminals executed in 30 months to 226. Under Iranian law, anyone caught with more than 10 grams of heroin or other hard drugs or one kilogram of opium will be executed by firing squad after a military trial. The law has reduced drug traffic by about two-thirds, said Interpol agents.

Thomson III

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Newspaper publisher Lord Thomson of Fleet, 80, was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital Tuesday with a mild respiratory ailment.

He was admitted to hospital Sunday by his physician, Dr. Campbell MacArthur. Lord Thomson, who lives in London, is on summer vacation in Canada.

Liver Cancer High In Vinyl Factory

WASHINGTON (AP) — A medical study has produced new evidence suggesting a high incidence of death from a rare liver cancer among factory employes working with vinyl chloride, a chemical widely used in the plastics industry.

A study of vinyl chloride workers at the Goodyear plant in Niagara Falls, N.Y., found that three of 24 deaths were due to the cancer, angiosarcoma.

Dr. Irving Selikoff, director of the Environmental Laboratory of the Mount Sinai School of Medicine, cited the study. He emphasized the critical importance of reducing the amount of vinyl chloride workers are exposed to, to a "no detectable level" as proposed by the U.S. labor department.

Dr. Selikoff was among witnesses Tuesday at a hearing on the labor department's proposed standards for regulating vinyl chloride use.

Representatives of the Society of the Plastics Industry Inc., a trade association, argued that the medical evidence is too inconclusive to require banning worker exposure to the chemical. They said the proposed regulations were impossible to achieve and would force the industry to close scores of plants with the loss of as many as 2.2 million jobs.

Dr. Marcus Key, director of the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, said the finding of 19 cases of angiosarcoma among vinyl chloride workers between January and May "indicates that we are observing a newly recognized occupational disease associated with exposure" to vinyl chloride.

He said that previously about 20 to 30 cases of the disease had been reported annually in the United States.

Vinyl chloride, a gas, is used to produce polyvinyl chloride, a white sugary-like material used in the manufacture of most plastics.

Woman Loses Appeal Over Job Questions

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal Court of Canada Tuesday dismissed a public servant's allegations that questions asked by a Public Service Commission selection board were political in nature and did not properly assess her abilities.

Ruth Colterman, a clerk in the citizenship branch of the immigration department at Oshawa had applied for a clerk level-five position which would have made her the citizenship officer, for the Oshawa office.

When she failed to get the job, she questioned the relevancy of questions put to her by the selection board, saying they were of a political nature. She took her complaints to a public service commission appeal board but her appeal was dismissed.

Questions included: What changes, if any, would you like to see in the Citizenship Act, or do you agree with it in its present form?

After the court dismissed the appeal, Maurice Wright, counsel for Mrs. Colterman said he was disappointed that no reasons for the decision were given.

He said he will discuss with his client whether an application will be made to the Supreme Court of Canada to have to appeal the Federal Court's decision.

Otonabee Airways Ltd. To Run Air Service

OTTAWA (CP) — Otonabee Airways Ltd. has been authorized to set up a scheduled air service linking Montreal and the Ontario centres of Peterborough, Kingston and Toronto Island Airport, the Canadian transport commission confirmed Tuesday.

However, the commission said it refused to allow Otonabee to serve Ottawa in this scheduled service.

Otonabee still be the first air carrier to attempt to operate from Toronto Island Airport in years. It is being considered by the Ontario government as a future site for short-takeoff-and-landing (STOL) aircraft operations.

Minimum Pay

Most of Canada's 10 provinces have lower minimum wages than the federal minimum of $2.50 an hour. Only British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Ontario and the two territories are above the federal minimum. British Columbia and the Northwest Territories have minimum wages of $2.50 an hour. The lowest minimum wage is in Prince Edward Island — $1.75 an hour. Ontario's minimum wage of $2.25 an hour comes into effect October 1 and Saskatchewan's on July 2. The federal minimum wage applies to workers in industries that fall under federal jurisdiction. Peace River District Producing Much Honey

BEAVERLODGE, Alta. (CP) — The stack of 45-gallon drums beside Jack Schmidt's farm gate about two miles west of this Peace River town recently is not his hedge against rising fuel costs.

The yellow drums are used to ship honey from about 11 million bees. They populate 1,200 hives scattered within a 30-mile radius on the farm, 300 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Mr. Smith is only one of hundreds of beekeepers in the district, one of the largest honey-producing areas in Canada.

He started in 1934 with five hives. The Peace River region has expanded from an estimated 1,000 colonies in 1939 to 70,000 in 1972 and still is growing. It produces 20 to 25 per cent of Canada's honey.

"Our area produces about 12 million pounds a year of Alberta's total production of about 37 million pounds," said Mr. Smith, a vice-president of the Honey Council of Canada. "Canada's total production is about 83 million pounds."

At the same time, production costs climbed as the cost of imported bees from the United States tripled to $18 for a package of 10,000 this year.

Mr. Smith cites research as one problem.

"In previous years when honey production was nowhere near the amount it is today, the federal government had 14 or 15 people engaged in research.

"As the industry expanded, particularly during the last few years, we now have been research staff, with two at the federal agriculture station in Beaverlodge and two at Ottawa."

"There is nil federal official designated as an apiarist who can handle all the problems encountered by beekeepers.

"Our council's personnel now have to work through the federal entomology research co-ordinator but we want something, say in sugbeeing, we have to go to the agricultural engineering co-ordinator and if it's an economic problem we have to go to someone else rather than have one person handle all queries."

Mr. Smith said this division of responsibility may work well for large agriculture crops such as grain or livestock "but it sure as hell doesn't work for us."

He is not happy either with available research personnel.

"Unfortunately the research personnel in Canada have got into a situation where they figure they must publish or perish.

"So they are obsessed with the idea of going into some small, obscure area of research to make an international name for themselves and they don't complement the production in Canada."

Mr. Smith said "one indication was one researcher in Ottawa who has attended more international congresses than he has attended national organization meetings."

An opponent of marketing boards, Mr. Smith also said Western Canada gets a raw deal from Ottawa.

Last spring the national walkout by airport firemen resulted in no bees being imported by air from Mexico, where prices are lower than in California and southern United States areas.

"If that walkout had been concentrated in Montreal it would have been settled very quickly, but it started in Vancouver.

"You know, if we get pneumonia out here they treat us for a cold and down east, if they get a cold they treat you for pneumonia."

Mr. Smith, who drives his own temperature-controlled truck to California each spring to pick up a new supply of bees, thinks there will be more attempts in future to winter bees in the North.

Such wintering has not been common because of the costly procedure needed to protect the bees against the cold but the increased cost of imported packages probably will make it more attractive.

Mr. Smith said many young farmers now are starting honey production.

"There's always room for expansion, but we have to be careful we don't overexpand. Right now we're in a position where production has outpaced domestic demand and the export market is closed during the last three winters, that too has flattened out and is not that attractive to ship to any more."

Mr. Smith said beekeeping still is a family operation and he has his wife and one of two sons working with him on a full-time basis.

Won By A Head

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Bruce Bruggeman set an American record of 1:13.33 in the 1,650-yard freestyle swim at the Amateur Athletic Union's short-course national meet in Dallas. He finished with a shaved head and took four seconds off the previous record. Mike Gold he believes also would have help his speed, but adds that going bald on dates lonely hits. States and 258 from England.

Public Makes Choice

SASKATOON (CP) — Lay people are helping to choose the students who will be admitted to the University of Saskatchewan's college of medicine here next fall—an experiment which university official Dr. E. J. Clein says is an effort to have consumers participate in healing who will serve them through the medical profession.

Indian Legislature Dissolved in Uproar

BOMBAY (CP) — The functioning of the Western-type legislative system has received a rude jolt in a key Indian province.

The Indian constitution provides that a provincial legislature has a term of five years. But the legislative assembly of Gujarat province was recently dissolved by President Venkata Giri following unprecedented public pressure.

For almost two months the province, with a population of 25 million, was the scene of widespread disorders. Opposition parties, students' organizations, peasant groups and even members of the legal and medical professions joined in demanding the resignation of the Congress Party government led by Chief Minister Chimanbhai Patel.

Patel's critics argued that the assembly elected in 1972, when Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress Party scored an impressive triumph, had proved "incapable of solving pressing economic problems." They demanded the dissolution of the 149-member house and the holding of fresh elections.

The federal government clearly did not want to dissolve the provincial assembly because it was considered an unhealthy precedent.

It was argued that the dissolution of a duly elected legislature because of mob violence would strike at the root of the parliamentary system.

When the federal government appeared to stand firm in the matter, bands of opposition sympathizers went to each member of Patel's house and tried to obtain their "voluntary" resignation.

Many legislators were beaten up and signed their resignation letters under duress. With the resignations of more than half the total number of elected representatives President Giri had no alternative but to dissolve the legislature.

The Gujarat development is considered the most serious constitutional crisis since independence from British rule 27 years ago.

Indians Get Jobs At Mine

LEAF RAPIDS, Man. (CP) — Operation Tuesday, a program aimed at opening the door to native northern Manitobans to work at the Ruttan Mine and establish homes in the new Leaf Rapids townsite, is making steady progress towards its initial success level.

Officials of Sherritt Gordon Nickel Mines Ltd., owners of the mine, said the program was started two years ago with the object of having 50 men and their families settled in by June of this year.

The program was expected to achieve only about a 25-per-cent success rate, but already that has been passed and officials are hopeful they will have 59 families in Leaf Rapids this summer.

The only holdup, they said, has been a shortage of single dwelling houses.

Operation Tuesday—a Cree expression meaning "Welcome, there's room for you"—is financed by the provincial government and the company and conceived "because our previous attempts to employ Eskimo and Indian people weren't successful," said William Clarke, Sherritt Gordon's industrial relations manager.

"We found the real problem wasn't at work; but rather in the homes and community. In this case, both industry and government were concerned and Tuesday gave us the means of co-ordinating our efforts."

The program begins by helping leaders of the Indian bands and community council understand that the project is designed to help relocate the native people in a new community, at a new job and make them as comfortable as possible.

Persons interested are shown movies of the townsite and the mine and are taken to Leaf Rapids to view the area and discuss the situation with those who have already moved.

Normally a team of two field counsellors, two home visitors and a company representative—all of native descent—visit the Indian bands and communities to discuss the program.

The Tuesday participants, like all other Sherritt Gordon employees, are entitled to an $8,000 interest-free loan and Canada Manpower supplies $1,200 for transfer of the families.

Treaty Indians also are eligible for a $2,000 off-reserve housing grant. To assist the program, the provincial government has given the Manitoba Housing and Renewal Corp. a $500,000 loan for the construction of 25 homes at Leaf Rapids.

Eskimos' Life Style Is Doomed

ESKIMO POINT, N.W.T (CP) — Rev. Lionel Ducharme, an Oblate missionary who had spent more than 50 years in the North, says the traditional life style of the Eskimos is ruined and their only future is to assimilate.

"The Eskimo is finished as an Eskimo," Father Ducharme said in an interview.

A member of the Northwest Territories historical society, he said the Eskimos began losing the battle for survival 30 to 40 years ago, when they abandoned their stone house communities to begin their wandering life in search of game.

"Eskimos resent what they are losing," the 76-year-old native of Trois-Rivieres, Que., said.

"But, there is no way back. Life missionaries share the view that they have no future but to assimilate.

"I don't think they should be forced to integrate but rather should assimilate gradually. If they are rushed, there will be trouble, even a backlash."

Father Ducharme, who came to the territories in 1921, arriving at Chesterfield Inlet, said the pioneers in the transformation are the "Eskimo-white products who have been brought up close to the white community . . . they are giving leadership."

Pitchers Have Their Night

Ethier — 3 - hit Shutout

A pair of three-hit shutouts by pitchers in the Quinte Football League were the highlight of the doubleheader at the Alexian Park last night. The games were in direct contrast to Monday night's action, when 37 hits were pounded out, producing 16 runs.

In the first game of the twin bill, Augur's Men's Wear scored a run in the first inning, on the first batter of the game, with the run standing up for a 1-0 win over Barden Supplies.

The win was the fourth for the Trenton team, and along with two ties gives them 10 points and a three way tie for the fourth and final playoff berth with Devolin Motors and the Ellis Juniors.

The loss was the ninth of the season for the hapless Supplymen, who have only five points in 12 starts.

Jim Clement got the sweet into the game with a .363 batting average, one of the pleasant surprises this season for the Augur squad, opened the game with a double. He scored the winning run, being driven in by the second batter in the line-up, Steve Barden.

Although that run was the only one in the game, both teams did have opportunities to score. The winners left six runners stranded on base, the Bardon, four.

Bill Harrison took the loss, allowing seven hits. He fanned six and issued one base on balls.

In the nightcap it was Bob 'Sind' Ethier's turn to share the limelight, with his three-hit 1-0 performance over Howard and Robert Pritting to a 3-0 victory over Devolin Motors.

The win lifted the Printers over Devolin, the Juniors, and Augurs into a one point tie-hold on second place in the league, 11 points behind Rollins' Construction.

Ethier zipped third strikes past 11 Devolin Batters in recording his second win of the season against two defeats. He did not issue a free pass.

Loser Darryl Kramp gave up only four hits on the Devolin rubber, striking out five and walking four, including one intentional one to Scott Reid in the ninth frame.

The Printers added an insurance marker in the bottom of the sixth frame, on two walks and a base hit.

John Campbell worked Kramp for a free walk to start off the inning, with Pat Ethier sacrificing him to second Reid was then walked intentionally to set up the chance of a double play, putting runners at first and second.

After Ethier fanned for the first out of the inning, Terry Pope, the designated hitter replacing Bob Parsons, drove Campbell home for the final with a single to centre field.

Action will resume in the Quinte Thursday night, with Howard and Robert taking on the Ellis Juniors in the first game of the twin bill, with Rollins Construction meeting Augur's in the nightcap.

EDMONTON (CP) — The Can-Am road race scheduled for Sept. 15 here has been cancelled because of a lack of sponsorship, says the Sports Car Club of American, organizer of the event.

Golden Bat Bantam Tournament

Toronto Teams Show Respect For the Windsor South Entry

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Among established Golden Bat Bantam Baseball Tournament entrants from Toronto, the general consensus is a tremendous respect for the strength of the team representing Windsor South.

The tourney is set for Belleville, July 5, 6 and 7.

Besides the Windsor factor, Toronto entrants also agree that the Belleville Golden Bat Bantam Baseball Tournament is the best such event in the province.

"It has to be the best organized in Ontario," says Ron Tustin, coach of Scarborough Village, "we've competed in the tournament every year since its inception and as each year passes it seems to improve."

He is aware of all the tournaments that take place in Ontario and therefore knows the calibre of competition and the organizational pros and cons of baseball tournaments.

The reason for Tustin's comprehensive knowledge of all the provinces' bantam tournaments is that he is the secretary-treasurer of the Metro Toronto Baseball Association and also holds a position on the executive of the Ontario Baseball Association.

"We appreciate the care that is taken to provide out-of-town teams with hosts and the many activities that go along with the tournament," commented Tustin.

Extended the courteous, friendly hand that is offered to all visiting teams the tournament itself is a very demanding and competitive one and, I might add, very fair to all."

Scarborough Village is the only team to cover take the Grand Championship honors of the Golden Bat twice. The Village squad did it once in 1969 and 1970, the first two years of the event.

Since that time the coveted Bat has gone to teams from Sarnia, Peterborough and High Park, another Toronto club.

"Last year," adds Tustin, "we had people who had nothing to do but play ball club travel to Belleville with us to watch the tournament. These people were some that were involved with the Scarborough Village team in '69 and '70."

"They have no affiliation with us now," observed Tustin, "but they enjoy coming back to Belleville for the Golden Bat tournament. It's nothing else, just to say hello to the friendly people they met six years ago."

The 12-year-old coach will be fielding a 13-player squad for this year's tourney and while he isn't sure of his club's strength he, by no means, underrates its capabilities.

"I hate to say it" allusion," he said, "we hope to be competitive but we're not an exceptional threat to the top rated teams. On the other hand we will not be a doormat since there's always the chance of putting things together and being one of the darkhorses of the tournament."

Tustin feels his team is well balanced. Although he only has 13 players signed, each one is slated to play two or three different positions.

The Scarborough team is led by a second year player, Charlie Huddy. He plays left field and first base and is batting over .400. Huddy has something else going for him though. He is also an undefeated pitcher in games so far this season.

Scarborough's other starting pitcher is Dan McConachie. Like Huddy he too is a right hander, but unlike Huddy this is the first season he's been involved with the Scarborough Village team in '69 and '70."

"I'm confident with both pitchers," observed Tustin, "but they enjoy coming back to Belleville for the Golden Bat tournament. If I'm nothing else, just to say hello to the friendly people they met six years ago."

Tigers and Ump Get to Cuellar

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The American League batters, umpire Russ Goetz had trouble handing Baltimore Oriole pitcher Mike Cuellar. But Goetz resolved the problem by throwing him out of the game.

Cuellar, the screwball-throwing left-hander, was gunning for his 10th consecutive victory when he ran into his own wildness and then the home plate umpire.

Cuellar walked Jim Northrup to force in Detroit Tigers' second run in the third inning. Only Cuellar didn't see it the same way as Goetz.

"I told him he couldn't see nothing," said Cuellar.

Goetz booted him out.

Meanwhile, left-hander Mickey Lolich struck out nine and limited the Orioles to seven hits in pitching his 11th successive complete game, a 3-0 victory.

Elsewhere, Texas Rangers beat Minnesota Twins 7-3, Chicago White Sox outlasted California Angels by 12-11 in 10 innings, and Oakland A's whipped California Angels 6-1, Cleveland Indians - New York Yankees and the Milwaukee Brewers-Boston Red Sox games were rained out.

Baltimore catcher Andy Etchebarren said Goetz called Cuellar a bad name earlier in the game.

Cuellar said that he questioned Goetz' eyesight, was thrown out of the game, and then carped him out.

Lolich, 15-7, who has pitched more than 300 innings a year for the last three years, already has pitched 157 2-3 innings this season. He has won nine of 11 decisions since May 14.

He got his offensive backing in the third.

Designated hitter Al Kaline, playing on the 20th anniversary of his major league debut, tripled with two out. Then Willie Horton had an RBI single.

Bill Freehan doubled, and Cuellar walked Aurelio Rodriguez and Northrup, forcing in Detroit's second run.

Rookie Mike Hargrove singled home the go-ahead run in the fourth inning and doubled home another in nine-run sixth that lifted Texas over Minnesota. Hargrove is second in the league in hitting with a .355 average.

PRAISES JENKINS . . .

Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., "gave up a lot of hits," said Texas manager Billy Martin, "but he came through with the out pitch when he needed it. It wasn't a masterpiece but he deserves a few like that."

Bill Melton hit a home run in a four-run sixth inning that broke a tie with a run-scoring grounder in the fifth, giving Chicago its victory over Kansas City.

The victory kept the A's 3½ games ahead of Chicago and the Texas in the American League West.

Sabres And Bears Hook Up

BUFFALO (AP) — Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League said Tuesday they have suspended farm operations in Cincinnati and signed a working agreement with Hershey Bears in the American Hockey League.

The Sabres have operated Cincinnati Swords in the AHL for three seasons.

A primary reason for halting operations in Cincinnati was the awarding of World Hockey League franchise to the Ohio city for the 1975-76 season.

Fred T. Shero, Sweden's general manager, said the NHL has changed its rules regarding so called development clubs and that NHL-bound leagues were required to maintain them.

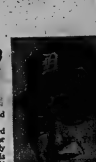
Oshawa, Hamilton Split

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Wally Dick lost the opening game as a pitcher Tuesday but helped win the nightcap as a hitter as Hamilton split at Harris Field ball League doubleheader with Oshawa.

Both games went into extra innings with Oshawa winning the first, 4-3 and Hamilton the second 3-1.

A Burlington-at-London doubleheader was postponed.



Dick was the losing pitcher in the opener, allowing eight hits in going the distance. Wayne Cooley also went the route for the victory, giving up five hits.

Reg Martin pitched the victory, allowing six hits. The loss went to Harry Timbers, who held Hamilton to four hits while striking out 15.

Renko and Bailey Lead Expos

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The wind was just right for Steve Renko who pitched a one-hitter that gave Montreal Expos a 5-0 victory over Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday night.

Larry Dierker had a one-hitter, until Cincinnati's Bernz Geronimo hit aleadoff homer in the seventh, and Johnny Bench and Dan Driessen drove in runs that gave the Reds a 3-2 victory over Houston Astros.

In other National League games, New York's Met beat Chicago Cubs 5-1, San Diego Padres defeated San Francisco Giants 3-1, Los Angeles Dodgers edged Atlanta Braves 2-1, and St. Louis Cardinals outlasted Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7.

Renko, who faced the minimum 27 batters in the game, struck out seven and walked two.

Bob Bailey tagged Dick Ruthven for a grand-slam home run that highlighted a five-run fifth inning.

Joe Morgan, who had singled in the first inning, drew his second walk of the game against Houston game following Geronimo's homer. Geronimo scored him with a double. Driessen then singled Bench home.

Jerry Koosman pitched a four-hitter and Ed Kranepool gave him a three-run cushion in the third inning to lead the Mets past the Cubs.

Dave Rader's error at the plate let San Diego's first run score in the fourth inning, then Bobby Tolan singled home two more to hand Juan Cisneto their 18th loss in 19 games.

Singles by Willie McCovey and John Cruz and Derrel Thomas' sacrifice put two Padres in scoring position. After Fred Kendall was intentionally walked to load the bases, Horace Clarke grounded to second baseman Tito Fuentes.

But Rader dropped his throw at home and pinch-runner Rod Gaspar scored. Tolan's two-out single finished the rally that enabled the Padres to survive within two games of fifth-place San Francisco in the West.

Steve Garvey and Ron Cey singled home ninth-inning runs Braves. The victory went to relief ace Al Downing.

Stingers Pull Upset

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Syracuse Stingers provided the surprise of the night in the National Lacrosse League Tuesday, while Toronto Tomahawks cruised to an easy victory over the faltering Maryland Arrows.

The Stingers upset Philadelphia Wings 12-9 before 7,528 fans in Philadelphia, marking their third win in 11 games.

Brian Thompson was the big gun for Toronto with five goals. Jim Quigg sank three, while Paul Richardson, Bob Haw and Brian Wilson each provided two. Singles went to Ed Travis, Gary Brezany, Charley Marlowe, Brian Wilkeg, Stan Cox and Jim McCrea.

Bill Coghill and Paul Sauggie led the Arrows with three goals apiece. Gord Keates collected two and single goals were scored by Wayne Granger, Jerry McKenna, John Fisher, Guy Cozy and Kevin Sweitzer.

John Sheffield, 22, of Detroit, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania's field lacrosse team and one of the first black players to compete in professional lacrosse, earned two assists in his debut with the Tomahawks.

Stars Down Braves

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Bone, Rod Dadswell and Owen Sound North Stars posted an 18-16 victory over SC Niagara Braves in the only Ontario Lacrosse Association Major series game Tuesday night.

The North Stars led 8-1 after one period and 12-5 entering the final 20 minutes.

Terry Williams led the winners with five goals. Dan Rumball had four with Dave Lytle adding three. Lachlan Mackinnon came with Windsor Warlocks at Stoney Creek Monday night.

Joe Squire and Bill Squire scored three goals each for the Braves. Jack Hill and Brian Martin each had a pair with Bob Green and Larry Greene adding singles.

Steelers Rip Oshawa

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At Toronto, the Maple Leafs got three-goal efforts from Ted Hopkins and Russ McEwen. Garry Prekick and Ken Lane scored two goals each with Rick Dickson, Nino Parisi, Rick Bennett and Bob Pilchcock adding singles.

JANE MOVING UP

ATLANTA (AP) — JoAnn Prentice continues to lead the 1972 Ladies Professional Golf Association's money standings but Jane Blalock is closing in. Miss Prentice has won $53,657 to $53,186 for Miss Blalock. Joanne Carner is third with $47,367 while Sandra Haynie is fourth with $44,086. Completing the top 10 are Carol Mann, $39,802; Sandra Palmer, $36,232; Kathy Whitworth, $33,475; Judy Rankin, $34,775; Gail Denenberg, $28,479, and Sandra Spuzich, $24,807.

CFL, Players Miles Apart

Terms Are Unacceptable, League's Future Bleak

OTTAWA (CP) — The future of more than 270 veterans of the Canadian Football League and the CFL itself hung in the balance today after the league and the players' association failed to settle their contract differences Tuesday.

"We have nothing further to offer the players," said Norm Kimball, head of the CFL management committee, after a full day of talks here.

"The management offer is totally unacceptable," George Reed, president of the players' association, told a news conference.

Both management and players made public figures showing that the contract dispute centred mainly on pay for league playoff games and the Grey Cup as well as compensation for training camp and exhibition games.

Also in dispute are pension payments.

Kimball said both sides are about $400,000 apart. But the management offer is based on a three-year deal while the players seek a two-year pact.

Reed, a star with Saskatchewan Roughriders, said the players offered Tuesday to decrease their demands by $185,000.

The owners declined the offer, arguing that four of the nine CFL clubs suffered losses in 1973 while a fifth managed only to break even.

Kimball reiterated team contentions that the league would operate his season with rookies rather than submit to the demands of the veterans.

He said it would be up to the individual teams to decide whether prices would be lowered to compensate for the watered-down product.

With the official league opener scheduled July 24 and the exhibition season only a week away, Reed said the players are determined to maintain solidarity.

Both Reed and Kimball said they were ready to resume talks if the other side requested them.

"But we have nothing more to offer," added Kimball.

And Reed maintained that the players, having watered down their requests twice, will not do it again.

Toronto Team Considers Launching Talent Hunt

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts may go on a massive recruiting campaign "within a few weeks" unless retired veterans and their Canadian Football League Players' Association colleagues come to terms with CFL owners.

Argo owner Bill Hodgson told a news conference Tuesday the team has no other alternative than to search for new talent since the league plans to go ahead with its regular season opener July 24 with or without the veterans.

He said at a news conference the team has no alternative but to search for new talent because of league plans to go ahead with its regular season opener July 24 with or without the veterans.

More than veteran 280 players on nine CFL teams submitted resignations June 15 in an effort to spur negotiations for a two-year contract between the CFLPA and owners.

Hodgson, who called the news conference to announce that regular season subscribers may obtain a refund on the Argos' two pre-season games, said his players have 48 hours to say where they stand before he launches "a massive" recruiting drive.

Hodgson's statement came as the players' association and players' relations' committee continued meetings in Ottawa to settle monetary issues.

Despite some compromises by the CFLPA Hodgson said the two groups are still $585,000 apart.

Hodgson said he is "still hopeful the veterans will listen to the other side" before taking a definite stand. It is evident from his talks with some players that they are not familiar with what has transpired to date, he said.

He said the CFL has offered monetary gains of 33 per cent in a two-year contract to the association. The players' demands, he said, are in the area of 60 per cent.

The talks in Ottawa during preparations for tonight's game between the CFL all-stars and the Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders are the seventh between the players representatives and owners committee since April 2.

Hodgson said an independent auditor—Touche-Ross of Vancouver—supports the owners who say they are financially incapable of meeting the players' revenue demands.

Brazil, West Germany Out to Prove Point

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Brazil and West Germany got a chance to repair their suspect soccer reputations today as the World Cup swung into second-round action with four games.

Indications were that both matches would be played as tactical draws.

For goals, fans would have to look to the day's two other clashes, Holland vs. Argentina at Gelsenkirchen in Group A, and Poland vs. Sweden at Stuttgart in Group B.

Brazil, three-time world champion, kept its game plan secret and East Germany reportedly planned no changes from the team that beat West Germany 1-0 in the first round.

West Germany, a 5-2 favorite in the British betting shops, had yet to find the form which two years ago won the European championship, and its match against Yugoslavia looked like a tailor-made draw.

The Sweden-Poland match shaped up as the likely thriller of the day. Whatever the result, a record must go.

Argentina went into the match against Holland without midfield star Carlos Babington, suspended after three cautions. Holland, the surprise of the tournament, reported all fit.

Whitby May Be Back, Terriers in Trouble

TORONTO (CP) — New Brunswick, Quebec and the Ontario and District Hockey Association will be represented in Allan Cup competition this season, Larry Belisle, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association senior convenor, announced Tuesday.

Belisle, of Penetanguishene, Ont., said Ontario, Thunder Bay and Newfoundland associations also would operate senior hockey groups in Eastern Canada for the 1974-75 season.

Makeup of the Ontario Hockey Association senior group was unresolved at a meeting Tuesday night, but it was expected Whitby, Ont., would make an official entry today, joining teams from Brantford, Cambridge, Barrie, Napanee and Orillia.

Meanwhile, in Orillia, Dave Weaver, president of the Orillia Terriers senior club, said unless a group was found by this weekend to back the Terriers, the team would withdraw from the league.

Weaver said he polled 20 of the 23 members of the executive, but could find no one willing to head up the organization for the 1974-75 season.

Zaire Eases Out Asian Citizens

BOMBAY (CP) — The republic of Zaire, formerly Congo, has begun to ease out its Indian and other Asian citizens.

More than 200 Indian families have so far left Zaire, said an Indian businessman, who has just reached Bombay on his way to his home town of Ahmedabad.

The businessman said many of the Zaire Indians and Pakistanis hope to settle in Britain, Canada, Australia, and West Germany and "quite a few" have already managed to enter Western countries.

He said President Joseph Mobutu of Zaire, is following a policy similar to that of President Idi Amin of Uganda.

Nearly 70,000 Indians and other Asians have been expelled from Uganda despite strong protests from various Asian governments. Almost half are believed to have settled in Britain, Canada and Australia.

While the Uganda Asians held British passports, their counterparts in Zaire are believed to be mostly Zaire nationals. This makes their predicament more acute.

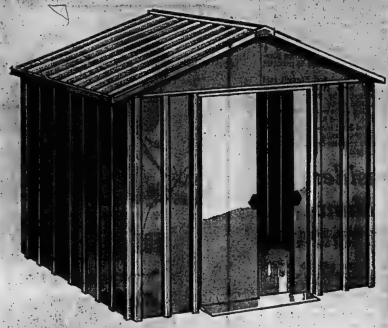
I. R. Sharma, an Indian business executive from Zaire, told the Bombay Economic Times that Asians in Zaire had not been ordered to leave the country.

However, Sharma said they were compelled to leave as they had been deprived of their business and "reduced to penury."

All the business assets owned by Zaire Asians were being transferred to Africans more or less on the same lines as in Uganda.

Indian business sources said nearly 4,000 Indians may have to leave Zaire.

President Mobutu is said to have declared that compensation will be paid to the Asian businessmen "over a period of 30 years, depending on how their organizations function under their new African owners."



The departing Asians are said to have been given xmas documents by the Zaire administration. But one Indian businessman said; "These are of no value. President Mobutu knows that no Asian will come back to claim his assets."

Stanfield Says Liberals Fishing with Stale Bait

HARBOUR GRACE, Nfld. (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield rocked on Conception Bay Tuesday aboard a longliner fishing boat and then went on to a rally here to accuse the Liberal government of fishing for Newfoundland votes with stale bait.

"My friends, you can't fool Moores's home in St. John's the fishermen of Newfoundland and then flying by helicopter to with four-year-old bait," he told the stone-studded fishing community of Upper Island Cove about 700 persons after being for a fish fry.

given an endorsement by Premier Frank Moores.

Mr. Stanfield devoted his entire day to the easternmost province, flying in from Ottawa in the afternoon, visiting Mr. which codfish being landed from another longliner.

In his speech here, he attacked the government's proposed income stabilization plan for fishermen—not for its content, but for the fact that Ca promise is four years old.

"There is nothing wrong with that as a policy. What's wrong with it is that you've heard it before—from the same government, from the same source."

He was greeted at the wharf by a band playing renditions of For He's a Jolly Good Fellow and Alouette—the latter applied "Ale-Watia" on the music sheets.

Liberal Rule Threat To Our Destiny--Dief

TORONTO (CP) — John Diefenbaker said Tuesday night that among the major issues in the July 8 federal election are leadership, maintenance of Canada's traditional ties with the Crown and restoration of the rights of Parliament.

The 79-year-old former Progressive Conservative prime minister spoke at an outdoor rally in support of Ron Collister, the former CBC parliamentary reporter running in York Scarborough.

Prime Minister Trudeau was asking for one more chance to prove he can lick inflation, but history "he's had too many chances," said Mr. Diefenbaker, grinning at the cheers from several hundred persons gathered despite a threatening thunderstorm.

He said the Liberals had changed rules of procedure so that "there is no way to Parliament to challenge individual expenditures."

Meanwhile, taxes, interest, rates and the cost of living were the "biggest in Canadian

PLANNING MEALS FOR SUMMER LIVING

With this weekend officially launching the summer holiday, life in most families will become more informal — with more family members riding early, others later, and meals in danger of being delayed or missed altogether.

If your and the family are to get the proper health attention from outdoor living, you should avoid departing too far from your established mealtime pattern. Reducing meals to one a day, which is a practice in many holiday homes, is not the answer. Instead, you should plan nutritious meals and snacks around the current activity.

Breakfast is an important part of your holidays, make it the first meal of the day a hearty brunch — serve a well balanced dinner — and schedule one other light meal to round out the daily needs of milk, fruit, vegetables, cereal and protein food.

Luckily for the budget, wieners and hamburgers are top summer favorites with most children. Cook a few extras for next time — but you'll find broiling ribs, chicken, turkey, fish, bologna, salami, pork chops and imported lamb both thrifty and versatile alternatives.

Hutterites Need Land And Friction Increases

CALGARY (CP) — New reports of bitterness in a long-standing squabble are appearing in Alberta and Arnold Platt is in the middle.

The Hutterites need more land for members of their expanding religious sect. Non-Hutterite farmers contend the sect is buying all the good farm land in some districts, squeezing them out.

Title is where Mr. Platt comes in. At 64, he is chairman of a special advisory committee on communal property that is charged with trying to ease friction between Hutterites and their neighbors.

"We're all on this ice," he said. "If there were any easy solution, someone would have thought of it by now."

The latest complaints have come from farmers in the Carmangay area, southeast of Calgary. They said expansion of Hutterite farms is threatening their traditional way of life and sought government protection.

No longer are there any legal restraints against Hutterite expansion. The government last year repealed the Communal Property Act which had required them to seek government approval before buying more land.

Mr. Platt and his committee were given the job of reviewing a proposed Hutterite purchase. The committee takes local sentiment into account and "advises the colony whether we think it is a reasonable thing to do."

The committee, however, has no power to stop Hutterite expansion. The communal Hutterite colonies traditionally divide and create a new colony when the population in the original unit reaches a certain level.

Mr. Platt said tractors, for example, "have had more influence on the family farm than Hutterites, or even corporations, although they have the same effect." The use of tractors, by Hutterites or others, enables them to generate larger farms.

The smaller, more marginal farmer is usually the one to worry about Hutterite expansion, Mr. Platt said. Confronted by increasing land and operating costs, they view Hutterites and corporation agriculture as a destabilizing influence.

In addition, some farmers worry that Hutterites one day will control Alberta agriculture because of their high birthrate.

Mr. Platt disagreed. He said the Hutterite birthrate is declining. In addition, capital is becoming steadily more scarce, which might encourage more enterprises on existing colonies, rather than establishment of new ones.

But this does not alter the main problem. Despite differences in religious and social outlook, Hutterites and the neighbors are still farmers. How to ameliorate the distrust and jealousy?

One way, said Mr. Platt, is to persuade Hutterites to participate with other farmers in an attack on agricultural problems—the one thing that unites them. If this happens, "there likely will be more respect between them."

Arnold Platt is in the middle of a long-standing squabble between Hutterites seeking more land and non-Hutterite farmers opposing the sect. Mr. Platt is chairman of a special advisory committee on communal property which reviews planned Hutterite purchases. However, the committee has no power to stop Hutterite expansion. (CP Photo)

Family Court

A Joke

NEW YORK (AP) — After six months on the bench, Simeon Golar, former New York City commissioner of human rights, says the family court is an "absurd process." Because of recent Supreme Court decisions, defence manoeuvres and administrative procedures, "tens of thousands of youngsters who reach Juvenile court were not then punished nor rehabilitated but were in fact educated in disrespect and contempt for the law.

Almost Perfect

All Possible Eventualities Covered by Election Act

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is just another candidate so far as the Canada Elections Act is concerned. Not even his death would stop the electoral process.

The mathematical odds are against a candidate dying during the campaign for the July 8 election, but it could happen and the election law covers this possibility.

Section 25 provides that the campaign in the affected riding—even that of Mr. Trudeau—would stop immediately while the rest of the election process went on around it.

The chief electoral officer would fix a new nomination day not more than a month after the death and a byelection day would be held not more than 28 days after that.

From the other candidates' point of view, it simply means more campaign expense because there is no provision for reimbursement if an opponent dies.

"They've just got to lay it out the second time around," said a spokesman for Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Marc Hamel.

Should the prime minister die, or become so ill he had to withdraw from the campaign, it would be up to the Governor-General to choose an interim prime minister until a Liberal party leadership convention could be arranged.

"He would probably consult leading members of the party," said Liberal Senator Eugene Forsey, one of the country's foremost constitutional experts. "He might even consult former cabinet ministers as well as members of the present cabinet . . . or even the librarian of Parliament, if he felt he needed this guidance."

Only two prime ministers—Sir John A. Macdonald in 1891 and Sir John Thompson in 1894—died while in office. Both were Conservatives.

"In those days they didn't have leadership conventions," said Senator Forsey. "The Governor-General had a look around and sent for the one he felt was most likely to carry on."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp is usually acting prime minister during Mr. Trudeau's absence but would not become interim prime minister automatically in the event

Buenos Aires Attacks Traffic Noise Levels

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — City authorities here are about to launch an all-out attack on a problem afflicting almost every big city in the world—traffic noise.

Persuasion has failed to get motorists to reduce the decibel rate in Buenos Aires, so authorities are getting tough.

Giant posters proclaiming "Silence Is Health" have been up for weeks in the sky-blue and white colors of the national flag.

But the appeal to patriotism backed by radio, television and press campaigns seems to have been lost on the Porteños (port people), as the natives of Buenos Aires are known.

Midway up a giant obelisk in the centre of a broad main street a spectacular "Silence Is Health—Don't Sound Your Horn" poster revolves. Beneath it the traffic scrambles around in an undiminished welter of noise.

Blaring horns still numb pedestrians and an estimated 70 per cent of the cars, trucks and buses thunder along with faulty exhausts polluting the air and battering the ears.

"The noise will drive us all mad," said Mayor Jose Embrid.

For Buenos Aires, with its eight million inhabitants, is noisier than Chicago and Los Angeles, said a survey by the engineering faculty at the university here.

Its 16th-century name, meaning "fine airs" or "good winds," has become a sick joke under the onslaught of pollution and traffic noise, said one city hall official.

Backed by police experts, they will swarm into the city's 550 parking lots to check horns and exhaust pipes, slapping fines on vehicles exceeding noise limits.

The limits will be 86 decibels for cars and 90 for trucks and buses. Owners of offending vehicles will be ordered to get them repaired or modified.

Canadians Map Route In Zaire

VANCOUVER (CP) — Computer logistical problems face experts from Canadian companies this summer in a survey of the proposed route for a $1 billion telecommunications project in the central African republic of Zaire.

A 60-station microwave system with towers, some up to 150 feet high, antennae and power plants is being planned by Hoyles Nikkoh Associates Ltd., of Vancouver in partnership with Cartier Engineering and Electronics of Montreal.

Two major obstacles are flat-lands and tall trees in Zaire, the former being Congo.

Peter Evans, vice-president in charge of overseas operations for Hoyles Nikkoh, said the first terrain combines with the second to mean, some up to 150 and 175 feet, to make difficulties. He said the problem in finding line-of-sight communicatio n presents fewer problems in hilly areas. The route also includes some mountainous country.

The initial survey of sites will take place this summer using helicopters supplied by Dominion Pegasus Aircraft Co. of Toronto with the Vancouver-based multilinear survey and engineering company undertaking the land surveying.

The helicopters, working in pairs, will act as aerial surveying platforms. Height will be measured by an infra-red altimeter capable of accuracy within less than one-tenth of a foot.

Horizontal measuring will be done with sophisticated radar beams between helicopters. Repeater stations are expected to be about 31 miles apart.

Mr. Evans said completion of the initial survey will leave the Canadian consortium as advisers in selection of contractors for construction work and responsible for over-all management.

The government's Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) is providing $27 million for the communications project while Zaire is scheduled to spend $20 million for local facilities such as roads.

Mr. Evans said it is not known how the repeater stations will be transported to sites along the 1,500 miles of the microwave system. Water transport is available along the Congo River but roads are in execrable.

"We have had to fly reconnaissance to see whether the roads shown on the maps are in position," he said.

The job is being estimated as a project of from 36 months to five years, depending on logistical problems.

Hoyles Nikkoh also is working in East Africa, having all but finished an $11 million microwave system for the East African Posts and Telecommunications Corp. linking Uganda, Kenya and Tanzania.

An office in Nairobi, Kenya, is in charge of the East African job and another office in Tehran deals with projects in Iran.

Enrolment Highest

EDMONTON (CP) — The University of Alberta, during the 1973-74 winter session, had a record enrolment of 18,304. The total included students from 75 countries, with the largest number of foreign students coming from Hong Kong—874—compared with 499 from the United States.

Russian Tradition Full of Superstition

MOSCOW (Reuter) — More than 50 years of anti-religious propaganda and official scorn for any idea that smacks of the supernatural have done little to persuade Russians that superstitions are an unnecessary relic of the past.

Just as Westerners have their four-leaf clover to bring them luck, the Russians have their five-leaf lilac flower. Most people would be less than happy if a black cat crossed their path.

No one takes such small-time superstitions too seriously but, nevertheless, the organizers of a recent auto rally in Moscow still thought it best to start numbering the cars from 100—so there should be no 13.

Most of these superstitious ideas and don'ts of everyday life go back into Russia's rural history, when traditions and old sayings ruled in the village communities.

City-dwellers with their piped water supply believe it is good luck to meet someone carrying buckets of water but bad luck if they are empty.

There are also several new superstitions rooted in the mechanized and industrial life of the Soviet city.

The answer lies in what the Russians call a "lucky ticket," any one on which the first three figures of the six-figure serial number add up to the same total as the last three.

If they do, the passenger may earn out the slip of paper—as a test in fate the luck.

You have the same choice if you find that five-leaf lilac. If you come across one in a strange per's bouquet of flowers you are within your rights to claim it for consumption on the spot.

You must never, never, wish a fellow luck in the day's tests. You wish him "neither down nor feather," an echo of the days when more geese was shot than books studied.

He must be careful not to thank you for your kind wishes, as that would turn them into bad luck. Instead he must tell you, in no uncertain terms, to go to hell—and all should be well.

There are hundreds more superstitions, all baffling to an outsider: Never put bread upside-down on a table. Touch something black if two people say the same thing at the same time.

Bad Brakes For Dealer

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP) — When Germaine Lafleur, 70, found her brakes failing at an intersection, she immediately drove to her car dealer. On arriving, her brakes failed again and her car smashed through a showroom window. The dealer estimated damage at several thousand dollars, but said he would have the woman's brakes fixed free.

Southern Winter Is Hard On Topless Australians

Centre of the dispute is Camp Cove, one of the beaches closest to Sydney's suburbs and headquarters for the topless fad.

The beach's half-mile of white sand is on the harbor side of another tourist attraction, the Gap, the last call for suicidal Australians.

Camp Cove, even without the topless sunbathing, would be a popular spot. It is a clean beach on protected shores away from the prevailing wind and its calm waters are a haven for dozens of pleasure craft.

Camp Cove regulars say the topless set numbers about a dozen on any given day, but that was enough to start the thing going. He is on record as suggesting that if topless girls can be prosecuted, why not those topless men with hairy chests.

But Victoria's chief constable Sydneyites say that when someone returns the shape of the beach to coves is topless bathing at Camp Cove.

"Women who go onto beaches without any cover or support should be warned about the experiences of native women whose unsupported breasts quickly sink into arid and strange shapes. This part of a woman's anatomy needs support."

He conceded that police would have to be satisfied that the exposure was offensive before prosecuting.

Despite the controversy, Australian law says that when someone returns the shape of the beach to coves is topless bathing at Camp Cove.

Group Struggles To Become Average

VANCOUVER (CP) — Amidst the North American flurry to succeed in life, there is a group of people struggling to just be average.

Dedicated to help a person become Joe Average is Recovery, Inc., an association founded in Chicago in 1937 by Polish-born psychiatrist Dr. Abraham Low. The object was to aid former mental patients and persons with severe nervous problems.

It has groups in 48 U.S. states and five Canadian provinces and a membership of about 10,000. Recovery was established in Vancouver in 1972 and has about a dozen members.

It is a self-help group much like Alcoholics Anonymous. Like AA, Recovery, Inc., will not accept financial assistance from governments or agencies.

Membership fees are $7.50 a year and are paid to the main office in Chicago.

British Hostels Are Busier

LONDON (CP) — An increase of nearly 67,000 in the number of overnight stays was recorded in the 1973 annual report of the Youth Hostels Association for England and Wales. The total of 1,640,074 was an all-time high.

The association reported total membership of 369,548, an increase of more than 1,000 over the preceding year.

The association recently installed a guest pass scheme, permitting a traveller to stay overnight at a hostel without becoming a member. It also operates a travel agency and three shop selling equipment.

Equipped For Whiting

OSLO (CP) — Two Norwegian trawlers are being equipped to carry out trial fishing for blue whiting in the spawning grounds west of the British Isles, the Norwegian Information Service has announced. The fish is found at depths of 1,300 to 1,600 feet and the fishing technique calls for extremely strong equipment.

Survival Beacon Saves Life

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — A call for help from an Australian yachtsman in the middle of the Tasman Sea has proved the worth of a new survival beacon.

The beacon was used for the first time in the single-handed trans-Tasman yacht race from New Zealand to Australia.

An Air New Zealand aircraft picked up the signal and the yacht was found and given help.

Now the beacon may become compulsory for all ocean races involving New Zealand.

Ian McRobie, Royal Akarana Yacht Club commodore, said the beacon should be given serious consideration.

"I'm all for anything that can help save life and the beacon certainly may have done that in the case of the Mirrool," he said.

McRobie said the battery-powered beacon would be valuable as compulsory life-raft equipment.

"A yacht's radio is no good if that yacht has sunk or lost its ability to generate power for its radio," he said. "It could be that this is where the new beacon will find its way into crewed offshore racing."

All competitors in the race were issued with the beacon. The first time they'd been used in an ocean race from New Zealand.

Bill Eliminates Change in Legal Status When Wed

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario took the first tentative steps Tuesday toward a major reform of family law with the introduction of a bill on the legal status of married men and women.

The bill, introduced by Attorney-General Robert Welch, basically provides that married persons retain the same legal rights as unmarried persons.

In effect, the bill removes husband and wife and parents and children and provides that a married woman is a legal entity separate from her husband.

The bill would allow married women to incur liability under contracts in the same way as other adults.

Now, married women are only personally liable by the extent of their "separate property," while a married man can incur unlimited liability.

The bill likely will reduce the tendency for banks and credit-card companies to discriminate against married women in the issuing of charge accounts.

The new legislation stipulates that a woman shall have the same rights as a third party. A married woman now will be considered a legal entity without regard to her marriage.

However, the bill confers no positive right to a share in business owned by one spouse. Both opposition parties attacked the measure as half-hearted, saying they do not go far enough, especially in regard to ownership.

The attorney-general, however, was more optimistic.

Mr. Welch said he is eager for submissions from the Ontario Council of Women.

The council plans an October symposium on the matter and likely will submit a series of proposals after those discussions.

As the government moves to clear up a backlog of bills before the summer recess, the house is ignoring its usual sitting hours.

Debate this week has started at 10 a.m. and gone past the regular 10:30 p.m. adjournment.

Thursday, the legislature gave final approval to four agriculture bills governing licensing fees for certain products and amending regulations governing commercial societies.

The house also gave second reading, approval in principle, to a bill amending the Judges Act—abolishing the present grand jury system—as well as committee-of-the-whole approval to Treasurer Auld's White's guaranteed annual income plan for pensioners.

Just before the adjournment at 12:30 a.m., Eric Winkler, government house leader, indicated that as many as 10 bills may come up for consideration today.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

Legislature Speaker To Get Cabinet Rank

TORONTO (CP) — Proposals of the Camp commission to give the Speaker cabinet rank and an open public money to pay for secretarial help for all legislature members have been approved by the government.

These were among the major recommendations of the second report of the commission on the legislature under chairman Dalton Camp that was tabled last December.

Eric Winkler, chairman of management board of cabinet, announced the government's intention to proceed with implementing most of the recommendations in a statement Tuesday to the legislature.

Under the proposals, Speaker Allan Reuter would be given cabinet rank but would not be part of the cabinet or be regarded as a minister of the Crown. As well, he would assume full control of the main Queen's Park building that are part of the legislature, but security would remain with a special police force.

The speaker would also be given responsibility for the preparation of the estimates-budgetary expenditures for each ministry—and table them in the house.

Impeachment Evidence to Be Tabled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives Judiciary committee has voted to make public most of the evidence it has received in secret impeachment hearings during the last seven weeks.

But when the mass of material will be released remains unclear but some members say all evidence relating to the Watergate cover-up, including the committee's versions of White House tapes, may be made public in a few days.

Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem., N.J.), who will have the right to edit the material before it is released, said Tuesday he hopes the entire record of more than 7,000 pages will be available for public scrutiny by the time the committee starts debating proposed articles of impeachment, now scheduled for July 15.

"This is information on which one can make an evaluation," said Rodino. "It should come to the attention of the public."

Most of the evidence to be released consists of factual statements bearing on the conduct of President Nixon and his aides without any interpretation or conclusions.

However, it also includes the evidence that led the Watergate grand jury to vote 19 to 0 to name Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up. And it includes transcripts of presidential conversations far more complete than the edited versions released by the White House.

In other Watergate developments:

—Former top Nixon aide John Ehrlichman and three others go on trial today in the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Ehrlichman in August, 1971, approved a covert operation against the psychiatrist "if it is not traceable."

—The Senate Watergate committee is reported ready to release a report on possible CIA involvement in the Watergate break-in and cover-up. The report was written by committee Vice-Chairman Howard Baker (Rep., Tenn.), who has hinted that the report contains significant new information.

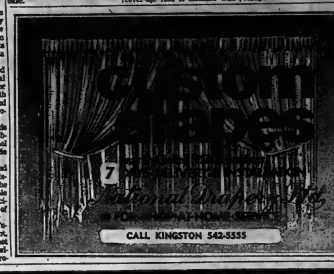
A legal consultant to the Watergate committee proposed that Congress limit a president's use of executive privilege and define exactly what he can do in the name of national security.

Legal Advice Sought On No Resuscitation

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association (CMA) voted Tuesday to seek legal advice on a policy of "no resuscitation" for terminally ill patients approved by delegates Monday.

The vote followed a warning by Dr. F. N. Brown of Ottawa, with the Canadian Medical Protective Association, that physicians would be open to lawsuits by writing "no resuscitation" on the chart of a dying patient.

Delegates to the association's annual meeting agreed Monday that it is ethically acceptable for physicians to refrain from reviving terminally ill patients who may have lapsed into coma or suffered cardiac arrest.



The delegates also voted Tuesday to petition the federal and provincial governments for mandatory warnings of health dangers on all packaging and advertising of tobacco and alcohol products.

The association regards smoking as a factor contributing to poor health and alcohol as the cause of greatest misuse and abuse in all age groups.

Another resolution passed Tuesday requests Health Minister Marc Lalonde to warn the public about the possible serious health hazards associated with continued use of marijuana and hashish.

Dr. Reta Stephenson of Toronto, incoming CMA president, said the association does not have enough scientific knowledge about the effects of pro-longed cannabis use to condemn it outright, but opposes it because of possible harmful effects.

The association resolved to ask the federal health protection branch to engage in research to determine whether chiropractic treatment is of value, and urged the federal government to make more medical research funds available because such research has shown economic returns in the prevention and treatment of disease.

All-Canadian Ballet at Expo

MONTREAL (CP) — A new all-Canadian ballet based on Solomon's Song of Songs in a modernized version by Brian Macdonald will open the Grands Ballets Canadiens summer season at Expo theatre July 2.

By Fernand Nault, the company's resident choreographer who produced the hit rock-ballet Tommy, Cantique des Cantiques is set to music by Michel Conte, however, has interpreted it as speaking of love rather than God, in a Quebec context.

"This is perhaps what makes it so relevant today," he said in the announcement of the new ballet's debut.

"I don't think I betrayed his soul: thought by unfilled the Song's action to a contemporary setting. The history of a minority is eternal. The same is true of love and mysticism."

This is the fourth year that the Grands Ballets has staged a summer festival at the Expo Theatre. This year's program also will include Tommy, Brian Macdonald's Time Now or Most and Georges Balanchine's Allegro Brillante, and will run to Aug. 3.

The company said Cantique des Cantiques has been in preparation for almost two years, and is its most ambitious production to date. It will use all theatrical techniques available and is the first work in the company's repertory to be wholly conceived and created by local artists.

Mr. Nault said the work is drawn from anything he has previously done. It will depict the Song of Songs as a love story, both physical and spiritual.

Manon Lavie and Vincent Warrent will dance the roles of the lovers, and actor Jean Leclerc will appear on stage with some spoken narrative parts. Other spoken parts will be read by Louise Leprade.

The only hint of the visual impact of the new ballet given in the announcement was a description of Mr. Mitchell's sets, made up of "spectacular suspended steel."

Miss Huston, who once made $150,000-a-week as a singing, dancing comedienne in films and nightclubs, was sick and broke when she was befriended by Rev. Peter Maguire of St. Anthony's.

After working at the rectory for a time, she converted to Catholicism in February.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — After 19 albums, folk singer Gordon Lightfoot says he is as surprised as anyone that his single record, Sundown, is the No. 1 song in the United States.

"I kind of got the idea I was going to be an album artist all my life," the Canadian songwriter-singer said Tuesday evening following a concert at the Saratoga Performing Arts Centre.

Sundown, which has sold 1.2 million copies, is rated No. 1 this week by Billboard, as is the album by the same title.

"No one is more surprised than we are that we have a No. 1 song," he said.

Lightfoot played in bars and coffee houses throughout Canada and the United States for the first five of his 11 years in the business.

He says it was a good learning ground but he is happy to be on top now, able to reach a larger audience.

"No, I don't miss the coffee houses and bars because I get my gigs filled with that scene. It's pretty demanding work.

Lightfoot, who plays the six-and 12-string guitar, is accompanied by Terry Clemens on lead guitar and Richard Haynes on bass.

Born in Orillia, Ont., Lightfoot moved to Los Angeles after high school. He attended Westlake College of Music, became a fan of Pete Seeger and Ian and Sylvia Tyson and began writing some tunes. Ian and Sylvia made available his Early Morning Rain and For Loving Me to a wide audience.

Some celebrities prefer messages, such as Tim Conway's I'M WEIRD, presumably referring to his short-lived television series, or Richard Carpenter of The Carpenters singing group with SONG 4 U.

For lyricists Marilyn and Alan Bergman it's WORDS 1 for him and WORDS 2 for her.

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Rutan, housekeeper-cook of a Rhode Island Roman Catholic rectory, came back to New York Monday night in a blaze of her oldtime glory and told 400 well-wishers: "I love you, I love you."

NEED A LARGE HOUSE WITH LARGE LOT!

A large, solid brick house on a very large, well landscaped treed lot in the East end. This is now being used as a duplex with two spacious apartments but could easily be returned to a single dwelling. This is a lovely old home with a winding staircase, big bathroom, good basement and hot water heating system. This would make a good Doctor's office.

NEAR DOWNTOWN

An older home in very good condition in the older East 1hill area close to downtown. This could be converted to a duplex as it now has five bedrooms and both upstairs and three large rooms and large hall downstairs. The kitchen is large as is the dining room and living room. Two car garage.

P.E.I. Shipyard Helped British Beat Napoleon

PORT HILL, P.E.I. (CP) — Green Park, located at a point where Lady Slipper Drive passes through this community on the western shore of Malpeque Bay, recalls this island province's involvement in the era of wooden ships.

In 1865, James Yeo, Jr., used a fortune built on ships to build Green Park, the name he gave to the Victorian residence which is one of the major attractions for visitors here each year.

The surrounding 300 acres of forest and field are owned by the province. Surrounded on three sides by water, the site includes a campground picnic area, interpretive centre and a reconstructed shipyard.

A visit to the area might begin with a tour of the historic Yeo house followed by a stroll through the interpretive centre, a new building which contains displays and artifacts related to the island's early shipbuilding.

Third year, for the first time, the provincial tourism department is arranging a program of guided walks for visitors. They will be conducted by a naturalist and are designed to make full use of the park's 200 acres of forest and field.

Green Park became an important shipbuilding centre in the early 1800s after Napoleon began a blockade against the British, prevented the Island nation from obtaining shipbuilding timber from traditional European sources.

Enlightenment in the British Isles turned their attention westward to the North American colonies and scoured the coastal forests for wood.

They built ships in the New World and sailed them, loaded down with timber, to England. Often, both ship and cargo were sold, creating a demand for new ships.

The booming industry drew James Yeo, Sr., from his Hideford, England, home to P.E.I. in 1810 and at the time of his death in 1868, Yeo shipwrights had launched 350 ships into Campbell's Creek, not far from his son's home at Green Park.

James Yeo, Jr., carried on the shipbuilding business his father started but before the century was out, the era of the wooden vessel had passed.

Strangled by dwindling timber supplies and the sudden popularity of steam power, the Yeo family built the last square-rigger in 1891, saw her launched and closed out this island's great age of shipbuilding.

RAIN MAJOR FACTOR

NEW YORK (AP) — Rain likely plays a part in two-thirds of all bad-weather highway crashes, says CIT Leasing Corp. George Wilson, company vice-president, said more people are killed on rain-slicked roads than on ice-and snow-covered roads combined. CIT provides safe-driving information for car and truck fleet leasing clients.

India Now Jails Thugs Without Trial

BOMBAY (CP) — Police in several Indian cities have started a vigorous drive against criminal gangs.

They has been a sizeable increase in murders, burglaries and other crimes in Bombay, Calcutta and other big metropolitan areas.

Following a public outcry, the government has armed policemen and given them special powers to deal with gangsters.

A large number of dadas (mobsters) who have been terrorizing the thickly populated Parel and Shodwala areas of Bombay have been detained under the Maintenance of Internal Security Act (MISA).

MISA was enacted by parliament mainly to ferret out alleged foreign spies and their Indian agents, protect defence interests and prevent subversive elements from disrupting communications.

Under the measure, anyone can be detained up to 12 months without a court hearing.

The use of the act against city gangs has been welcomed widely. Fireworks were set off at several places in Bombay to show appreciation for the police action against gangsters.

A senior police official said: "This is one of the most effective weapons we have against criminals who terrorize innocent citizens. Now we can just pick them up and send them to jail for a whole year."

Reports from the northern province of Bihar say the legislation is being used effectively to round up criminal elements.

Several towns in Bihar had been in the grip of gangsters and residents had paraded to protest police apathy.

Government officials say that the use of MISA will help to bring down the crime rate within six months.

Some of the gangs in Bombay and Calcutta are said to have "infiltrated political connections."

One police official said in Calcutta: "Sometimes, we cannot take adequate action against known gangsters because of political interference."

One suggestion the government is examining is that politicians who are in collusion with criminal gangs should also be detained under the act.

The extension of the act to cover activities other than those affecting national security has caused some alarm among trade union leaders.

George Fernandes Amar Singh and Saran Dogra, three prominent unionists, have alleged that it is being used to "suppress" workers' movements for higher wages and better living conditions.

Elizabethan Market Hall

SINGLETON, England (CP) — An Elizabethan market hall, due for demolition, has been dismantled timber by timber, transported 30 miles and reassembled by a museum in this Sussex town.

The hall at Titchfield, Hampshire, was in such poor condition that it was decided three years ago to demolish it despite its architectural and historic interest.

The Weald and Downland open-air museum offered to save the building and now, after three years' research and reconstruction, it has been opened to the public as one of the museum's finest exhibits.

The 16th-century timber frame of the 30-by-20-foot building was in relatively good condition, said museum officials, but new bricks, handmade to a 400-year-old specification, were used. The timbers were numbered and put together like a three-dimensional jigsaw puzzle.

Freeze Asked

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — A group studying growth in Northumberland County decided Tuesday to ask Provincial Treasurer, John White for a ministerial order to control development in the county until it completes its study of the area, estimated to take 12 to 15 months after the approval of municipalities in the county.

Three Freed

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Three policemen were acquitted in county court Tuesday of an assault charge arising from a claim by a man that he was beaten during a drug search of his Niagara Falls motel room last Dec. 19.

Rare Book

Bernard Amtmann, founder of Montreal Book Auctions Ltd., shows off one of the rare books that he sells with a touch of showmanship. Mr. Amtmann says one volume being offered at his next sale could bring as much as $10,000. But there are other books of Canadiana ranging upwards from $15. (CP Photo)

Montreal Dealer Sells Rare Books

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernard Amtmann, who has brought a touch of showmanship and genteel razzmatazz to the sparsely-peopled Canadian world of rare books and manuscripts, will conduct his next sale Thursday, offering such treasures as:

"The incredible, utterly astonishing, absolutely fascinating true adventures of Francois Mercier, Mons Mercier, Michel Laberge, Ephrem Gravel and Napoleon Robert, that group of French-Canadians trading into Alaska from 1808 to 1866.

"With remarkable details about climate, living conditions and all pertinent characteristics of the region known as the Territory of Alaska, the Aleutian Islands, the shores of the Bering Sea and the Yukon River, together with interesting descriptions of the work of the fur traders. . . .

"The Mercier volume will be among 211 items, big and small, at the first sale to be conducted by Montreal Book Auctions Ltd., founded by Mr. Amtmann, who confessed with a smile that he sometimes uses blackmailer language in a worthy cause.

The 57-year-old Austrian-born bookseller, recently honored by the University of Sas-katchewan with an honorary doctorate in law, told a reporter Canadians are cavalier about the literary treasures of their heritage.

Reverently, he handed over for examination the Alaska volume, written in a beautifully-flowing hand by Francois Mercier, whose exploratory exploits were exploited by the Montreal French-language newspaper La Presse in the 1890s.

"How many people know that Canadians were exploring Alaska one year after the U.S. bought it from Russia and one year after Confederation?" demanded Mr. Amtmann.

The Mercier volume is going at a suggested price of between $5,000 and $10,000. Another book, with an auction price roughly $900 to $1,200, chronicles the trial and apparently unjust execution for high treason of one David McLane, a British-born American who was hanged, drawn and quartered at Quebec City in 1797.

Like every Amtmann auction, however, the sale will include items of Canadiana from $10 up—Indian tales, an 1884 atlas of Toronto—and miscellaneous books, such as first editions of Charles Dickens novels.

"I have not become rich in this work," said Mr. Amtmann, who came to Canada in the late 1940s after serving in the French Army and Resistance, beginning business in Ottawa by buying pamphlets with a borrowed $40.

The lean, self-educated scholar—he left school at 14—said he is mystified at the lack of interest by Canadians in historical works. Buyers showed only derisory interest, for instance, in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's love letters and an early story of Montreal's Molson family.

"They are willing to pay for the work of an established painter to hang on their walls but not for a book. A book is knowledge. I truly don't know the reason for this attitude. Is it part of our celebrated inferiority complex?"

Mr. Amtmann's dream is the compilation of a National Bibliography of Canada, something to compare with the British Museum Catalogue, the catalogue of the Bibliotheque Nationale de France and the American Library of Congress catalogue of printed cards.

He has launched this project on his own, having published five volumes of 20,000 items of Canadiana. But he pleads for help—perhaps from a foundation, university or government—on the ground that the "work is one of national proportion far exceeding our measure."

"It would be an immense undertaking but its completion would provide Canadian scholarship with an immensely useful tool," wrote one Montreal book-reviewer.

"I will continue alone if nobody comes, but it would be so nice to have assistance," Mr. Amtmann said at the Sherbrooke Street headquarters of Montreal Book Auctions, founded in 1967.

Three-day Work Week Helpful

LONDON (CP) — Many lessons have been learned by management and labor as a result of the three-day work week last winter, says a survey by the United Kingdom's National Economic and development Office (NEDO).

NEDO, the general staff of the National Economic and Development Council, which brings together both sides of industry and government ministers, started the survey after the three-day week arising from the electricity shortage to learn lessons.

Management used every strategy to save coal and workers reacted favorably, the survey said.

"The key to success was thorough consultation with employees in changes in hours and work schedules," it said.

"In about half the mechanical engineering factories surveyed, hourly output showed a seven per cent growth and in one case 15 per cent.

"Increased output was attributed by management and employees mainly to increased effort to maintain earnings. The longer shifts were regarded as conducive to increased effort. Other factors were co-operation with management in on-the-spot improvisation, and greater acceptance of responsibility by workers.

"The horizons of management and trade union thinking have been widened," concluded the survey.

Deaf Technician Jack of All Trades

CALGARY (CP) — Dave Burnett has learned welding, carpentry and tyning. He's been a barber, proofreader, printer and electrical construction helper. Now he's an orthodontic technician.

He wanted to be a lawyer.

But Dave is deaf. Don't call him hearing-handicapped. He prefers hard of hearing, hearing impaired or simply deaf.

Dave has come to terms with the silent world he entered when he was 3½. That's when he lost his hearing, six months after an attack of German measles.

But Dave is doing all-he can to help other deaf people. Since September, 1974, he's been publishing a magazine, The Deaf Canadian. It's a spare-time job that takes most of his free time.

Circulation has climbed to about 30,000 in Canada, the United States and Great Britain.

Deafness is an invisible handicap, so people often think a deaf person is retarded.

"Most deaf people are in the group of Grade 5 level in the view of hearing people. Most of them learned the vocational trades at the deaf school, but most or them are rejected because most employers think these people are retarded."

Dave writes it all down. Sometimes his sentences are jerky in style since sign language, his natural method of communicating, has its own grammar, different from English grammar.

"Most (deaf people) work as bakery laborers, gardeners, helpers, never go higher than that," Dave writes. "Examples at the deaf school, but most of them are rejected because most employers think these people are retarded."

If I work in office downstairs, I would get that desk all my life, no matter what. . . ."

Dave is lucky—he's got an employer who thinks there is no difference between hearing and deaf people, except that people must it takes longer to train the deaf. The employer is willing to take the time since Dave has proved so skilful at making prosthetic appliances.

July 22 Deadline Fixed

Ontario Nurses Set Strike Date

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Ontario Nurses Association (ONA) said Wednesday night that the group's negotiating committee had set a strike deadline of Monday July 22, if a settlement with 39 provincial hospitals is not forthcoming.

Anne Grisben, chief spokesman for the negotiating committee, said she had been directed by the association membership to announce that "unless a settlement is reached in the dispute .... by midnight July 22, nurses will be forced to withdraw their services."

Nurses are prohibited by law from striking because they are deemed essential service workers.

Philip Rickard, RGH executive director, said he was still awaiting a report from the hospital's representative at the discussions.

Contract negotiations involving RGH's 380 nurses started late last year. Arbitration had been scheduled for today, before the Toronto talks were announced early last week.

She said the July date for action had been set so that employers would have "ample time" to complete negotiations.

"We as nurses are very responsible individuals", she said. "Think of the patient first and in all way would we take such action", she said.

Kay Lamb, ONA assistant director of employment, said Wednesday that a salary proposal had been rejected earlier in the day because the contract did not bring peace with an agreement reached last month between the hospitals and 6,000 non-professional employees.

She said the basic problem in negotiations with the hospitals has been their refusal to maintain the salary difference between the province's 19,000 registered nurses and its registered nursing assistants, covered under last month's contract with the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

Miss Lewis said the nursing assistants made about 70 per cent of a registered nurse's salary before the agreement with CUPE.

"What this latest offer has done is that on Jan. 1, 1974, RNAs will be making 80.8 per cent of an RN's salary and on Sept. 1, 1975 will be making 86.5 per cent," Miss Lewis said.

The proposal provides for an increase of between $240 and $288 a month in five stages over two years, depending on experience.

Salaries for graduated nurses would increase to $990 a month from $828, effective Sept. 1, 1975. Nurses with three years experience would receive an increase of $280 a month to $976 Sept. 1, 1975, and those with five or more years experience would get $1,040—an increase of $280.

The ONA has asked for a minimum starting salary of $850 a month this year and $1,-050 in 1975.

Miss Lewis said the increases offered amount to 36 per cent on a minimum salary and 38 per cent on a maximum, adding the comparable figures under the CUPE contract are 54 per cent and 58 per cent.

News Briefs

Poisoner Sought

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Seven refinery workers in nearby Port Credit who suddenly fell ill on the job this spring were poisoned by arsenic in their tea, police said Wednesday. They said they are seeking "a mentally deranged person" in connection with the poisonings, at first blamed on a gas leak.

Probe Head Named

TORONTO (CP) — Judge Wilfred Wesley Leach, a county court judge for Haliburton, has been named to head the provincial inquiry into the Grand River flooding, Resources Minister Leo Bernier announced Wednesday.

Pot Found in Cave

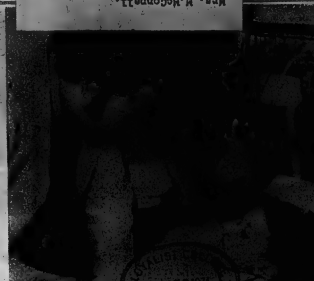
ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Dr. Arthur Carr and Angelita Carr, of no fixed addresses, were charged Wednesday with importing an illegal drug into Canada following seizure earlier in the day of two kgs. of material, believed to be marijuana, found in a shoreside cave about 25 miles south of here.

Mayor Buys Flies

ANKARA (Reuter) — The mayor of Cizre in eastern Turkey is offering to pay $40 for every 2.2 pounds of flies caught by his townsfolk. "It's the most effective way of solving the town's fly problem," he told reporters.

Mexico Freezes Price

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government has ordered a price freeze on all basic consumer products until Jan. 1 in a bid to combat inflation that is running at 22 per cent.



Going to Hospital

Nixon Arrives in Moscow To Find Brezhnev Waiting

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon arrived in Moscow today for his third summit meeting with Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev. The president hopes his visit will produce a partial ban on underground nuclear explosions and a slowdown on nuclear arms development by the two superpowers.

Brezhnev was at Vnukovo Airport, decked with United States and Soviet flags, to welcome the president.

About 400 persons were at the airport to greet Nixon.

Nixon first reviewed a guard of honor, which hailed him with the cheer, "We wish you health." He then heard a military band play the Soviet and U.S. national anthems. Then he and his wife shook hands with some of the people in the crowd, who were waving small U.S. and Soviet flags.

At the president's first Moscow summit, in May, 1972, the Soviet accorded Nixon a cool, correct welcome and Soviet Premier Nikolai Podgorny was the chief greeter.

This time Brezhnev's appearance at the airport was seen as a sign of regard for the president since protocol did not require the presence of the Communist party leader.

Nixon's morning flight to the Soviet capital followed consultations in Brussels Wednesday with the Atlantic alliance and the ceremonial signing of a declaration pledging wider cooperation within NATO.

The Moscow summit was generally viewed as a means of maintaining the momentum of the Soviet-American detente launched by Nixon's first trip to the Soviet capital and featured by Brezhnev's return visit to the United States last year. No major breakthroughs are expected this time.

State Secretary Henry Kissinger told a news conference in Brussels Wednesday that the summit will not produce a permanent ban on offensive missiles. And until such an agreement is reached, he said, "we are prepared to continue in the arms race as long as we must."

Nixon and Brezhnev were to begin their talks in the late afternoon in the Kremlin. There will be a state dinner tonight, more talks Friday and Saturday, and then Brezhnev will take the visitors to a Black Sea resort near Yalta for the weekend. The president is to leave for Washington Wednesday.

In what appeared to be a gesture to Nixon, the Soviet government Wednesday freed one of Russia's leading fighters for civil rights, Mal.-Gen. Pyotr Grigorenko, after holding him for five years in prisons and mental institutions. But, meanwhile, the government has rounded up more than two dozen Jewish dissidents in an attempt to prevent embarrassing demonstrations during Nixon's visit.

Big German Bank Folds

BONN (Reuter) — The collapse of one of West Germany's biggest private banks has given rise to fears that other banking institutes in the country may have run into difficulties.

Bankhaus Herstatt KG of Cologne was officially ordered to stop business transactions Wednesday and turn in its banking licence because it had run up heavy losses in foreign-exchange deals.

The move, ordered by the federal supervisory office for the banking industry and announced by the central bank, prompted speculation that Herstatt was not the only bank in trouble over foreign-exchange transactions.

The central bank announcement said Herstatt's business unofficially estimated a total at least 200 million marks (about $82.1 million) in connection with forward-exchange deals, a form of currency speculation.

Queen Mother Says Crown Symbol for All

TORONTO (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth is having a full day of public appearances Wednesday with a three-hour ceremonial dinner for 1,000 guests of the Toronto Scottish and the Royal Scots.

The 73-year-old Queen Mother, Colonel-in-Chief of the regiment, received a warm welcome, gifts and much praise from invited guests and thousands who lined streets throughout the day.

Her Majesty told dinner guests the unity of the Commonwealth lies in expression "through such loyal and endearing associations as yours—fraternal, benevolent and military."

The select company included Lt.-Gov. Pauline McGibbon, former governor-general Roland Michener, Toronto Mayor David Crombie and officers and wives of Toronto regiments, who dined on an eight-course meal of Cornish game hen and French wines.

The Queen Mother said Canadians, who cherish links with Great Britain, help "all Canadians to see the Crown as a symbol of national sovereignty belonging to Canadian citizens of every national origin and ancestry."

Canadians from non-Commonwealth nations are able to choose "their various ways of being Canadians, respecting others, but not forsaking their own traditions," she said.

"They owe much to their own efforts, but they are also sharing an inheritance" which the Loyal Societies help to preserve.

"You are all part of a new and developing Canada which at heart is still the Canada for which I fell in love when I first came here 35 years ago."

Copter Pilot Freed

ADDIS ABABA (Reuter) A Canadian helicopter pilot captured by the Eritrean separatist Eritrean Liberation Front (E.L.F.) three months ago has been released and is in Sudan, a Canadian embassy spokesman said here today.

Donald Wedertort, 37, of Calgary, president of the Con-West Aviation Co., was released Wednesday night, apparently in the area of Kassala on the Sudanese-Ethiopian border and now is believed to be in Khartoum, he said.

Wedertort is "in good shape" and probably will leave shortly for a medical check-up in Europe, the spokesman said.

The E.L.F. is still holding one other Canadian and three Americans captured with Wedertort on March 8 when their helicopter landed in the Massawa area.

Two of the Americans and the other Canadian, Clifford James, 27, of Walkerton, Ont., were on a prospecting trip for the United States Tennoco Oil Co.

The other Canadian worked for the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) and was being held as a ploy for the pilot when they were captured.

The guerrillas have threatened to put the three Tennoco prospectors on trial of "exploiting Eritrean mineral resources."

Grant Wyatt, 30, also a Canwest pilot from Calgary, was captured by the E.L.F. May 27 but released eight days later.

An American nurse, Deborah Darchuck, 23, was freed last Saturday.

Wyatt was captured when he flew in a secret E.L.F. rendezvous hoping to obtain the release of Miss Darchuck and a second nurse.

Instead, he was forced to fly nurse Darchuck to an E.L.F. hideout. She had been kidnapped from a U.S.A. mission hospital near Asmara, capital of Eritrea province, the same day.

A Dutch nurse kidnapped with Mrs. Darchuck was shot dead. She was Anna Stickweda, 31.

Prairie Economy Gets Boost

SASKATOON (CP) — The Prairie economy received a boost Wednesday with an announcement that the Canadian Wheat Board has sold $208 million worth of grain to China.

Comment from agricultural industry spokesmen concentrated on what the sale means to grain producers after a difficult spring seeding period.

W. K. Turner, Saskatchewan Wheat Pool president, said in Regina the sale will pump about $165 million into the pockets of Saskatchewan grain farmers.

The announcement involves two contracts signed in Peking each calling for about 27 million bushels. One involves grain purchased earlier and was the second to be negotiated under a three-year purchase agreement signed last fall.

The three-year agreement calls for shipments of about 224 million bushels.

One of the contracts announced by Otto Lang was in addition to the amount a-greed to last fall under the long-term agreement—a new sale—and will bring the total sales to China during the calendar year to about 112 million bushels.

Roy Atkinson, of Saskatoon, National Farmers Union (NFU) president, said the sale will benefit Canada's economy.

Most non-rural Canadians generally consider such grain sales as putting money into the pocket of the farmer but they "must realize this injection of money helps all Canadians."

School Bus Operators Welcome Rhodes' Plan

HAMILTON (CP) — The School Bus Operator's Association of Ontario is "delighted" with proposed legislation that would require all vehicles to stop when a school bus stops, the association's executive director, Hugh A. Gordon, said Wednesday.

Mr. Gordon said his association, representing 80 per cent of the quota of 7,000 Ontario school buses, presented a brief a year ago favoring the move.

Transport Minister John Rhodes has proposed that the law requiring vehicles to stop when a school bus is stopped on roads where the speed limit is over 35 miles an hour be changed to require vehicles to stop regardless of the speed limit, except in major cities where traffic jams occur.

Mr. Rhodes said Wednesday he is considering legislation to enforce tougher standards for the construction of school buses, including higher seat backs to prevent whiplash injuries and padding on the backs of seats at minimum head heights.

Mr. Gordon said his association has been urging for years that a seat be provided for each child riding a school bus, and he said this would be essential if the government makes seat belts mandatory on school buses.

The government has proposed legislation making the wearing of seat belts mandatory but details of the legislation remain to be worked out.

Mr. Gordon said that many school buses now are overcrowded with students being forced to stand because local school boards do not have the money to provide seats for each rider.

He said the bus operators will provide buses meeting whatever standards of sensible and safe construction are required by the government.

But "there is no question that such buses will cost more," Mr. Gordon said. "We think that the public will also recognize that this will cost a little more on their school taxes."

Mr. Rhodes will meet with the association at its annual convention in London, Ont., on July 2 to discuss safety standards and costs of school buses in the province.

Railway Pension Inquiry Indicated

The federal government is to announce an industrial inquiry into railway pensions, Marie Kurchak, Liberal candidate in Hastings riding has told Belleville railroaders.

Labor Minister John Munro will appoint a commissioner to head the inquiry by the end of the week, Mrs. Kurchak told local members of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers at Engineers' Hall, Pine St.

The announcement was believed the first public intimation of the inquiry.

Mrs. Kurchak also had an original suggestion as to how local union members could make their own impact on the inquiry.

Videotape could be substituted for the standard, written brief, she said.

Rank-and-file members, often are not given a voice at such hearings but are represented by union executives. Drafting comprehensive briefs is time-consuming for local union memberships. But a videotape of members airing their problems in a group could be simply produced for the hearing.

"The impact upon the commissioner of seeing the workers on tape is much more powerful than just those of a written brief," Mrs. Kurchak said.

Light, Motor Stolen at Dock

Police say the two items, stolen within the past two days, are valued at $600. The boat is owned by Don Grant of Belleville.

Award Made Posthumously

In a special ceremony at the opening session of the twenty-third Annual Conference of Association of Chiefs of Police conference theatre, Ontario police officers posthumously presented its distinguished service award to Chief Gordon Preston, of the Windsor police force.

Chief Preston died in Windsor May 28.

The award was accepted by Gil Ouellette, a retired deputy chief of the Windsor police force.

New Seatbelt Law Previewed

A member of the provincial task force that is charged with drawing up the recommendations that will go into a law requiring Ontario motorists to buckle up their seat belts, gave the province's leading policemen a preview of that report Tuesday.

Speaking at the annual conference of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police, OPP Staff Superintendent Bill Goard, the task force's police liaison officer, said that policemen that Ontario residents would reduce traffic deaths by 27 per cent and could save as much as $56 million in medical and death costs if they would only buckle up their seat belts.

Basing his calculations on statistics compiled in Australia, where buckle-up legislation is in force, Mr. Goard told the policemen that a similar law in Ontario would save as many as 279 lives a year and would prevent 28,985 cases of personal injury a year.

He added that he felt the province would object to a buckle-up law only on the grounds of the practical enforcement problems it would create.

However, certain problems could be bypassed by exempting specific classes of drivers, Mr. Goard said.

The police themselves would not be forced to buckle up. They would be exempted from the seat belt legislation much as they are exempted from speeding regulations.

Police emergency vehicles would not have to be equipped with shoulder harnesses, since they could be used as a gar rotte by prisoners.

School buses, physically and medically disabled motorists, people who drive in reverse, and delivery men engaged in door-to-door delivery would also be exempted from the legislation, Mr. Goard said.

A delivery man would have to buckle up, however, if he exceeded an as yet unspecified speed limit between stops.

The use of seat belts would be mandatory for all persons in a car who weight more than 40 pounds.

Out of province drivers will also be made to buckle when they travel in Ontario.

If a person is caught driving without a seat belt he will be subject to fines or imprisonment as outlined in the provincial penalty section of the Highway Traffic Act.

An infraction of the proposed buckle-up law would not carry any demerit point, Mr. Goard said.

"It's going to be unpopular enough," he added.

Belleville police chief Doug A. Crosbie summarized the policemen's reaction to the proposals presented by Mr. Goard when after the conference he said:

"The problem for the police is the enforcement of such a law. As far as the policemen are concerned it's not a 'do as I do' but a 'do as I say' law. Plus the fact that when you pull a car over to the curb, by the time you get out of the police car and walk back, he probably has the belt on."

"One of the main concerns is that it is going to cause a greater gulf between the citizen and the police," the chief continued "Of course that depends on the way the law is sold."

Another problem noted by the chief is the fact that, currently, there is no law forcing a passenger to identify himself to the police. Thus, a policeman could issue a ticket to a driver, using his licence, but would not be able to do the same thing with a passenger.

The proposed buckleup law first appeared in the March 2 speech from the throne.

Mr. Goard is one of the six members of an interdepartmental task force, involving four separate ministries, that has been charged with making recommendations for the new law.

Mr. Goard said after the conference that he expects the committee will submit its recommendations to the provincial transportation before the end of the year.

Drug Abuse in Province Growing Police Problem

Ontario's top ranking police officers expressed concern with the rising incidence of drug abuse in the province yesterday when they met at the Quinte Seasons Hotel for the second full day of the annual conference of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police.

The conference was told yesterday that in 1973 there were 1,700 arrests and a total of 24,088 charges under the Narcotic Control Act and the Food and Drug Act.

That figure represented an increase, over the previous year, of 150 per cent in the number of charges laid under the Narcotic Control Act and an increase of 74 per cent in the number of charges laid under the Food and Durg Act, Deputy Police Chief Albert Welsh, of the Hamilton Wentworth Regional Police Force, told the conference.

"These figures clearly indicate a tremendous increase in the amount of drugs seized by police in this country," Deputy Chief Welsh said. "What is of particular concern is the increase in the amount of heroin and cocaine in circulation."

Last year alone, Ontario police seized 68.4 kilograms of heroin and 22.25 kilograms of cocaine. In 1972 the figure for heroin seizures was 52.9 kilograms, while that for cocaine was only 8.67 kilograms.

Three police officers who have what extensive experience in drug law enforcement addressed the presentation of the drug abuse committee report and told the delegates that they felt drug abuse was probably the most serious problem facing police in Ontario.

Michael Bruke, the police officer in charge of the drug squad in Number 1 District in Metro Toronto, told the conference that drug trafficking was a business at Ontario.

Referring to a recent crop raid in the Kingston area, in which police uncovered a laboratory that was used to manufacture methamphetamine (speed), Mr. Burke said the police raided the lab and raid alone resulted in the seizure of about 50 pounds of speed that was in the last stages of manufacture.

"The eventual street value of that speed would be $5,000,000" he said. "Just imagine that money coming from bank robberies, break and enters theft and other crimes in the area. That is where most of it has to come from.

"What we as police agencies must do, and actually, I feel we have, but we must continue to do it is to recognize a source outlet, attempt to determine its source," Mr. Burke continued. "We can't however, ignore the small dealer. I know of many instance where yesterday's small dealer is today's big dealer."

Sgt. John Grubl, of the Hamilton-Wentworth Police and Ben Soawe, an RCMP, undercover agent from Ottawa also spoke to the conference on the drug problem and told the police chiefs that they should seriously consider using more undercover agents in drug enforcement.

"The criminals have the criminal code to protect them," Mr. Soawe said. "What we need is more money, more informants, more undercover agents, and a hell of a lot of understanding from our superiors. With professionalism we the undercogs, can beat the drug trafficker at his own game."

The police chiefs association will conclude its annual conference tomorrow.

Items on Thursday's agenda include a report on organized crime to be delivered by W.R. Lee of the Ontario Police Commission, presentation of the resolutions committee report and installation of the association's new executive.

YOU CAN'T TAKE A VACATION FROM DENTAL HEALTH
Proper dental hygiene is a 365 day job. By adopting a few new habits you can help eliminate tartar and cavities. We all know about decay, but what about plaque? This is a combination of bacteria and food which collects on the teeth and gum line. If not removed it will destroy the bony support of the teeth. Your teeth and their health can be loosened and lost.
Brushing helps remove plaque but cannot reach crevices between teeth. Disclosure tablets, dissolved in the mouth show where plaque has collected. Floss is a thread-like material that is used to remove that which has been left.

Quaker Oats Contract Issue

Union Rejects Company Offer

Workers, during an overnight meeting, rejected a three year contract which would have given them a 35 cent hourly wage increase over two years plus a further eight per cent increase in fringe benefits immediately.

The company offer was not acceptable but said he would arrange another meeting.

The latest offer came as an answer to union demands after a conciliation report failed to get union support.

The union may call a legal strike 15 days' following receipt of the conciliation report.

Mr. Prentice said "it is not likely" another offer will be made before July 1, the date when strike action becomes legal.

Mr. LeBlanc said it is "likely" the union will go on strike if this is the case. "A strike is quite possible," he said.

Trenton Mall Brings Hint of Annexation

TRENTON — Annexation has been hinted as Trenton attempts to assemble land for the announced east end shopping mall.

At Monday night's council meeting it was mentioned a meeting should be held as soon as possible with Sidney township in an attempt to clear up details.

Mayor Robert Patrick said Wednesday the meeting between his council and Sidney township will be to consider annexation of the "small parcel of land."

Wellington Derby for Fish

WELLINGTON — A bass derby sponsored by the Wellington district Lions Club will be held June 29-30 and July 1.

The derby offers prizes for the first and second largest bass and the total weight of six. First prize is an electric outboard motor.

Weigh-in station for this event will be Wellington Dock from 12 to 1:30 p.m. and 8 to 9:30 p.m. Tickets for the event are available at The Sportsman Drive-In, Stuart's Sports Shop, Cook's Sunoco and Hiles Grocery.

No date has been set for the meeting.

The shopping plaza, to be built in conjunction with the Loblaw store on the town's eastern boundary, received land from Trenton, the national defence department and the township.

At this time, permits have been received from the three parties.

Sidney Reeve Gord Wilman said Wednesday the municipality gave the building permit and expects to share taxes from the mall on a percentage basis with Trenton.

The draw was on the Irish Sweepstakes.

The Belleville ticket number is EKP 48808 and the non-deposit is Pontiac. It was drawn on the horse, Ardagoh.

Three Canadians hold tickets on "nominal" Prince, the race's 3-1 favorite; six have tickets on the second-place choice Carnedon and six on third-place choice Misdemeanor.

First prize is $2,000 second 30,000 and third 10,000. Based on the current rate of exchange, that would be about $119,000, $47,600 and $23,800 in Canadian funds.

Fine Arts Centre Opening

ACTINOLITE — The Schneider School of Fine Arts opens its 12 summer session this weekend.

Mary Schneider, honorary director and hostess, will welcome vacation painters and their families.

Her instructor, John Taylor, the Ontario College of Art curator on the Osborne Art Gallery director, will be on hand to be instructor for Labor Day weekend.

Mrs. Schneider, internationally-known Polish painter resident in Canada since 1939, and her late Roman Schneider established the school in 1953 with students and art patrons including former governor general Roland Michener.

In recognition of its cultural contribution to the art community, the Ontario Arts Council recently awarded $2,500 for painting instructors. Also among these noted professional artists are Anita Carson, Alexander Miffar, John Gould, Carl Schaeffer, Don Fraser, John A. Hall and Gottom Otto.

This area has a wide variety of subject matter for outdoor painters — a river with rapids, cliffs and a dam, wooded slopes, ravines, bridges and pioneer log cabins.

Two Held After Chase 70 Miles from Madoc

MADOC — Provincial Police have arrested two young Woodstock men following an early morning 70-mile chase along Highway 7, which started at the Black River Road four miles east of Madoc.

In the 1970 Buick auto, reported stolen at Lindsay, Ont., was a sawed-off rifle, said police.

Two officers from the Madoc detachment of the OPP attempted to check the vehicle at 1:30 a.m. But the car took off and when a chase at over 100-miles-per-hour failed to overtake the vehicle, police radioed ahead to Shannonbridge where spiked boards ran through road blocks set up by both Quarter Line and Perth police before the car was stopped by Ottawa district OPP.

Tweed Bridge Tenders Expected by September

Tenders for reconstruction of Tweed village's bridge across the Moira River are expected to be called in the late summer.

Frank Pinder, Hastings County engineer, said that provincial government approval for the structure has been received and, hopefully, tenders could be called in September.

Reconstruction of the Tweed truss bridge has been urged by its village council for many years. The new three-lane bridge will be constructed below the mill dam. It will provide more direct traffic connection for the community's arena and fairgrounds.

The bridge will be reconstructed as a local project rather than as a county structure and will bring an 80-per-cent provincial subsidy.

The county roads and bridges committee has also received a request for the replacement of the county-owned bridge at Latta as a local bridge and has agreed in principle to the request.

The firm of M. M. Dillon and Associates of Bancroft have been awarded the engineering contract and initially will report on the existing bridge.

Also the roads committee has been pursuing a project to either replace or carry out major maintenance on the Glen Miller Bridge over the Trent River north of Frankford.

Greer Galloway and Associates, engineering consultants, have presented a report to the committee recommending the bridge's replacement. The county engineer has been directed to make application to the transportation and communications ministry for funds to subsidize the project.

Picton Prepares Playgrounds

PICTON — A summer playground program featuring nine parks will open July 8 in Prince Edward County.

Operated by the recreation and parks committee the playgrounds will be held at Benson Park, Picton Fairgrounds, Rotary Park, St. Gregory's, Queen Elizabeth public school, Delhi Park, Hamilton School in Bloomfield, Sophiasburgh school and Athol school.

The program will run from July 8 to August 23 and registration can register on 30-per-cent provincial subsidy.

Bishops For Centennial

MARMORA — Bishop E. W. Scott, Primate of Canada, will be in Marmora Sunday, to take part in St. Paul's Church centennial celebrations.

The Bishop will speak on both occasions.

At the 11 o'clock morning service Bishop John Creegan of Kingston, will conduct confirmation service.

Streams Yield Conservation Data

But, despite record rains this month, two young women are pushing ahead with the tasks of testing local waterways in this provincial forestry district.

Cathy Davis, 22, and Pat McMillan, 26, are on assignment for the natural resources ministry, stiling conservation information from the Shootamatta River and its tributary streams.

They put on-the-spot chemical tests and counts of fish life, vegetation, water temperatures — an inventory that will provide ministry biologists with basic data on what affects water quality.

Details revealed by such minute scrutiny have broader implications. They could be used to assess what happens to waterways with shoreline development and in fish management programs. As part of an ingoing, province-wide survey.

The two girls live close to their work. They've camped out in Bon Echo provincial park, near the headwaters of the Shootamatta. From there, they work up and down the meandering, picturesque little waterway that is part of the Moira River watershed.

Much of their work calls for portages and canoeing, a skill they're rapidly developing by experience, says Cathy, a Stirling — area native and science graduate of Guelph University.

While it's high season for insects in the bush, it's not the bugs that bother them both as much as weather. Heavy rain at times has bogged down their work and so far, it hardly seems like summer, says Cathy.

It's the second successive year, stream studies have been done in this district. Last year, an inventory was taken of the Salmon River, which rises near Northbrook and flows down to the Bay of Quinte near Shannonville.

Already the information logged has produced some "surprising" indications for the ministry, says district biologist Frank Cheshire.

The Salmon survey showed signs that fish productivity may be less than was believed. This may indicate that the nutrients needed to foster fish life may be lower in streams with headwaters in Canadian Shield country, he says.

RETARDED CAN EARN

TORONTO — (CP) — A new $400,000 shelter and workshop in the borough of North York will provide jobs for 100 mentally retarded adults who will be able to earn up to $1,000 a month in pocket money. The jobs include all types of light assembly work, packaging and drill press operations.

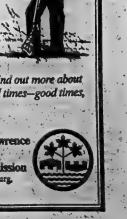
Old times- Good times Not so far away.

You're less than a day's drive from a 1st class vacation experience that lets you get back to nature, make your home by the waters, and savour life as it used to be.

The St. Lawrence Parks Commission, which cares for Old Fort Henry, Upper Canada Village, and 14 major park sites between Lake Ontario and the Quebec border, invites you to consider our riverside pastimes.

The Parks: more than 6000 acres of green-space, linked by scenic drives and never far from



The Heritage Hwy. (No. 2), or the 401, offer campers picnic grounds, beaches, golf and many fully serviced sites.

Upper Canada Village near Morrisburg (401 exits 119 and 120), brings together in one place the story of pioneer Ontario. Among the 40 odd authentic buildings and a host of costumed Upper Canadians busy at their crafts, you will feel very much a part of the 1800's.

Old Fort Henry at Kingston, with access via exit 104, features precision drills daily by the famed Fort Henry Guard. On Wednesdays and Saturdays until Labour Day, with the exception of August 21 and 24, a spectacular sunset retreat ceremony will be staged.

Community Resources

A major problem of our society is the polarization of government, at every level, and the private.

For governments hold the purse strings and the public, for all its democratic representation and say in how things will be spent, really is on the losing end.

We are a dependent society, psyched out from much show of individualism or personal initiative by the attitude that government knows best — and in any event controls the coffers.

At the community level, centralization, supposedly in the name of efficiency, its effect concentrates power in the hands of the few, saps any influence the public out there might claim to exert, and provides ammunition for community pundits.

Of course nothing gets done without money. Oh yes there are volunteers for this and that — and every community has its unsung heroes in this category — but for the most part it is the hand of the skilled professional that is behind the initiatives and achievements of our world. That means financial outlay; it is idle to expect something for nothing.

The protection of society of which we speak has been intensified through welfare and the wellbeing of individualism through concentration of power and decision-making in the hands of government.

Yet how much more could be achieved if that section of the public which after a fashion is disenfranchised and spends its time either in apathetic lmoonscrn, or in noisy dissent, could harness its forces for community advancement.

There is a need for more of the old initiative, whether it is directed toward the needs of the young, or in the interest of recreation, establishment of a club, civic-in cents or whatever. This does not mean we should drop the old patterns of community improvement and criticism, but rather that we harness as well new areas of motivation and community concern.

Time And a Place

There is a time and a place for everything and it is our view that a beer garden at the annual sidewalk sale next month does not fit either of those circumstances.

Council has acted wisely in rejecting such a proposal. We are not saying that things could get out of hand, although we agree with Ald. John Stock that that is always a possibility. But rather, the spectacle of a beer outlet in the great outdoors of our downtown, when daily the word increasingly is of liquor as a factor in our staggering accident statistics, is inappropriate to say the least.

Maybe sometime in the future the drinking habits of Canadians will have matured sufficiently to permit such an outdoor facility; however that degree of sophistication has not been reached as yet. There are bets enough as it is, without establishing offers outdoors. Perish the thought, the next thing every outdoor event will demand similar privileges. It would be a dangerous precedent.

Since the drinking age was lowered to 18 there has been something of a stampede among the younger set to take advantage of this. No matter that for the most part they do not abuse the privilege, the fact is liquor remains a contributory element in too many accidents. A couple of beers may not incapacitate a person, but they will certainly make a difference in a person's reflexes, and that may be all it takes to put someone on the road to tragedy.

Any afternoon in Belleville will find young people 18 and over getting together for a drink. At the same time efforts are being made on a national scale to "get Canada moving again," meaning walking and an interest in physical fitness. An afternoon in the pub, drinking (and chalking) is hardly compatible with such aff'ideal. We can-not have it both ways.

Cabinet Men Cut Down To Size At Nomination Meetings

By DONALD JACKSON
OTTAWA — Odd thing about federal cabinet ministers.

They have to lead double lives.

Time to the National Capital they are the Big Time Operators.

Then even then the cream of Big Labor and Big Business, who personify Monopoly Capital, are the people who work; but who, when they journey here, come politically for concessions from those to high public places who must be the biggest of all.

These Big Time Operators of the bureaucracy preside over, when all is said and done, a very small pond.

They have frame-makers — one ex-minister, I did, facks on their staff — to make their portraits look distinguished.

They have frame-makers — one ex-minister, I did, facks on their staff — to make their portraits look distinguished.

They even have

Inflation.

Something can be done!

Here's what Robert Stanfield will do:

The basic requirement is for a government that will take action to protect the Canadian people from rising costs and the steady drain upon their incomes. That's our purpose and our policy.

- We will eliminate government waste and inefficiency, and bring in a balanced budget;
- We will place a freeze on prices and incomes for a period of ninety days;
- In consultation with the provinces, with the unions and with industry, we will move to a more flexible policy of price controls and income restraints following the freeze for a period of up to two years;
- We will employ the monetary and fiscal powers of the government to ensure continued economic expansion and encourage both personal savings and private incentive;
- We will eliminate the sales tax on clothing and footwear;
- We will remove the 11% sales tax on building materials;
- We will implement measures to encourage production of goods in short supply.

Through our policies the Canadian economy will be strengthened, the Canadian wage-earner will not fall behind in the race with living costs, as is happening today, and the value and worth of the social benefits which are essential to so many Canadians will be preserved.

The Liberal Party's campaign—and the evidence of this will become stronger as the days go by—is a campaign of desperate division and deception. Mr. Trudeau is appealing to the complacency of the strong, the fears of the weak, and the selfishness of special interests.

"We're asking the Canadian people to support us and face up to the problem of inflation, to take the burden of inflation from the backs of those least able to bear it, to support a period of sensible restraint and a program of firm action.

"For a country of such promise and opportunity, it does not seem to me that this is the time for us to perpetuate disparity and economic injustice. This is a time to stand together, and work together, so that Canada can be an example to the world of what a great nation can achieve through the unity of its people and the strength of their free institutions."

Robert Stanfield, June, 1974

Who says controls won't work?

The Press says:

"The recent rise in the cost of living proves that the measures brought in by the Trudeau government are insufficient. It is evident now that the Trudeau government's ad hoc measures will not contain inflation. Before saying no to controls, the Canadian voters should ask themselves if they are not the best way to prevent even harder policies that could be called for a renewed aggravation of the inflationary spiral."

Claude Ryan, Le Devoir June 15, 1974

"The price and wage control debate in the election campaign is having at least one good effect: It is separating the men from the politicians. Robert Stanfield has proved beyond doubt that he is a man first and a politician second...the voters are coming to know who are the men and who are the pussy-footing politicians on the most vital issue confronting Canada today."

Winnipeg Tribune June 13, 1974

Mr. Trudeau is trying to sell leadership, but only Mr. Stanfield has offered it. Mr. Stanfield's handling of the inflation issue has been an example of determined, balanced and foresighted leadership."

Montreal Gazette June 15, 1974

"This election campaign is no flower-garden variety popularity contest...It is a deadly serious fight for the salvation of an economic system that has given us one of the best standards of living in the world. To jeopardize that system by dithering while inflation rages—which is what the Trudeau-Lewis alliance did—is to court social and economic disaster. Chaos will be the result if this government is returned."

John Belanger, Toronto Sun May 27, 1974

"The only hope of breaking this (inflation) cycle is government intervention, and the best form of this intervention still appears to be a comprehensive and flexible system of prices and incomes controls, following a total, but temporary freeze."

Toronto Star June 21, 1974

International Authorities say:

"No administration can survive on a 10.8% inflation rate...I would certainly use wage and price controls."

Economist John Kenneth Galbraith May 26, 1974

"The fact that the President may have made the mistake of failing to use controls broadly is no reason for Congress to make an equally bad mistake. The U.S. needs controls under present conditions."

U.S. Congressman Wilbur Mills Chairman of House Ways and Means Committee June 11th, 1974

"This is a serious situation which confronts the nation today, and, in my opinion, a mandatory system of wage and price controls should be imposed."

U.S. Senator Mike Mansfield Dem. Majority Leader April 22, 1974

"The oddest feature of the present crisis is that it follows a year in which Britain has beaten the world in controlling domestic inflation. In Britain home-made inflation is 3.4%."

The Economist November 17, 1973

"For a real breakthrough in the struggle against inflation, it may prove essential to supplement monetary and fiscal policies by some form of income policy to act directly on prices and wages which are not determined competitively."

H. J. Witteveen Chairman and Managing Director The International Monetary Fund

"The control system has contributed very significantly to the deceleration of inflation in the United States both of wages and prices. Our studies conclude that the wage and price control program has slowed the inflation rate by 1 to 3 percent over the period in which they operated."

Provincial Premiers say:

"Tough measures are needed and they are needed now...the government of Saskatchewan is prepared to cooperate fully with any federal government on any joint effective methods to beat inflation...selective price controls should be linked with federal income controls."

Premier Blakeney of Saskatchewan February 25, 1974 (Regina Leader-Post)

"We cannot just sit back and complain. We must act. The control of prices and incomes has never been attempted in time of peace and I favour trying it now on a temporary basis."

Premier Schreyer of Manitoba May 23, 1974 (Winnipeg Free Press)

"I am on record as supporting price and incomes controls as long as four years ago."

Premier Schreyer, June 7, 1974

"The Premier (Barrett of British Columbia) endorsed the establishment of guidelines for wages, prices, profits and interest, with some mechanism for enforcement.

"This," Barrett said, "will require a good deal of common sense, economic research and hard-headed decision making."

Vancouver Sun May 13, 1974

"I don't happen to believe you can shrug your shoulders and say it's all international, that it's all happening elsewhere...Bob Stanfield is making an effort to do something about this problem. Ontario will in no way raise any constitutional objections. We will cooperate with the federal government."

Premier William Davis of Ontario, June 3, 1974

"The fact is that only the decisive and programmed check on inflation put forward by Mr. Stanfield will protect the value of the dollar you earn or the dollar you save. The 90-day freeze is absolutely essential as a beginning—in order to halt the erosion of your income and the merciless increase in prices. A temporary freeze of 90 days is the only way to stop the rot."

Trudeau says:

Pierre Trudeau himself said, on February 17, 1974: "The contingency plan—there is no mystery about it—is price and wage control."

On July 8th, vote for your P.C. candidate:

She's Active Campaigner, Gets Involved in Politics

Politics is almost a way of life for Lynne Gottfried but she claims she'd never have the strength to run herself.

"I don't know how Harvey does it," Mrs. Gottfried says of her husband, New Democratic Party candidate in Prince Edward-Hastings. "I'm seeing all kinds of struggles in the man I didn't see before."

Mrs. Gottfried has managed campaigns in other federal and provincial elections but this is the first time a member of the family has stood for election. This time round, Mrs. Gottfried is managing her husband's home-town Picton committee rooms.

A home girl, Mrs. Gottfried came to Picton from England at nine where she lived until finishing school at Prince Edward Collegiate. Afterwards, circumstances took her to Toronto, Calgary and finally Winnipeg where she met her husband and worked to elect his cousin, Ed Schreyer, now premier of Manitoba.

Back now in Picton, Mrs. Gottfried is currently expecting a second child — not Garth (a four — and volunteers at a local school where she teaches slow learners to read.

Her ex-ection may become vocation in the future when she hopes to return to school to finish a degree and attend teachers' college.

For the time being, however, Lynne Gottfried is busy with Garth and bridge and trying to learn to play golf — she played once, the day before the election was called and hasn't had time to get back to the greens since.

Risk Remains

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A Johns Hopkins team of researchers says that although the amount of estrogen in the average birth-control pill has been cut in half since the contraceptive came on the market, the risk of blood clots is just as great.

The researchers said a woman taking the average pill runs a six-fold greater risk of blood clots than a woman who doesn't. That is about the same risk she would have run with the old, stronger pill.

Dr. Mehryn Tochman, in a paper prepared for the American Medical Association convention in Chicago, said a perfectly safe pill apparently would be too weak to be effective.

He and three other scientists at the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health studied 461 pill-taking women and compared them with about 1,300 women who did not use the pill.

Successful Living

Husband Causes Trouble

Dear Doris: What should a woman do when her husband turns the family against her? I bear the mother of the kids telling them to stop fighting, but she has to swear at them before they stop.

Then the oldest tells her to shut up and the husband gets into the act and tells his wife to get out, that she is no good around here.

And tell me, does such a husband have a right to scoop into his wife's belongings and steal her money? She tells me she has to hide her purse to have enough money to pay for things.

She doesn't like to swear at the children but what else can she do, when she wants to get a little obedience?—Neighbor With a Headache.

Dear Neighbor: Swearing is not thought of as the ideal way of getting obedience! Nor does the ideal household contain a husband and father who helps himself to the family money. He is a burglar in his own home.

Being a neighbor that this woman can empathize to is not going to solve it — although you may temporarily keep that woman from going nuts. But she needs family counselling from a social worker who can help her to get a grip on herself and understand a little more about how to raise happy youngsters.

Ann Landers

Funeral Director Answers Back

Dear Ann Landers: I am a funeral director who disagrees with "Edith in Nebraska." First of all, embalming, which she calls "barbaric," is for sanitation purposes as well as for temporary preservation. Second, the viewing of the deceased, especially for members of the family, serves a vital psychological need and helps them accept the finality of death. Finally, the funeral service is for the living, not the dead. I believe the music, sermon and all decisions connected with the funeral should be made by those who are making the arrangements, and not by the one who has passed on.

The individual's wishes and preferences can, of course, be discussed with the family before death occurs, but if the family disagrees, the wishes of those left behind should take precedence, since they are the ones who are affected.—A Professional Orphan

Dear P.O.: I hate to dispute "a professional," but in my opinion each of us should have the right to decide what we want done with our remains. It's the last thing a family can do for a loved one.

Dear Ann Landers: Can Our Gal Sunday behave herself in that little mining town in Colorado without England's richest, most handsome Lord beside her every minute?

What about Mr. Wrightt? Can she convince Bess Pemberton that she stopped in at Joe's Bar with her bowling team just to have a beer and that she wasn't looking to get picked up?

And finally, what will Ann Landers say when she finds out that respectable women do go to cocktail lounges alone or with their women friends, buy their own drinks, mind their own business, and go home alone? Please, Kiddo, join the Women's Lib Movement.—Secret Admirer

Dear Secret: Loved your letter! You had nobody under 25 will know what you're talking about.

Of course there are exceptions, and you may be one, but most women who go to bars and cocktail lounges unescorted are looking for male company. This isn't to say they are looking for sex, but they are in search of a man to talk to. Men know this. They see an unescorted female in a lounge, they figure she's fair game. And she usually is.

Dear Ann Landers: I have something to say to the 18-year-old girl who says men drop her when she refuses to go to bed with them. Most men are especially 18-year-olds, are not libertines.

I have no doubt she has been propositioned (hasn't everybody?), but she probably behaves like Purity Raped, which, by the way and age, is to discuss. If a girl wants to keep a boy friend and is not interested in shacking up, she should explain that her moral principles won't allow her to sleep with him and it has nothing to do with how desirable he is.

Most men will respect her for it. If they don't, then she hasn't lost much. Bed-hopping is not for those with fragile egos or high principles. I know whereof I've been there.—Dulcinella

Dear Dulci: Thanks for another testimonial. My mail reflects that more and more women are beginning to realize that what they thought was sexual freedom turned out to be "enslavement." There's no such thing as a free lunch, girls.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT ADAMS

Adams — Lloyd

84 Margaret's-on-the-Hill Anglican Church was the setting May 25 for the marriage of Kathryn Joan Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lloyd, and Robert James Adams, son of Mrs. J. C. Adams and the late J. C. Adams.

Officiating at the service was Rev. A. A. Dunlop.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore a gown matching her suit, featuring a tucked bodice, long, ruffled sleeves accented with daisy and seed pearls, and a ruffled neckline. A chapel-length train and a chapel-length veil edged with daisies held by a Juliette cap and net roses completed the outfit. She carried pink roses, white carnations and daisies, pink gladiola and fern.

Kathleen Gardiner was maid of honor in a deep pink gown featuring ruffles over the shoulders and long fitted sleeves ending in a ruffled cuff. She wore a wide-brimmed pink hat and carried nosegays of daisies intertwined with pink ribbon.

The bride's sister Christine Lloyd and her cousin Lee Ann Stapley of Stirling served as bridesmaids in gowns similar to the maid of honor but in a paler shade of pink. They carried identical bouquets.

Serving as best man was the groom's brother Peter Adams. The ushers were Steven Lloyd, the bride's brother, Thomas Kerr and Thomas Matthews.

After a wedding trip to South Carolina, Mr. and Mrs. Adams will live at 94 Sydney Street.

MR. AND MRS. ROGER BROWN

Brown — Campey

Grace United Church in Trenton was the scene of the June 1 wedding of Marilyn Joan Campey and Roger Gary Brown. Rev. Frank Hobbs performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Campey, 8 Fourth Avenue, Trenton and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown, Spring Valley, Ontario.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of organza with ruffled neckline and sleeves, with sleeves, neckline and deep flounce edged with Swiss lace. Her cathedral length veil of tulle edged with Swiss lace was held in place with a satin embroidered cap with seed pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of orange crepe with white accessories.

Rosemary Jones, cousin of the bride, was the bridesmaid. She was dressed in an outfit matching the bride's.

The best man was Lindsay Imrie, and the ushers were Alan Campey, brother of the bride, and David Brown, cousin of the groom.

The couple will reside in Peterborough after a wedding trip to Quebec and Vermont.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL LANGMAN

Langman — Barbeau

The wedding of Lynn Frelene Barbeau and Michael Nolan Langman took place at St. Michael's Church May 18. Rev. Jim McGillivray performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Ray and Frances Barbeau and the groom is the son of Russ and Minerva Langman.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a high collar gown with full train and mauve and pink trim. She carried snapdragon, pink roses and baby's breath.

The best man was Larry Doran. The ushers were Rick Barbeau and Wayne Slorma.

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS HAINES

Haines — Burnham

The wedding of Elizabeth Anne Burnham and Francis Paul Haines took place in May at St. Michael the Archangel Church. Rev. Grainger officiated at the ceremony.

The maid of honor was Victoria Fish. Debbie Corbett and Kim Skinkle were bridesmaids.

After a wedding trip to Vancouver, the couple will reside at 222 Albert St.

COTTAGE CARE CRUCIAL

Second homes do not deserve second rate treatment, advises consumers' association of Canada. Cottages left unattended during the winter are often subjected to heavy snow loads which weaken structures. Hand-Me-Down furnishings from the city dwelling-lamps with frayed cords, chairs with protruding springs, wobbly beds are as much a hazard in your "home away from home". That second hand stove that keeps away the early morning chill may be spewing invisible and deadly carbon monoxide. CAC national office is located at 251 Laurier Ave. West, room 801, Ottawa, Ontario K1P 5J7.

Stewardesses Complain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The airline stewardesses' union protested Tuesday that an increase in sex-oriented airline advertising is degrading to stewardesses.

Kelly Roach, president of the Association of Flight Attendants, said the union, which represents flight attendants of 20 United States airlines, "is ready to take all appropriate actions, including lawsuits if necessary, to halt the spread of these disgraceful and discriminatory campaigns."

The union aimed its protest specifically at National and Continental airlines.

National ads feature a stewardess saying "Fly me" and a newer campaign uses the slogan "I'm going to fly you like you've never been flown before."

Continental uses the slogan "We'll really move our tail for you."

Lemieux Arrested

MONTREAL (CP)—Lawyer Robert Lemieux was arrested at his home Wednesday by Montreal police and taken to Bordeaux prison to begin serving a six-month sentence for contempt of court.

Mr. Lemieux originally was sentenced to 30 months in prison last July on nine counts of contempt of court following incidents in which his sa-gund and lassitud Mr. Justice Guy Mathieu and intimidated witnesses during the trial of Jacques Rose.

Quebec Court of Appeal Justices Paul Casey and Jean Beetz on Tuesday rejected the 32-year-old lawyer's appeal on eight counts of contempt of court during the trial of Rose, his client. They upheld his appeal on the ninth count,carrying a two-year sentence for intimidating witnesses.

Quebec Chief Justice Lucien Tremblay ruled that Mr. Lemieux was rightly convicted on all counts and that the 30-month sentence he received should stand.

On a 3-1 ruling, Mr. Lemieux' sentence was reduced to six months.

Rape Charges Are Reduced

TORONTO (CP) — Six Toronto men received jail terms of six months each Tuesday for indecently assaulting two 15-year-old girls.

The men were convicted of rape in 1973. They appealed, and a new trial in the Ontario Supreme Court was ordered.

Mr. Justice Edson Haines accepted their pleas of guilty to the lesser charge, saying:

"It was obvious that to go ahead with another trial would be a very painful, and perhaps harmful thing."

Assistant Crown attorney James Crossland said the mothers of the two girls involved informed him of their daughters' wishes not to go through another trial.

The men were members of the Vagabonds motorcycle club when the two girls were raped while visiting the group's clubhouse.

Woman Hurt

TORONTO (CP) — A woman, kicked in the stomach during a ruckus in the studios of CITY-TV June 16, suffered severe internal bleeding, police said today.

The fight broke out when about 30 Nazi-saluting members of the Western Guard disrupted a live audience-participation program and clashed with black musicians hired for the show.

Band leader Dwight Gabriel was struck with a metal pipe and needed hospital treatment. His wife, Terri, also was assaulted and suffered internal bleeding, police said.

Baby Killed

MATTAWA, Ont. (CP) — A two-month-old infant from nearby North Bay was killed and two persons slightly injured Tuesday in a single-car crash on Highway 17 three miles west of here.

Mattawa is 40 miles east of North Bay.

19 Forest Fires

TORONTO (CP) — The natural resources ministry reported Wednesday 19 forest fires burning in Ontario, 10 of them in the Red Lake district.

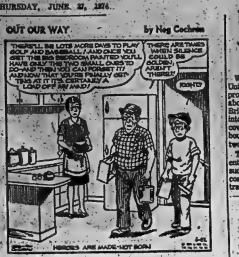
77 Charges

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — An adult and six juvenile boys aged 13 to 15 face a total of 77 charges in a bicycle-theft ring, police said Wednesday.

William George Milnes, 19, of Orillia has been charged with possession of stolen goods.

One boy faces 29 charges including theft over $200, theft under $200, and breaking and entering.



Four 13-year-old boys and two 15-year-old boys have been charged.

Police said the ring had been operating for about three months. There is no estimate of the amount stolen.

U.S. Thinks Election Delays Beef Accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior United States farm official said Wednesday he thinks Canada is purposely delaying a compromise to allow U.S. beef to re-enter the country until after the Canadian election July 8.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter also said in an interview that the Nixon administration is seriously pursuing possible trade retaliation in case Canada continues to balk.

The threat of retaliation was raised last week by Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz because of a deadlock in negotiations to lift the ban against U.S. cattle and beef.

"It's apparent in my judgment, at least, that the Canadian government wishes to stall until after the elections," Yeutter said. "Now, whether we are willing to afford them that pre-

Fergus Plant Coolant Not Cleared in Deaths

FERGUS, Ont. (CP) — Labor Minister John MacBeth says a final report prepared by his ministry does not completely absolve an industrial coolant earlier suspected of causing four deaths at GSW Ltd. here.

Mr. MacBeth said in an interview Tuesday he will investigate complaints from Local 798, United Steelworkers o f America, that his ministry is withholding the report.

"I'm not certain if we or the health ministry are obliged to release this information, but I will certainly look into it," he said.

He could see no reason why such a report should not be made available.

Three surviving members' of a seven-man lathe and punch grinder department at the plant say they have noted a marked improvement in their health since use of the coolant was suspended.

Earlier reports from the labor and health ministries said the coolant was harmless.

Homeowner Acquitted In Trespasser's Death

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Henry Quinn, 44, of Toronto was acquitted Tuesday of a charge of manslaughter in connection with the shooting death of Harold Robert McKinnon, 22, of Toronto last July 15 near Mr. Quinn's backyard pool.

Mr. Quinn buried his head in his hands and sobbed when the jury brought in its verdict after three hours' deliberation.

Mr. Quinn was charged after Mr. McKinnon died from a bullet wound through the heart beside a swimming pool at the rear of a bungalow owned by Mr. Quinn.

Evidence during the trial indicated Mr. Quinn had been bothered by trespassers since renting the house three years ago.

Mr Quinn testified he chased some young people from the pool the evening before Mr. McKinnon was shot.

Defence counsel David Humphrey told the jury the shooting was an accident. He said Mr. Quinn and Mr. McKinnon were struggling around in the dark when the gun Mr. Quinn had to scare off trespassers went off.

Assistant Crown attorney Robert Raffay said the Crown was not suggesting the shooting was intentional, but added that taking a loaded rifle to scare trespassers off showed a "wanton disregard for the lives of others."

Mr. Quinn said he neither recalled how the shooting happened or heard the gun discharge. He said the gun was a prop to scare young people off his property.

Algonquin Licences Extension Is Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — A citizens' group criticized the Ontario government Wednesday for a recent extension of 13 logging companies' licences to continue operations in Algonquin Park for another year.

C. R. Cragg, president of the Algonquin Wildlands League, said the extension is another indication of "government vacillation over their policy for Algonquin Park."

"With the number of people seeking accessible wilderness areas increasing at over 15 per cent per year . . . we cannot afford to continue treating Algonquin as just another commercial forestry unit, regardless of whether the cutting is done by the present 18 licence-holders covering 2,000 square miles, or by a Crown agency."

He was referring to the proposed Algonquin Forestry Authority, which the Ontario government said would likely take over logging operations management in the park by July 1, as soon as a bill establishing the authority was introduced in the legislature. The bill has not been introduced.

Mr. Cragg said the league had declined a government invitation to submit names of nominees to the board of directors of the new authority because the league opposed the concept of the proposed authority which will be up for the sole purpose of meeting an unanticipated supply of timber from Algonquin . . ."

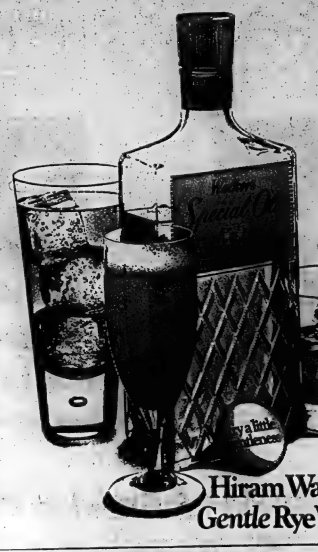
U.S. Suggests Blanket Pact With Canada on Coastal Seas

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States government has proposed that Canada's concern about oil-tanker traffic on the British Columbia coast be tied into a broad agreement that covers shipping in all of the boundary waters between the two countries.

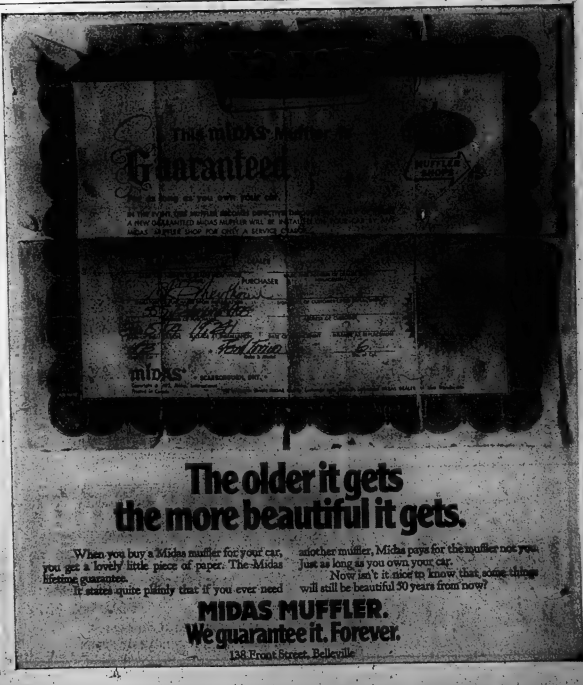
The suggestion would apparently throw up for negotiation such areas as the Atlantic coast, with its own growing traffic in oil tankers, and the heavily-travelled Great Lakes.

The U.S. proposal was made in a diplomatic note from the state department, delivered June 17 to the Canadian embassy here.



The note has not officially been made public, at the request of Ottawa which wanted it withheld until after the July 8 election, but its contents were disclosed Wednesday to The Canadian Press after it began circulating outside the state department.

The U.S. note proposed similar, continent-wide approach for discussions about other environmental matters which Canada had raised in connection with the West Coast.



. . . The United States agrees that it would be appropriate to find mutually advantageous solutions to environmental problems in the Pacific and other waters of common interest," the note said.

Controls Seen as Inevitable

Stanfield Tells Quebecers It's PCs or Full Recession

MAGOG, Que. (CP) — Robert Stanfield asked Quebecers Wednesday night to break with recent tradition and support a Progressive Conservative government, which he said could avoid full-scale economic recessions in Canada.

He told about 350 persons in a high school auditorium that a Liberal government would be forced to impose some type of prices and incomes controls.

But, he said, "this could come too late."

In order to avoid a full-scale recession, the issue had to be faced now and only a Conservative government was willing to do this.

"I don't believe we can have inflation without endangering our economic institutions and even our political institutions."

He said that in two, three or four months, any government would be forced to impose controls.

Completing a heavy day campaigning in Quebec, Mr. Stanfield told a relatively quiet audience that "the issue in this election is whether we are going to face up to our problems or just leave them all together."

He said that in the last two elections—in June, 1968, and October, 1972—the other nine provinces had rejected the Liberals only to have them saved by Quebec.

He said Quebec has a history of leading the way toward social changes and he appealed to the voters to switch their allegiance to the Conservatives so they would be represented in a new government.

The Conservatives held only three of 74 Quebec seats in the last Parliament.

Earlier in the day, after campaigning in Cornwall, Ont., Mr. Stanfield travelled to Montreal by bus, where he visited a senior citizens' home and spoke about 100 persons at a yacht club in neighboring St. Jean.

He then drove about 60 miles southeast of Montreal to this town for his major speech of the day.

At the senior citizens' home, Mr. Stanfield talked about how his party's proposed incomes and price controls would help pensioners and how his government would be determined to assist all those on fixed incomes.

At the yacht club, again speaking entirely in French, he appealed for more Conservative members from Quebec so that all provinces would be united in the fight against inflation.

Caouette Opposes Deep-water Port

STE ANNE DE LA POCATIERE, QuQe. (CP) — Real Caouette, Social Credit party leader, said Wednesday he is against a deep-water port in the St. Lawrence River for ecological reasons.

A solution to the pro-cem might be to build a pleasure port in the area instead of a seaport, he said.

Mr. Caouette also came out against day-care centres, saying "the only use they have is to destroy all links in the family unit."

Earlier in day, Mr. Caouette participated in an open-line radio talk show in this community, 95 miles northwest of Quebec City, where he told listeners that allegiance to his party does not necessarily mean loss of government subsidies.

His home riding of Temiscamingue has already received government grant allowing him to start a paper industry, he said.

Stanfield Only Man With Guts Declares Davis

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP — Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield is the only federal leader with the potential fortitude to take firm action to stem Canada's inflation and growing cost of living, Ontario Premier William Davis said Wednesday night.

Premier Davis, speaking in support of Elwood Medill, Peel-Dufferin-Simcoe Conservative candidate in the July 8 federal election pledged his support to the federal Conservatives.

Trudeau Promises Fishery Minister

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau shopped for votes on the malls of Nova Scotia Wednesday, pretending to once again abolish a full-time fisheries minister should the government be re-elected.

Mr. Trudeau repeated in the provincial western Nova Scotia community the pledge he made earlier in the day outside a shopping centre about 65 miles north in Digby, saying he now realized "how important it is here" to have such a minister.

Mr. Trudeau said all fisheries policies agreed to at a recent meeting of the 10 liberal candidates in the Atlantic provinces now are accepted by the federal liberal party.

The programs included such previously-announced moves as a $150-million, five-year plan to restore small harbors in the region.

Mr. Trudeau said the plan to stabilize fishermen's incomes would include price-support programs similar to those now offered farmers, but the exact details would be on encouraging production.

His government's approach was one of telling all producers: "We don't want to get a stranglehold on you. We want you in business," because greater production ultimately would lead to stable prices.

Mr. Stanfield had said he would not freeze the price of farm and fish producers — "but that's what the people are complaining about, the price of food."

Mr. Stanfield said he would not freeze housing prices. "Well, what's left to control? Only wages!"

Lewis Says PM Twists Budget

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has made "misleading, if not dishonest statements" about the federal budget defended in Parliament, David Lewis said Wednesday night.

The New Democratic Party leader said Mr. Trudeau has been telling voters during the July 8 election campaign that the budget obtained more money for pensioners.

The claim is false, Mr. Lewis told a crowd of 400 persons jammed into the Lakehead Labor Centre for an NDP rally.

"You pensioners weren't offered a penny. There was not a word about pensions."

He said the NDP, which opposed the budget, and brought on the election, would not be worth "a hoot in hell" if it had voted for a budget that did nothing to help pensioners.

Wearing his budget was brought down May 6, Mr. Lewis said, the government told Parliament there was not enough money to do many of the things it wanted.

But during the campaign, Prime Minister Trudeau had been flying across the country "throwing down millions of dollars" in election promises,

Bank Is Called Shameless

TORONTO (CP) — David Lewis accused the Bank of Montreal Wednesday of shameless, unreasonable behavior in raising the prime lending rate to 11.5 per cent.

The New Democratic Party leader, moving into the home stretch of the July 8 federal election campaign, said the half-percentage-point rise is indicative of large corporations' act in an inflationary climate.

Alemite Strike Over

The ten-week-old strike by 160 employees of Stewart Warner is over...This marks the first time in four months that the Belleville area has been without a strike.

The settlement was reached Wednesday night when union members of Local 1338 United Automobile, Workers voted 82 per cent in favor of accepting the contract.

The terms of the two-year contract provide for hourly wage increases of $1.85 over that period with 55 cents effective March 1, of this year and an additional 50 cents next year.

Before the new contract, the average hourly wage rate was $2.78.

There were minor adjustments in company insurance plans and other fringe benefits.

Since the strike began on April 22, between 30 to 40 men have sought employment elsewhere, said company and union officials.

"We hope to get some of them back once we start operating at full production," said Robert Reid, chief operating manager at Stewart-Warner.

"We are having problems with material shortages such as steel and plastics," said Mr. Reid. "But the big thing is to get started. We have to get the proper balance to make all our products. It will be a while before we start operating in full production, but we'll have a gradual buildup as we get our materials," he said.

Union president, David Macdonald, said today: "This is the best contract we've had at Stewart Warner. Our men are satisfied with it. I'm not quite content with it. I wish there had been some provision for cost of living benefits," he said.

The union was seeking wage increases of 65 cents an hour over a two-year contract. The company's last offer consisted of total hourly wage increases of 27 cents in a one-year agreement. Negotiations ended Wednesday

Rogers Blanks Phillies 2-0

Norman Thrives on Pressure

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Good things come in small packages, but not for Houston Astros. Fred Norman saw to that.

Norman is a little guy who pitches for Cincinnati Reds, chasing Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League's West Division.

"I do like pressure," said the 5-foot-8 Norman. "I've had pressure all my life because of being small."

The Reds took some of the pressure off Norman's diminutive shoulders Wednesday night by scoring six runs in the ninth inning to whip the Astros 9-1.

Elsewhere, the Dodgers whipped Atlanta Braves 5-4; New York Mets edged Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 12 innings; Montreal Expos blanked Philadelphia Phillies 2-0; Pittsburgh Pirates pounded St. Louis Cardinals 7-1; and San Diego Padres dropped San Francisco Giants 6-4.

Dave Concepcion's homer since May 15 gave the Reds a 5-1 lead in the seventh inning. An inning later, Dan Driessen belted his second homer of the season for a 3-1 lead.

Norman, who struck out six and walked one, raised his record to 8-6 and lowered his earned-run average to 2.18.

Willie Stargell of the Pirates hit a three-run homer in the first inning.

"I had my stuff working beautifully tonight," said Rogers, who finally got his eighth victory after six straight losses with a four-hit shutout over Philadelphia.

"When everything's working—when the slider's hard, they can't sit on the curve," said Rogers, 8-8, who walked one and struck out six.

Mike Marshall, 9-3, is changing the image of relief pitchers. Relievers are supposed to save victories for the starters. But Marshall has won the last five games the Dodgers have won, including the last two over Atlanta.

It was Marshall's 45th game of the season—covering 94 2-3 innings—and his eighth straight, one short of equaling the National League for consecutive appearances.

Joe Ferguson slammed two home runs, one of them tying the game in the ninth inning, then Manny Mota drilled a run-scoring pinch single for the victory.

Fred Kendall's three-run triple and Bill Grell's six-hitter sent the Giants down to their sixth straight defeat.

Hamilton Still Not Sure

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dave Hamilton is finding his touch, but he's still suspicious about it. Bill Lee is losing his, but isn't worried about it.

Hamilton has been assured by Oakland manager Alvin Dark that he's part of the A's starting rotation. If Dark needed any assurance that Hamilton belongs, he got it Wednesday night, when his left-hander twofisted California Angels 5-0 in an American League baseball game.

Lee, the southpaw ace of Boston's staff, has pounded for 11 hits by Milwaukee and he didn't seem to concerned, as?- neither did manager Darrell Johnson following the Brewers' 7-1 rout of the Red Sox.

In other games, Kansas City Royals edged Chicago White Sox 5-1 in 13 innings; Baltimore Orioles slipped Detroit Tigers 2-1; Cleveland Indians beat New York Yankees 3-2; and Minnesota Twins mauled Texas Rangers 9-4.

Hamilton, with the first shutout of his major league career, raised his record to 5-1—but that could be a bad omen.

"I had a shutout last year and the year before that and each time I've stepped from the starting rotation. I'll believe it at the end of the year."

Hamilton said he was sort of happy when he lost his shot at a no-hitter at Dark's sixth inning single.

"I was relieved when Chalk got the hit. I was starting to get too careful and that gets you into trouble."

Homers by Bert Campaneris and Angel Mangual led the A's assault.

"Dave threw all right, but he made some bad pitches," Johnson said of Lee. "He's been making some mistakes lately and also has been bothered by a blister, but he'll be all right."

Ed Sprague checked Boston on four hits, including Carlton Fisk's double and Rico Petrocelli's single in the fifth inning.

Deron Johnson hit a two-run homer in the seventh for the Brewers.

Holland Routs Argentina 4-0

FRANKFURT (AP) — Can anything stop Johnny Cruyff and his team of Flying Dutchmen? That's the question at soccer's 1974 World Cup, and the answer, says Argentine Coach Vladislao Cap, is no.

Cap saw his men take a 4-0 beating from Cruyff and the Netherlands Wednesday night and said later of the Dutchmen: "They are the finest team I have ever seen."

The accent was on the word team. Statistics, and many coaches, thought that when they came here, the Netherlands would prove a one-man band, with Cruyff the only thoroughbred.

It hasn't worked that way, although Cruyff, the star goalie against the Argentines, remains the outstanding personality of this World Cup.

After rows in camp, mainly over money, the club has settled down to playing a team game.

With Cruyff's men heading for the top of Group A in this eight-team second round, it could be the Netherlands vs. West Germany in the final at Munich's Olympic Stadium July 7.

The West Germans shot back to something close to their best form in beating the powerful Yugoslavs 2-0 at Dusseldorf.

In other matches, Brazil beat East Germany 1-0 in Group A at Hannover and Poland kept its unblemished record by beating Sweden 1-0 in Group B at Stuttgart.

Missed Out in 1972, Big Three Get Chance

CALGARY (CP) — Three national players will be named before Aug. 1 when the final team will be identified at a news conference in Toronto.

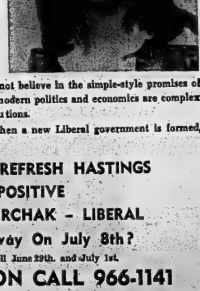
Liberal



After all, she has worked in the federal government for three years.

That's twice as long as your M.P. incumbent.

Marie Kurchak is a positive, capable thinker.

Not only can she analyze. She can influence.

After all, she has developed, written and implemented government policy concerned with citizen participation.

Marie Kurchak is refreshing. She does not believe in the simple-style promises of many politicians. She understands that modern politics and economics are complex and cannot be solved by old "instant" solutions.

Riders Prove Their Point

By GERRY BOURDEAU

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders proved a point Wednesday night by defeating the Canadian Football League all-stars 25-22 before 18,183 fans at Lansdowne Park.

The 1974 Grey Cup champions have been working out on their own under the guidance of Ontario University head coach Don Gilbert and they wanted to prove, to the public, and the Rider club that they could win without their regular coaches.

It is only the second time in the 54-game modern history of the all-star games that a defending Grey Cup champion has defeated an all-star team. Calgary Stampeders did it in 1971.

The CFL Players Association and the CFL clubs are trying to settle a long-term contract dispute. The veterans of each of the nine teams have been working out on their own.

End Rhenue Nixon caught two touchdown passes and Gerry Organ kicked three field goals to lead the Riders to the win.

Jim Young of British Columbia Lions took a pass from Saskatchewan Roughrider quarterback Ron Lancaster for a 35-yard touchdown and Montreal Alouette Jerry Tinsley received a 35-yard pass from Hamilton Tiger-Cat quarterback Chuck Ealey for the all-star touchdowns.

Dave Cutler of Edmonton Eskimos kicked two field goals and added a single and two converts for the all-stars while Zenon Andrusyshyn of Toronto Argonauts kicked a single.

The Riders intercepted four passes, three from Lancaster and another from Ealey. The interception of Ealey's pass stopped a late surge by the all-stars.

The Riders also picked up a third all-star fumble while neither Rider quarterback—Rick Cassata and Jerry Keeling—threw an interception. Neither did the Riders fumble in the game.

The Riders had a total of 446 yards, 336 by passing and 127 rushing. The total all-stars offence was 443 yards, 343 passing and 101 rushing.

Keeling completed eight of 11 passes for Ottawa for 136 yards while Cassata threw 19 of 19 successfully for 207 yards.

Lancaster completed 11 of 20 for the all-stars for 190 yards while Ealey completed eight of 18 for 152 yards.

Jim Evenson was Ottawa's top rusher with 59 yards on 15 carries while Roy Bell of Edmonton Eskimos led the all-stars with 37 yards on five carries.

Nixon received six passes for 203 yards while Young led the stars with 99 yards on two receptions.

HAMILTON (CP) — Veteran Bob Domik pitched a perfect game Wednesday as Newmarket blanked Hamilton 1-0 en route to a sweep of their Ontario Football League doubleheader.

14 Tiger-Cats On Picket Duty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

First visible sign of a player "strike" against the Canadian Football League was evident in Hamilton Wednesday when 14 Tiger-Cat veterans set up a picket line that was honored by rookies who have been attending pre-season training camp at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

The Toronto Globe and Mail said George Reed, president of the Canadian Football League Players' Association, instructed the veterans to man the picket lines, but Gerry Petrie, a comrade with the CFLPA, said Wednesday night in Ottawa that the association knew about plans for picketing but did not authorize the action.

The players representatives are meeting in Ottawa in an attempt to settle a dispute about financial benefits for the players. Almost all the CFL veterans resigned June 16 and said they will not report to training camps until a new agreement is reached.

Before setting up the picket lines in Hamilton, the veterans met the rookies and urged them not to cross the lines. The rookies agreed and there were no incidents.

However, despite a report that Reed had instructed other CFL teams to follow the Tiger-Cats' lead, there was no picketing at any of the other eight cities that have CFL franchises.

Tiger-Cat coach Jerry Williams advised the rookies Wednesday night at a special meeting that failure to cross the picket lines could result in suspensions.

"I simply told them (the rookies) of the possible consequences of not reporting for practice. They signed a contract to play, and if they don't then they have breached the contract."

Queen's Plate Will Have 15 Entries

TORONTO (CP) — "As long as the horse stays sound, you might get him there and win. There is just too much money around for three-year-olds."

Those are the words of trainer Glenn Magnusson but they could also reflect the thinking of at least a half-dozen other trainers who will be making final entries today for Saturday's Queen's Plate at Woodbine race track.

None of the 15 expected entries carries impressive credentials and, if 15 start Saturday's 1¼-mile run, they'll be going for a winner's prize of $80,141, second prize of $29,705, third $14,833 and fourth $7,422.

Evert And Borg Try Again

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The brashness of a youth set nerves tingling in the 97th Wimbledon Championships before darkness descended on Chris Evert and Bjorn Borg.

The success of the top teenagers in the world of tennis was to be determined today, weather permitting. Miss Evert, No. 2 seed among the women, was to resume her match with veteran Lesley Hunt that went to 44 games before it was halted Wednesday night.

Borg, No. 5 seed among the men, was to continue his match with Ross Case which he nearly forfeited in a fit of pique.

Miss Evert, in a match halted 3½ hours by a cold rain, won the first set 8-6, the second 6-1 and was tied in the third 5-5.

Borg, playing a second-round match, was leading two sets to one but trailing the fourth 1-4 after hitting two shots out of the stadium in anger because the match wasn't stopped sooner.

When the two teen-agers arrived at Wimbledon, Miss Evert, 19, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Borg, 18, of Sweden, declared they feared no one, but top-seeded John Newcombe, the 30-year-old Australian who has won here three times, warned it would take more than youthful strength to win the singles trophies.

"Matches on the centre court at Wimbledon are won and lost up here," Newcombe said, touching his head. "Ability and power are not enough."

Newcombe and fellow veteran Ilie Nastase, who also advanced Wednesday to the third round, Newcombe beat Australian Geoff Masters 8-6, 6-4; Smith, the No. 4 seed from San Pinea, S.C., ousted Bob Maud of South Africa 6-4, 8-1, 6-2 and Nastase, the No. 3 seed from Romania, eliminated Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 6-3, 6-2, 9-8.

Robert Lambert Shades Quinte

Robert Lambert Construction tallied 13 times in the first three innings, but still needed to score one more in the ninth to defeat Quinte Astenn 13-12 in Belleville and District Ladies Softball League action Wednesday night.

In the other game at Alemite Park, Belleville Yard men Dennis Ford batted out 19 hits to roll over Belleville Broadloom 13-7.

Sandy Dunn threw the win for Lambert's fanning 10, walking three and allowing eight hits.

Judy Scanlan cranked four singles for the winners and teammates Nancy Birch and Gina added three each. Pat Robson added a four-sacker for Lambert's.

For Quinte Astenn, it was Heather Marcell and Nora Pfleger punching a trio of singles each and Jackie Fryar singled twice.

RTSF got 19 hits, but only four of them went for extra bases. Theresa Preston had a double and three singles, Sheila Smith a double and a single, Dennis Lucas a double and a single, Shirley Gulliver a double, Joyce McFarlane two singles, May Reid three singles, Sue Morton two singles, and Penny Hughes, Judy Fuke, Judy Rappel and Sharon Alexander a single each.

For the Broadloomers, Mary Anne Sills had a home run and a double and Chris Smith and Janet Smith had a single each.

Sills took the loss on the Broadloom mound walking one and fanning two.

Keith Realtors Up Record to 8-2

Teams representing Thurlow in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association won and lost, Wednesday night. In Deseronto, the Jerry Masterson-coached Keith Realtor midgets hammered the home team 23-3 while in Trenton, Thurlow Yardmen were shut-out by Slate Farm Insurance 12-0, in a beaten game.

At the tyke level, Belleville's Elliott Motors rattled out five extra-base hits as Trenton bat came out on the short end of a 19-7 score in a game with the home town LA Braves.

Leading the hit parade was Dale Harrison with a grand slam homer. Catcher Varley Vader collected three singles while Bill Arthurs slammed a triple and Ted Foster belted a double.

The big innings got the job done for Slate Farm in the beaten game at Trenton. The winners erupted for five runs in the second frame and added seven more in the third before winding up their scoring with a single run in the fourth.

Left-hander Chris Walsh, enjoying excellent support from his mates at the plate and defensively, coasted to his sixth win on a five-hitter. He struck out eight and walked two.

Barry Beer and Gary Badgley took care of the bulk of the pitching chore for the losers who put several miscanders men to work. Seven of the winners were down on third strikes and eight received free trips to first. Thurlow pitchers surrendered 11 safeties.

Gary Hackett, Dan Scott and Guy Auger each cracked a pair of Trenton hits. Karl Unah and Walsh each connected for a triple with Denis Earll, Marc Charbonneau and John Webb supplying the other hits.

Beer led the losers with a triple and a single. Bill Sullivan, Terry Jarrell and Charles Buckley shared the other Thurlow safeties.

A four-run rally in the bottom of the fifth inning sparked Trenton past Elliott Motors in the tyke tilt.

Rory MacLeod worked four and two-thirds innings for Belleville. He twirled six on third strikes and walked five, surrendering six runs on as many hits. Brian Crosbright finished up, throwing one-hit ball in relief. He fanned two and walked a pair.

Smith helped his own cause at the plate with a triple and a single. Chris Scott supplied two Trenton singles with one each for Jeff Childerhose, Mark Beals and David Ferguson.

Crosbright helped himself by a pair of doubles for Elliott Motors. Steve Taylor doubled and singled while David Morrison connected for a triple and Rick Manderville had a double. Sid Emerton and Mike Leger each bagged one single.

Hotel Quinte Lenders Increase League Lead

The Quinte Hotel Lenders moved three points up on the Unemployment Insurance Commission in the Industrial Softball League West division last night with a 12-4 win over The Intelligencer. The win gave Quinte Hotel 21 points on 10 wins and a tie in 12 starts.

In other action, Constellation upset Black Diamond 7-1, and Belleville Yardmen whitewashed Canadian Tire 5-0.

The Hoteldmen collected nine hits off three Intell hurlers, adding eight walks to the tally. John Maloney led the winners with a triple, double and single, with Larry Booth stroking two base hits. Norm Tetlock had a double, with singles going to Bob Sarah, Jim Elsdale and Terry Murphy.

Murphy picked up the win, giving up five hits. He struck out seven and walked four.

Reg Pearson, Dave Feeney, and Ron Culloden all worked on the Intell mound, allowing nine hits. They struck out one and walked eight.

Constellation exploded for 13 hits in their upset of Black Diamond, leaving nine runners stranded on bases as well.

Ron Bateman started on the Black Diamond rubber, lasting two and one-third innings. He gave up five of the Constellation runs, on six hits. He struck out two and walked one. Jack Francis finished the game for the losers, touched for nine hits and five walks, but only two runs. He fanned four.

Kerik helped himself at the plate with a for bagger and double, with Mike Callaghan adding three singles. Bob Reid had a double and two singles, with Wayne May tripling and adding a single. Terry Carmichael had a triple, while Ron Mitchell singled twice and John Thompson and Vern Boomhower once each.

Ron Bateman had a double and single for the losers, with Jack Francis doubling as well. Base hits went to Gene Francis, Ross Empey, and Myles McDonnell.

Brian Plumbe fired the win for the Yardmen, giving up five hits in collecting the shutout. He did not strike out a man, walking one.

Andy Prudden went all the way for CTC allowing nine hits, walking three. He whiffed five Yardmen batters.

Brian Plumbe had three hits for the winners, with Mike Fahey stroking two and Zane Plumbe and Bob Carroll one each.

Peterborough Squad Downs Lions Peewees

The Belleville Lions Peewees scored in all three periods of Tuesday night's South Central Lacrosse Association game with Peterborough Trenbray Bus Lines, but the visitors managed to score more in each frame, coming up with a 14-3 win at the Dick Smith Rink.

The locals got markers by Barry Deane in the first, Danny Preseer in the second, and Steve Molnisit in the final period for the local scoring.

However, the Peterborough team, with much more experience than the Belleville squad, scored five markers in the first, six in the second, and three in the third.

Todd Bailey had three goals and three assists to pace the Liftlock City team, with Doug Ross potting three goals and a pair of assists. Bernie Downer had two goals and two assists, with Mark Evans, Rick Peel, Rod McGilla, and Roger Grant each netting one

UAW 1839 In Cobourg Tourney

Belleville's UAW Local 1839 pewee baseballers will be part of the action when the annual Kool-Aid Pewee Freehill Tournament is staged Saturday at Cobourg.

Coached by Tony McAvoy and Bernard Robar, with Mark McDonnell handling manager's duties, the UAW squad is scheduled for its first start at 9 a.m. when Alex Legion will supply the opposition.

UAW will be attempting to duplicate the feat of another Belleville team, the Conductors and Brakemen, who captured top honors in the 1973 tournament.

Also representing the Quinte area in the popular tourney is Trenton Legion Branch 118. The Trenton team is coached by Jim Whyte and Doug Alexander. Ray DiCrescenzo is team manager.

Winner of the one-game knockout competition gets an expenses paid trip to Montreal, August 3 and will take in a Montreal Expos-New York Mets game.

Other teams entered in the event are Cobourg, Midland, Whitby Lindsay, Peterborough, Kitchener South, Hamilton, Windsor, St. Catharines, Oakville, Etmgrove, Brampton and Bradford.

Brampton Whitcoy Warriors are the defending champs.

Gary Muir, principal of Bayview Public School, makes the first presentation of the Robert Huffman Memorial Trophy to the first winners, Stephen Bennett, a grade six student, and Aimee Arnott, a grade five student. The trophy was awarded in honor of Rob Huffman, a physical education teacher at Bayview School, who was killed recently in an accident. The trophy is awarded on the basis of the pupils combining sportsman-like conduct, ability, application to studies, and participation. Stephen accumulated 46 of a possible 50 points awarded by the selection committee, with Aimee's total 45.

Shannonville Holds Latta to Tie

League leading Latta could only come up with a 7-3 tie with fifth place Shannonville in South Hastings Baseball League play last night, scoring a run in the top of the eighth inning to do it.

In the other games, Carrilton dumped Read 7-4 and Melrose thumped Reserve 9-1.

Reg Abrams and John Masterson shared the mound duties for Latta. Abrams went six and one-third innings, giving up two runs on three hits. He struck out five and walked eight. Masterson completed the contest, allowing one run on two hits, fanning two and walking three. Glenn Barberstock went all the way for Shannonville, he touched for seven hits. He fanned five and did not issue a walk.

Bob Smith had a double and single for Latta, with Robin Allison stroking a pair of base hits. Other singles went to Wayne Harrison, Masterson, and Abrams.

Larry Adams, Ken Abrams, and Rob Robb shared the Carrilton win over Read. Together they combined for a two-hitter, striking out five and walking six.

Harold Brennan and Pat McKinney worked on the Read rubber, allowing seven hits. They whiffed one batter, issuing five bases on balls.

Adams had a pair of safeties for the winners, with Warren Hay connecting for a double. Singles went to Gary Twenty, Kevin Allen, Bob Neilson and Abrams.

Phil Badgely had the only two hits for Read, both singles.

Melrose punched out 10 hits in taking their win from Reserve. Glenn McEachan had a double and two singles to pace the attack, with Scott McLaren adding a triple.

George Maracle had a home run and Ken Barnhardt a double and single for the only hits for the Reserve.

Ted Abrams fired the win for Melrose, giving up three hits, striking out eight and walking two.

George Hill gave up 10 hits in taking the loss, fanning two and walking five.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, June 28 .....

Aries (March 21-April 19) — You'll be getting a better handle on a situation that has kept you off-balance lately. From this position you can dictate the solution.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Your ideas will find a strong ally today. Work in harmony with this individual. Much will be gained performing as a team.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — This will be a very productive and profitable day if you concentrate your efforts on endeavors where the results mean money.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Without being aware of it you are exerting a great deal of influence over your peer group today. Look for others to follow your lead.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — This is a good time for you to press for a conclusion in a situation that you'd like to wrap up and be done with.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You wouldn't be plagiarizing if you used the idea of another to further personal purposes. In fact, the originator would feel flattered.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — The next few days will offer opportunities to reinforce your foundations with those whose beliefs are as well as your standing in the eyes of others.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — In your dealings today, hold your best ideas back till you see what others have to say. Then tailor your clincher like a trump card.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Someone is coming to you with confidential information that will prove revealing. It helps uncover something another has gone to pains to hide.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Some of the roadblocks are coming down that hampered a concerned comrade from assisting you as much as he wanted to.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Present achievements will not go unnoticed or unrewarded by persons who are in a position to act favorably upon them.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — Your chances of succeeding are very good if you are bold, but not brash. Little will be gained if you back down or behave timidly.

Sir Dimdam — the very swordsman of the round table and the worst player of the square table, was very proud of himself for not opening with a two bid.

Mordred, sitting North, raised one spade to two and Dimdam bared his sword. Sensing an invitation to game, Sir Easley of the Blackwood sighed and bid four when Mordred could not produce a king.

It was the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts and regretfully Sir Dimdam said, "I knew we didn't need it, Mordred, enough." He then led dummy's deuce of spades and went to work with his ace. Lancelot, sitting West, showed out and your Dimdam had no way to go but down.

Mordred drew his sword. "Hevin't you ever heard of safety plays?" he roared. "You didn't need to make seven, but you were sure of your slam! If you simply played your seven of trumps on East's six spot."

"Put your sword back, blockhead," said Lancelot. "Of course, he should have made certain of his contract by playing the seven of trumps. However, we lose enough knights to the enemies without having to kill them ourselves. Furthermore, remember to play against him twice as often as you play with him."

Added Nipples Not Bothersome

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I haven't seen anything in your column about accessory nipples. In fact I didn't even know they existed until a few weeks ago when I read it in some health magazine.

To my surprise I find I have one on my left breast but had mistaken it for a mole. I am 17.

What causes them? Are they useful? Can both sexes get them? How common are they? Do they ever disappear?—J.S.

Accessory nipples are just a quirk of development, just as extra fingers have six fingers, or whorls. Nothing to get worried about, though. There may be just one, or may be half a dozen or so, spaced in line below the normal nipples.

This occurs in something like one or two people in a hundred — twice as often in women as in men. The incidence is higher among Orientals. Reason not known.

Most of these accessory nipples are small and look like moles. They are known to enlarge during pregnancy and even to secrete milk. But you can't say that an accessory nipple is really ever functional or that it's good for anything.

They don't disappear by themselves, but they can be removed quite easily by surgery if you are that disturbed by it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes tinnitus? Does it have varying degrees of intensity? What can be done to stop or mitigate it? Will it disappear or has accord in due time with out medication? I am 78, have had no circulation or heart problems and have normal blood pressure but have had this ear noise for about two months.—T.B.D.

There's no one cause, no one treatment. Sometimes medication (and sometimes stopping medication) can help. Sometimes, unfortunately, it's something you just have to get used to.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What does the brown urine mean and whitish gray stool signify to one 80 years old? I am concerned.—G.F.

It implies an obstruction somewhere in the bile system-bile is not entering the intestinal tract as it should, but is backing up in your system and the dark urine would result.

There are several possible causes: a gall stone in the gall bladder or somewhere in the duct; a tumor pressing on the ducts; possibly hepatitis. Whichever it requires immediate medical attention.

TRAVELS FAST

It takes only 8.3 minutes for light to travel to the earth from the sun and 1.38 seconds from the moon.

STILL WOULD INCREASE

If U.S. families averaged only 2.1 children per family for the next 70 years, thus achieving zero population growth, the population in 2043 would be about 320 million—110 million more people than in 1973.

SHAWANO

SHAWANO'S TOPS FOR INVESTMENT

In today's skyrocketing prices, Shawano is an outstanding investment.

Many lot owners have seen the value of their land increase by 200% or more.

Buying a lot at Shawano is an even better investment than ever before, for three reasons. One — the province is running out of recreational land.

Two — sale of crown land for cottages is halted.

Three — Provincial planning regulations have restricted private developments.

You can still buy a big, ½ acre lakefront lot at Shawano from $6,900.00 to $14,900.00 with 10% down and excellent financing.

Shawano is the beautiful 1,000 acre waterfront recreational area in the historic Highlands of Hastings, 32 scenic miles north of Madoc via highway 62, Marmora, Shawano swimming, boating and fishing.

Consecon Edged By Bayview 7-6

A pair of games in the Prince Edward Men's Slow Pitch Softball League were about as close as close could get Wednesday night.

Bayview Orchards came up with one run in the bottom half of the first inning inning to edge Consecon 7-6.

In the other contest the Gems and Palmac Foils played to a 5-5 tie.

Bayview scored three runs in their half of the ninth inning to tie the game up at 6-6. The two clubs went scoreless in the seventh and the Orchardmen rallied for the game winner in the bottom of the eighth.

Dwayne Dunstator picked up the win, giving up 12 hits while walking one. He had no strikeouts.

Art Keller and Gary Easterday were the losing pitchers. They combined to fan 10 while walking three and giving up nine hits.

Dunstator helped himself to the victory by pounding a triple and two singles. Other Bayview hits went to Rick Rodrigues and Steve Dunstator with a double each. George Tweddle with a triple, Wayne Craig with a pair of singles and Gary Mason with one single.

Dave Phillips belted a double and a triple and added a pair of singles for the losers. Keller, Wayne Clarke and George Phillips each singled twice, Les Herring, ton doubled and Bob McLeod and Lionel Adair singled.

In the second game Sunday Holoway's 12 strikeouts were not enough to give the Gems a victory.

Palmacs scored five times in the first two innings, but Gems rallied their five in the next two and the last three innings were scoreless.

Holoway limited three walks and gave up two hits.

Dennis Snell fired three strikes past five batters, struck out a pair and allowed eight hits on Palmacs' round.

Bayview's Dunstator, Rod Wyatt and Jim Barbee each poked a pair of singles for the Fashion, while Cliord Kemp added a double and Harry Fox and Pat Mullins singled once each.

It was single night for the Gems as Rod Salter punched three and Carl Yates, Bob Reid, Tom Hiddleston and Charlie Clapp each had one. The only extra base hit went to Holoway with a double.

Tony's, Whitley's One-two

Whitley Insurance of Trenton will have to wait until next week for another try at overtaking Cobourg Tony's league leader in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association.

In Wednesday action, Cobourg nipped Belleville Parsons 3-2 for its seventh win in eight starts, good for 14 points. Whitley's, blanked CFB, Deseronto 3-0 to remain just one point back of the leaders, with a 6-1 record.

Brighton drew even with Belleville United and CFB with a 5-5 record after nipped the United crew 2-1 at home.

Diefenbaker Says PM Gives No Help to Jews

TORONTO (CP) — John Diefenbaker won applause from more than 1,000 Jewish supporters of the Progressive Conservative party Wednesday night when he blasted the Trudeau government's "preference to Israel" and the plight of Soviet Jews.

Greeted by children waving Israeli flags, the former Conservative prime minister said Lashed what he called Prime Minister Trudeau's failure to speak out in Israel.

He a 30-minute speech at a Diefenbaker Rally in Toronto's Coliseum, he said Mr. Trudeau "declined to publicly condemn" the Soviet Jewish people when he went to Moscow and endorsed a Soviet call for Israeli pull-back from occupied territory.

Mr. Trudeau similarly had failed to protest the massacre of many Arab citizens, including Christians and Czechs, by returning to condemn Israeli aggression, he said.

A vote for the Liberals is a vote for "silence" and "preference to Israel" on the plight of Soviet Jews.

"Why doesn't Canada speak out for Israel?" he asked. "Canada's standing, the heart and soul of the Israeli people and it would be done if Israel in a position of responsibility."

He said Israel had expressed concern in acquiring Canada's nuclear reactor, but Canada's reassurances to the Trudeau government because of uncertainties about Israel.

Meanwhile, Canada seemed a bit selling the Candu system to Iran and other countries of the Middle East, regardless of the consequences to Israel, he said.

The Trudeau government centered into a nuclear agreement "even at both ends" with India and enabled that country to acquire a nuclear capability, Mr. Diefenbaker said, "which Israel had been rebuffed.

The Trudeau government had undertaken foreign policies "of appeasement to our enemies" at confrontment to our friends". As a result, hundreds of Marxists from Chile had been admitted to the country.

"The Chilean Marxists have been given $900 a month to pursue their activities in Canada, but Trudeau ignores the plight of peoples persecuted by the Soviets."

Canada should demonstrate its support for Israel by moving its embassy in that country from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem, the 78-year-old former prime minister said.

Mr. Diefenbaker repealed his charges that Mr. Trudeau had "emasculated Canada's influence" and has allowed "civil servants to multiply faster than rabbits."

At a news conference Wednesday morning, he said Canadian workers have suffered losses in earning power because of inflation and, as a result, wages should be given a chance to catch up with prices.

The basic amendments to the Juries Act also shorten the list of occupations exempt from jury service and institute a new selection process.

The legislation will also allow jurors to serve at a later date if they are unable to serve when selected.

Grand juries study evidence on indictable offences to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to send an accused person to trial.

When the bill was first introduced Jun 18, Attorney-General Robert Welch said amendments to the Criminal Code are needed before the grand jury can be abolished.

The bill contained provisions to retain the present system until such amendments were passed.

The bill gives absolute exemption from jury duty to elected and appointed legislators, judges, lawyers and law students and those engaged in law enforcement, medical practitioners and veterinarians and all members of religious orders, ministers, priests and other clergymen.

Wives of exempted persons also are exempt.

Watergate Probers Say Dairy Aided Humphrey

WASHINGTON (CP) — The staff of the Senate Watergate committee says it has evidence that Senator Hubert Humphrey's former campaign manager helped engineer a scheme to funnel $127,000 in illegal corporate aid to Democrats, including Humphrey.

The campaign manager, Minneapolis lawyer Jack Chestnut, refused to testify under oath about the affair, on grounds he might tend to incriminate himself, the staff said in a confidential report.

A former top campaign aide to Representative Wilbur Mills, Joe Jamison, also invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to testify about apparently illegal aid to Mills's brief, 1972 presidential campaign, the report said.

It said Humphrey's 1972 presidential campaign got $25,000 in apparently illegal corporate aid from the largest United States dairy co-operative, Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI). The $25,000 was part of a total of $127,000 in illegal contributions from AMPI, the report said.

And, in separate donations, the report said, Mills's presidential effort got $75,000 in corporate aid from the milk producers and another $15,000 in corporate aid from a sister dairy co-op, Mid-America Dairymen Inc.

A spokeswoman for Humphrey said he had not seen the report, and "he won't want to comment on it until it is in its final form."

Mills could not be reached for comment.

The report said that both Humphrey and Mills have been asked to submit to interviews with one of the committee's members, but that neither complied with the requests.

The report, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, was circulated to members of the committee Wednesday, but has not been made by the committee.

One section of the two-volume report focuses on Chestnut's role in the payment of $127,000 to a Minneapolis corporate-mail firm for lists of potential Democratic voters used by Humphrey in the November 1972 election.

The report cited no evidence that Humphrey or the others who benefitted from the arrangement were aware themselves that corporate money was paying for the lists, which were compiled for use in Iowa, Oklahoma, Kansas and South Dakota.

But it said $25,000 of the total went for Humphrey's presidential campaign, and added "there is evidence that Senator Humphrey's campaign manager was aware of and promoted this illegal payment."

Chestnut did legal work for the computer-mail firm, and billed it for services completed secretly for eight months in 1972 by his wife's endorsement, who paid him $625 a month through another lawyer, the report said.

In the Mills campaign, the congressman himself was personally involved in one of the incidents cited by the report.

Party Split

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean Richard, a former Social Credit candidate, says the party failed to nominate 4 candidates in the country rating of Lavis because of deep internal divisions in the party's executive council.

Mr. Richard, who ran as the party's candidate in Levis in the 1972 federal election, said late Tuesday the executive of the local Social Credit riding association failed to back him in his election bid at the time.

Stanfield's Standing In Halifax Disputed

HALIFAX (CP) — Talk to the Liberals and they'll tell you that after an absence of several years from the province Robert Stanfield is little more than a "carpetbagger" whose once invincible mystique shattered when he led the Liberal vote to defeat in Nova Scotia since 1970.

The Conservatives will say there's little nothing to that little carryover from provincial to federal elections, and point out that hefty 8,000-vote majority he has held in the last two federal elections.

To test their theory that the Conservatives may finally be slipping in the province, and particularly in Mr. Stanfield's Halifax riding, the Liberals have brought on a bright, young Halifax lawyer in the final, frantic effort to dislodge him.

Brian Flemming, 31, considered a leading expert in the law of the sea, was one of a handful of Trudeau supporters for the leadership in 1968 when most Nova Scotia Liberals were with the late Robert Winters. He admits his stock can only rise in the party whichever the outcome of the current election.

But he is running hard, trying to capitalize on the fact that Mr. Stanfield, a former Nova Scotia premier, is absent most of the time and to impress on the mobile and more sophisticated electorate in the city that the PC leader belongs to another era.

"I suggested to them in Ottawa that they change their strategy and go after the top leader—hit the centre rather than the flanks and the whole thing may collapse," he says.

Terry McGrath, a Nova Scotian who was working in the United States and was "even a bigger carpetbagger than Stanfield" when he was brought in as a Liberal to oppose the Conservative leader in 1972, managed 33,030 votes to Mr. Stanfield's 17,966. This appears to be his biggest task in the public this time.

The Liberals count on a hard core 19,000 to 11,000 party votes in the city out of 42,000 eligible voters. With about a 70-per-cent turnout in the last two federal elections they have to make up some ground.

But Mr. Stanfield's main concern appears to be the possibility of voter complacency.

Making his second campaign swing through the riding last week he exhorted workers not to let down in the final weeks.

"Don't take anything for granted," he urged workers, at his downtown headquarters. "Don't take any chances; just work your heads off. They're counting on us to hold firm in Halifax, Canada."

Ian Palmeter, a Halifax lawyer who is in charge of Mr. Stanfield's constituency campaign, admits that Mr. Flemming's challenge must be taken seriously, but doesn't accept the argument that based on two election victories Premier Gerald Regan has taken over as premier's No. 1 politician and loosened Mr. Stanfield's grip on the electorate.

CP Rail Is Uneasy About Nationalization

VANCOUVER (CP) — Electrification of CP Rail will not even be a possibility until the company is reassured that nationalization is nowhere on the horizon.

Robert Klein, CP Rail's director of technical research and development, says electrification of his company's main line between Calgary and Vancouver would take five years and $250 million to complete.

Speaking to an international conference hosted by the West Coast Railway Association, he said CP Rail has to be certain it will have complete control over its own destiny for the duration of the project before it will spend the money.

Although electrification offers advantages over diesel locomotive operation on busy routes, the returns on the investment demanded are yielded in small amounts spread over many years, he said.

Mr. Klein said that at last examination, the promised savings afforded by electrification of the Calgary-Vancouver section were equal to the railway's minimum desired rate of return on investment.

But, he added, although attention has been paid to the likely electrification of the line from here to Calgary, CP Rail has looked at employing high-voltage power elsewhere on its system.

The company feels a 50,000-volt system would be best. With this, the railway would be able to space out feeder substations at intervals of 30 to 50 miles. In lower voltage systems, substations have to be closer.

Using high-horsepower thyristor-controlled electric locomotives, the railway would be able to speed up trains on heavily graded sections of the line, while using fewer locomotives to handle a greater traffic tonnage than diesels can handle.

Electric locomotives are easier to maintain than diesel locomotives and last two to three times longer. Modern electric power offers an advantage in traction over diesel because each powered axle can transmit more power before the wheels start to slip.

The thyristor is a solid state device through which the electric current passes. The device gives an efficient use of power by providing a smooth acceleration.

But Mr. Klein added that the case for going electric depends greatly on electric power holding its present position against the price of diesel fuel.

CP Rail's diesel-fuel costs have gone up 50 per cent during the last 12 months, making electric power look attractive.

"But we have no way of predicting that electrical energy will continue to be made available in the required amounts and at today's bargain prices," Mr. Klein said.

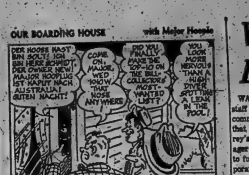
Abortion Law Said Abused

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — A board member of Brantford general hospital has charged the hospital board, its therapeutic abortion committee and staff with dereliction of duty.

Mrs. Marc Lefebvre told a board meeting Tuesday that she was asking the ministry of health to conduct an inquiry into the hospital's therapeutic abortion procedures.

Mrs. Lefebvre's action followed the defeat of her motion to rescind the hospital board's bylaw that established the abortion committee.



"You are taking healthy babies from healthy mothers for social-economic reasons rather than for health and life reasons, and in doing so you are being irresponsible in your duties to the public," she said.

Last year, 259 cases were reviewed by the abortion committee, and 253 were approved. In the same year, 218 abortions were performed at the hospital. By the end of May this year, 73 abortions had been performed at the hospital.

Legislature Approves Bills Changing Juries

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature gave third reading Wednesday to the bills changing the Juries Act as the legislature ended its extended session to clear the order paper of priority matters before the summer recess.

The two bills, introduced together, will eliminate the grand jury and substitute a similar body to fulfil some of its functions.

French-haters Seen

MONTREAL (CP) — "Professional hater of the French" are infesting the Progressive Conservative party, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Thursday. Conservative candidates in English-Canada are raising "the bogey man of French power" and are trying to divide the country to win votes, Mr. Lalonde said.

House Prices Drop

TORONTO (CP) — The average price of a house here has dropped approximately $1,300 in the last month, figures released Thursday by the Toronto Real Estate Board show. The average price of 1,221 houses sold through the board's multiple listing service was $56,180, down from $57,487 in May.

Abortion Advisors Greedy

TORONTO (CP) — Abortion referral centres should be licensed by the provincial government to prevent some centres making huge profits at the expense of young girls, Dr. Carol A. Cowell, head of the adolescent gynecology clinic at Sick Children Hospital, said Thursday. She said some Toronto referral agencies are charging as much just for referrals to U.S. clinics than the girls would pay for anesthesia and delivery at a Toronto hospital.

Bear Drowns Mate

Promoter Guilty

TORONTO (CP) — Mining promoter Norton Cooper was found guilty Thursday of conferring a benefit upon Gerald William McGeachy of Ottawa, then director of the department of regional economic expansion special analysis group without having the consent in writing of the head of the government branch. Judge Lloyd Graham remanded Cooper on bail until July 26 for sentence.

Prepared to Build

OTTAWA (CP) — Dow Chemical Canada Ltd. would be willing to build additional ethylene plants if a national shortage of the petrochemical developed in the early 1980s, a company spokesman told the National Energy Board Thursday.

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon and Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev completed agreement today on three co-operative ventures, including research on and development of an artificial heart.

The Kremlin signings, scheduled for midafternoon, represent the first concrete results of the summit meeting between the United States and Russian leaders.

The heart agreement would involve pooling of Soviet and American knowledge to make a mechanical device that would functionally replace the heart.

The two other agreements involve co-operation in housing and in energy development.

Details of all three agreements were not immediately disclosed.

Brezhnev noted that the process of detente has only "traversed the first stage," and that "much work lies ahead" that will require a sense of purpose and good will.

He also said the summit meetings were marked by "frankness," a diplomatic way of saying the two sides have major points of divergence.

Brezhnev also gave assurances there would be no "secret agreements," an apparent reference to a debate in the United States concerning allegations that so-called loopholes in the 1972 nuclear arms treaty later closed in secret negotiations.

Nixon called off his visit Saturday to Star City, 17 miles from Moscow, on Saturday to inspect the training of American and Soviet spacemen. While House press secretary Ronald B. Ziegler said the president and Brezhnev had decided to use the time for additional sessions, consultation and negotiations.

Nixon and Brezhnev got down to the business of their third summit meeting at 10:30 in the day.

"We have a list that long," said Brezhnev, stretching his arms wide. And first on it "is the strengthening of friendly relations."

"The main talks are just beginning today," said the Soviet leader as he welcomed the Nixon party at the Kremlin. Nixon: "Basically, yesterday, we just exchanged speeches."

Nixon started his day with a trip to the tomb of the Soviet unknown soldier beneath the Kremlin wall. His arrival at Brezhnev's office was delayed 14 minutes when he made an unscheduled stop to shake hands with some of the hundreds of Russians watching from behind police barricades.

"Friendship!" one American veteran shouted to the president.

"Peace and friendship," said another.

"For everybody," said Nixon. "For the whole world, the Russian people and the American people."

With Nixon at the conference this morning were Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, State Department lawyer Helmut Sonnenfeldt, who is an arms specialist; Walter Stoessel, the U.S. ambassador to Moscow; William Hyland, director of the State Department Intelligence and research bureau; Brent Scowcroft, Maj.-Gen. Brent Scowcroft, a national security adviser to the president.

Flanking Brezhnev were President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei Kosygin, with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Anatoly Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador to the United States, farther down the table.

Plane Hits Helicopter

DETROIT (AP) — Two Detroit policemen were killed when their patrol helicopter collided with a twin-engine cargo plane and crashed into the Detroit River at midnight Thursday night, police said.

The two officers were identified as Jon Ryckman, 28, the pilot, an officer for three years, and Bryan Soule, 31, a nine-year veteran.

The two occupants of the plane, a twin-engine Beechcraft D18 from Flint, Mich., also were unhurt. The aircraft landed safely at Detroit about 10 minutes after the helicopter crash, an airport spokesman said.

Miller Pledges Cost Ceiling No Bar in Nurses' Pay Talks

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Frank Miller said Thursday that provincial spending restraints on hospital budgets will not be an obstacle to settlement of the current labor dispute involving 19,000 nurses at 39 Ontario hospitals.

Mr. Miller told the legislature he expects "serious" bargaining with bargaining not will 1."

Mr. Miller was restating his position that resulted Wednesday in the nurses setting a July 22 strike deadline.

Extremists Shelter Quebecers

PARIS (CP) — The French newspaper L'Aurore reported today that five Quebec terrorists who managed to slip into France June 20 following their four-year exile in Cuba, probably are being sheltered by a group of French minority extremists.

L'Aurore identifies the extremists as "either Basques or Bretons."

It quotes a "high-ranking" French foreign ministry official as having said that the terrorists—three men and two women—managed to slip through the Charles de Gaulle airport outside Paris because of a "security error."

This affair embarrasses us very much," the official, who is not identified by name, is quoted as having said.

The group includes Jean-Marc Carbonneau, Jacques Lanctot, Yves Langlois, Suzanne Lanctot and Anne-Jocelyn Talbot.

Earlier, French officials said police were searching for the terrorists and that French authorities would decide on the status of the five after they have been apprehended.

Ottawa Arbitration Pattern for Hospitals

OTTAWA (CP) — An arbitrator's award for nurses at the Ottawa Civic Hospital, to be disclosed officially next week, closely matches proposals by the Ontario Nurses Association (ONA).

A copy of the award by arbitrator Howard D. Brown shows minimum starting salaries set this year at $920 a month, the same level being sought by the ONA, which is bargaining with 39 hospitals on behalf of 19,000 nurses.

The award would give the Ottawa nurses $945 a month by April 1, 1975. The maximum for a nurse with seven years' experience would be $1,650 a month this year and $1,145 monthly by April 1, 1975. The contract would run for 19 months retroactive to January 1.

The Ottawa arbitration award also provides vacation improvements, double time for first hours of overtime and a number of additional days off.

Negotiators for the ONA, which has set a July 22 strike deadline if there is no settlement, are prepared to propose the Ottawa award as the basis of contract terms covering the 39 hospitals.

The hospitals have offered a starting salary of $808 a month this year and $880 by Sept. 1, 1975.

Guerrillas Said Demanding Over Million for Oilmen

CALGARY (CP) — The Albertan says a multi-million-dollar ransom demand for the release of hostages held by the Eritrean Liberation Front (E.L.F.) in Ethiopia figured in Wednesday's release of Calgary oilman Don Wedgefort.

The newspaper today quotes an unnamed source close to Tenneco Oil's negotiations for the release of a Canadian and three Americans still held by the guerrillas as saying Thursday that a letter sent to the oil company earlier this month demanded "substantially more than $1 million—way more" for the three Tenneco employees — Clifford James, 27, of Walkerton, Ont., and two Americans were on a prospecting trip for Tenneco Oil when they were captured with Mr. Wedgefort March 26. The third American was a United Nations employee and was being given a lift by Mr. Wedgefort at the time of capture.

"The guerrillas were told (by Tenneco) to release some more hostages after Grant was released, to show that they were bargaining in good faith before money would be discussed," said the source, who says he has seen the E.L.F. letter to Tenneco.

G. H. Meason, chairman of the oil company's board, said in a telephone interview from Houston, Tex., Thursday night that the Houston office "has neither received nor responded to such a message."

Mr. Meason added, however, that communications with both negotiators in Ethiopia and the guerrillas were very poor. He said he expects Mr. Wedgefort will bring back demands from the E.L.F. for the remaining hostages "and we hope to know of those demands shortly."

Mr. Wedgefort, 27, president of Canwest Aviation Ltd. of Calgary, was released Wednesday night in Sudan and was believed to be in Khartoum Thursday. He is expected to fly to London, England, soon to meet his wife, Rose.

The letter sent Tenneco by the E.L.F. also outlined how negotiations were to be conducted, with the use of an intermediary named by the E.L.F. and on other consequences," said the Albertan's source.

Mr. Wyatt, also a Calgary pilot for Canwest Aviation, was captured by the E.L.F. May 27 and released eight days later. Shortly before his capture, the guerrillas shot a Dutch nurse who had been captured along with a pregnant American nurse. The American nurse has since been released.

Mrs. Wedgefort flew to London Thursday night from Saint John, N.B. She had returned to Canada in July after spending three months in a hotel room in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, waiting for her husband's release.

"As far as everyone else is concerned it's over and he's free," Mrs. Wedgefort said in a telephone interview from her parents' New Brunswick home prior to her departure for London. "But I have had so many ups and downs that I won't really believe it until I can be with him again."

Rabin Awaited

London Fears Plot

LONDON (AP) — More than 1,000 troops and police using tanks and armored cars patrolled London's Heathrow Airport today as part of intensive security for the arrival of Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin and other foreign leaders.

Rabin, the former military chief of staff who replaced Golda Meir as premier last month, was to arrive from Tel Aviv aboard El Al, the Israeli state airline.

He and other socialist politicians from more than 20 European, Asian, North American and Middle East countries are to attend a weekend meeting of the Socialist International as the crowning honor of Britain's Labor prime minister, Harold Wilson.

The airport clampdown was imposed Wednesday shortly before the leaders began to arrive. Government sources said intelligence reports received word from the Middle East that an Arab murder squad may be heading for London with Rabbi as their target.

The airport alert, called the biggest in peacetime Britain, was more intensive than a similar alert called last January amid rumors Arab terrorists were preparing to move against Heathrow, Europe's biggest airport, 15 miles west of London.

Troops backed by scout cars and armored vehicles made spot checks of passengers, visitors and staff entering the sprawling airport. In the normal area police—some armed and some with dogs—and troops guarded runways, approaches and others patrolled passenger terminals.

Some London newspapers called the security operation a "ring of steel." But some airport workers said it was a farce.

"People working at the airport are laughing at the security here. They say it's farcical," said one worker of the British Airports Authority.

"It's so easy to penetrate this so-called ring of steel. If you are, a terrorist there are several ways you easily can get to aircraft, be they on or to the runways."

They looked at us and waved us through after lifting the barrier," the man said. "The general feeling here is that the whole security operation is a waste of time."

Queen Mother Pays Montreal Brief Visit

MONTREAL (CP) — A 21-gun salute from the Canadian Forces base at nearby St. Hubert marked the close of a fast-moving one-day visit Thursday by Queen Mother Elizabeth, highlighted by the presentation of the new Queen's Color to the Black Watch Royal Highland Regiment of Canada.

The Queen Mother, colonel-in-chief of the regiment, arrived at the base for the presentation after a private luncheon with dignitaries at a downtown hotel. Awaiting her was a colorful display of military pageantry, with the Black Watch pipe and brass band and more than 200 soldiers, veterans and cadets in impressive formation.

Congratulating the soldiers on "an excellent display" of drill, the Queen Mother said the Black Watch stands for "the highest tradition of military service.

"This regiment stands for loyalty, trust and pride and belongs to something very special. Its role is of the greatest importance."

Fact Finders

Two of five SPICE program students, Joy Froese (left) and project coordinator Cheryl Eyre spent part of Wednesday at the Wellington Community Museum gathering material for a cultural resources catalogue of the Quinte area. At each one of four Prince Edward County museums visited Wednesday, the two noted what exhibits were available, times museums were open and histories of each.

Students Catalogue Quinte Culture

Precisely what any document outlining the cultural resources of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties will be created is currently up in the air, Lloyd Eyre, SPICE program student coordinator said Wednesday.

Mr. Eyre, along with four other students is engaged in a survey to catalogue such cultural "sources and resources". These, he defines, are either buildings, such as museums, or people individual artists or groups of people under the umbrella of an organization.

The five students are working under a $2,098 Ontario Experience '74 SPICE (Students Participating In Community Education) grant obtained through the provincial Ministry of Education by the Hastings County Board of Education. The six week program ends in just over a month.

"We're just data collectors," said Mr. Eyre.

"Someone else will take the data and come along with a graphics and publish it.

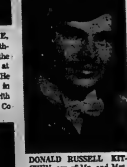
"This is the way we envision it. We don't know what form it will take."

All material gathered by the Five some will be filed with the Hastings Board.

To date, a week and a half from the program's start, the students have toured the majority of the two counties' museums. Letters have also been sent to 450 artists whose names have been supplied by the Quinte Arts Council.

Each has been asked if he would be available to teach or conduct workshops. Mr. Eyre said some 50 replies have been received as of Tuesday this week.

A catalogue of performing artists—musicians and actors —will be begun next week.



Only the groundwork is being laid this year, Mr. Eyre said, adding that he didn't want to leave the impression that it was a "Mickey Mouse project."

"We don't have the time only six weeks to collect data and have it in manuscript form as well."

Joy Froese, a Belleville student, said, "Right now we're just taking the cream off the milk and if we have the time, we'll dig into it."

DIANE ELAINE RUTTER, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Rutter, of R.R. 1 Bloomfield, received her Bachelor of Education May 24 at Queen's University. She received the Anderina McCulloch Award in Public Speaking. Diane graduated from Queen's University last year receiving her Honors BA in English and Drama. Diane will be teaching at the J.S. Organized Crime In Smaller Cities

Organized crime in Ontario is not just a problem faced by big city police forces, the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police was told yesterday.

Walter Lee, the chief intelligence officer for the Ontario Police Commission, told the policemen who gathered at the Four Seasons Hotel for their annual conference, that criminal criminal activity was evident in smaller centres of Ontario, as well as in the larger metropolitan districts.

Mr. Lee was delivering a progress report on the state of organized crime in the province when he told the police chiefs that some members of organized criminal groups move in the smaller cities because their profit margin is higher there and police intelligence and surveillance is not as strong as in the larger cities.

Traditionally, organized criminal groups work within the ghetto areas of our Justice system, Mr. Lee said.

Organized crime is a highly profitable business that operates in areas where there is a minimum risk and a maximum profit, therefore, he continued, the only way to hurt organized crime is to increase the risks and lower the profits. This is to be done just by throwing people in jail but requires all-out efforts to eliminate organized crime," profitable operation.

"We are not going to eliminate organized crime," Mr. Lee told his audience. "But with a total commitment from all elements of the police system we can control organized crime. Fortunately in Ontario we recognized the problem soon enough to establish a system that is able to control it, but we will not eliminate it."

Mr. Lee went on to say that he believed there are less Mafiosi now than it was 25 years ago.

"From the standpoint of awareness, control systems, and government support, we are healthier than we were in Ontario 25 years ago," he said. "Organized crime was not as well organized. They were. Ten years ago, we weren't organized but today we are."

DENNIS JOSEPH WALSH, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Walsh, Read, received his Bachelor of Science degree in chemical engineering from Queen's University at the May 28 Convocation. He is a graduate of St. Mary's School, Read, and Nicholson Catholic College and is employed by Goodyear Corporation, Sarnia.

Mr. Lee explained that he felt it was unfair to consider organized crime in terms of the Mafia.

"Organized crime is a non-ethnic proposition," he said. Those who say non-Italian members organized criminal groups outnumber those of Italian origin by 5 to 20 to one. In Ontario I think that they outnumber them by 20 to one."

"The Cosa Nostra, the North American version of the Mafia is evident in Ontario," he continued, "Not in great numbers but we have identified some 39 members who belong either to the Magaddino family in Buffalo, the Cattrol family of Montreal, which is closely allied with the Bonnano-Chapos family of New York City so that it's almost a part of it, or of the Zerilli family of Detroit.

"There is no Cosa Nostra family with headquarters in Ontario and it is quite clear to us that the highest ranking member of the Cosa Nostra in this province would be no more than caporegime status," Mr. Lee told the police. "It is more than likely, I think, that all those people in this province are nothing more than soldiers or button men. It is unlikely that we might have one who might be considered a capregime or a consigliori."

Apart from the Cosa Nostra and other non-Italian criminal groups, Mr. Lee identified the honored society of Calabria — as an element that must be dealt with by the police.

"These are headed up by the Italian police as the Mafia Calabrese" he said. "These people have established themselves within the province within the past 15 years and they have been identified within that time as 10 years some 50 people who belong to these cells. There are probably a lot more than either belong to them or are closely associated with them as to be part of their operations.

"There has been some contact with these people and Cosa Nostra members and Nostra types, but that is spasmodic rather than continuous and therefore we suggest that the ties between them will probably grow," he said.

There are two systems the police must deal with, organized crime, Mr. Lee said.

The first is a "strike force" in which a prosecutor is appointed and financed in all out attack on organized crime with the aid of intelligence officers and accountants.

The other system, one which the Ontario Government has chosen, is to provide leadership training to police forces in order to combat organized crime more effectively.

"History will show they (the Ontario government) made the proper decision," Mr. Lee said.

Organized crime in Ontario takes the form of gambling and bookmaking most often, Mr. Lee said, but arson, insurance and stock frauds, land development and real estate crimes also occur.

PROPOSED ELECTORAL BOUNDARIES

The Ontario Electoral Boundaries Commission will receive until Friday, September 13, 1974, written representations on the proposed electoral districts described in the Ontario Gazette of June 8, 1974.

This is an extension from the deadline of August 16, 1974, advertised in the daily newspapers, and a further extension from the original date of July 12, 1974, advertised in the Ontario Gazette of June 8, 1974.

Representations should be sent to Brian McCool, Secretary, The Ontario Electoral Boundaries, 70 Lombard Street, Toronto, Ontario M5C 1M3.

Swearing In

Belleville Police Chief Harold Crowder was sworn in as the third vice-president of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police yesterday during the closing ceremonies of the association's annual conference at the Four Seasons Hotel. Retired chief Trevor Mathews, of Port Erie, administered the oath of office, the Ontario Police Chiefs will hold their 1975 conference in Kitchener and they accepted an invitation from the Ontario Provincial Police to attend the meeting at an as yet unspecified location. The 1977 meeting will be held in Barrie.

Negligence Not Proved Says County Judge

A Maynooth man was acquitted Thursday in county court of criminal negligence causing death, a charge laid after the June 16, 1973 death of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Donaldson of Maynooth in an accident about a mile north of the village on Highway 127.

Robert John Gorgerat was acquitted by Judge Russell Honey because there were no witnesses to the accident and all the crown's evidence was circumstantial. He also disallowed a lesser and included offence, dangerous driving.

"The accident occurred about 8 a.m. when Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson were returning to Maynooth from a wedding reception at Lake St. Peter. Mr. and Mrs. Gorgerat, also guests at the reception, had returned to Maynooth to pick up their car at the garage owned by Mr. Gorgerat and were headed north on Highway 127 toward their Lake St. Peter home.

John Evans from the toxicology section of the Centre for Forensic Science in Toronto testified that Mr. Gorgerat's blood sample, taken an hour after the accident, registered 100 milligrams of alcohol in 100 millilitres of blood. A reading of 80 milligrams is considered to constitute impairment.

"This is the level (100 milligrams) people get in, to parties," said Mr. Honey, saying it constituted "excitement but not "gross drunkenness." Mr. Donaldson's blood reached 300 milligrams in an autopsy in Belleville, was 90 milligrams.

Constable Glenn West of the Bancroft detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said the accident occurred on a level stretch at the top of a hill. The Gorgerat large model car left skid marks 201 feet long in the northbound lane before suddenly veering left. He identified the point of impact with the southbound Donaldson car by a gouge left in the southbound lane of the highway by the rim of a wheel on the Donaldson car, a sub-compact. After impact the Gorgerat car travelled in reverse for 141 feet before coming to rest. The Donaldson car was knocked sideways, coming to rest 33 feet from the highway. The Donaldsons were thrown from their car by the impact.

Two Maynooth residents testified to seeing the Gorgerat car leave Gorgerat's garage in the village at 1:45 a.m. the second of three cars travelling together at a high rate of speed.

Called to the stand by defense counsel John Bark of Peterborough, Mr. Gorgerat said "There was no racing involved." He said that after reaching the brow of the hill he saw headlights approaching him in the northbound lane and "assumed" the vehicle was a truck. He could remember nothing more.

Judge Honey said he could find no "causal connection" between ingestion of alcohol and the accident.

"The skid marks indicate high speed, but it is all circumstantial," he said. "I accept the accused's evidence. No one knows why he went to the left. With that much doubt in my mind I can't convict."

Crown attorney was Bruce Affleck of Ontario county.

Plan 700 Homes Near Trenton

TRENTON — A 700-home subdivision is being planned for Trenton's northern boundary, which could eventually top $20 million in development funds.

Trenton Complex Homes has announced "plans to lack of serviced land in Trenton and Belleville" say feel the subdivision will be a real asset.

Developers believe they are complying to official plan requirements of the Quinte Planning Board and say "... the ministry of environment indicated in a study that the vacant land (209 acres on the east side of Trent River) could be turned into this type of a development."

Fred Berry, a principal in the company, said the project hinges on availability of a municipal water and sewer system.

Mr. Berry said his company approached Sidney township council to make formal application to Trenton for water services. But, he says he doesn't know what the answer for sewer service is.

Sewer systems within the Development are a responsibility of the subdivider.

Trenton town council dealt with the question of water services earlier this week but ordered discussions be held in workshops.

Arie Hoorsweg, Trenton's commissioner of works, said Friday he could not say whether the municipal system could handle the proposed 700 homes.

"We'll have to wait until more figures are in and analyzed," he said.

In a wider respect, Councillor Ed Neil questioned the move to hook up to an eastern subdivision when there was a possibility Trenton could look to grate with a western municipal region in Northumberland-Durham.

Council said it would consider the application once all material is available on the results of of plugging the town's water leaks and when the capacity of a trunk sewer north of Highway 401 is improved.

The subdivision is in a strategic location, just east of a parcel of Trenton-owned land set aside for industrial development and north of a privately-owned parcel also marked for industry.

Mayor Robert Patrick said the inclusion of such a subdivision might ease the local financial burden of capital improvements to Trenton's filtration plant.

Commenting on the question by engineers, he said it might take five years or more before "we know which way we are going in terms of east and west. It may not be reasonable to halt everying until we have the answer."

The subdivision will include single-family units and will be built on a seven-to-10 year schedule said to Mr. Berry, vice-president of Complex Homes.

Great Trenton Tube Race: Cpl. Earl LeMaire, in Training

'International' Tube Championship

Inflation Is Vital to this Race

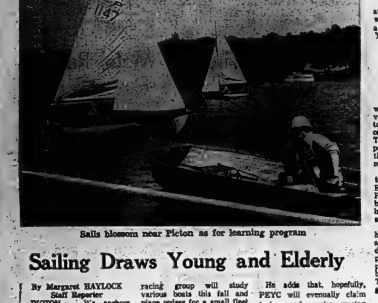
By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton next Monday becomes home for the Canadian International Championship Inner Tube Race, believed the only event of its kind in Canada.

The race was the inspiration of Trenton's Canada Day organizer, Jerry Goldberg, and has since been taken over by a CFB Trenton group called the Flying Frog Assn.

Participants are required to wear government approved life preservers and must use an inflated inner tube with an inside diameter of at least 14 inches. Propulsion is restricted to arms, legs or a paddle.

Cpl. Earl LeMaire, president of the Flying Frogmen scuba club, said the race would start in the Trent River by the fireball and finish near the Community Gardens waterfront.



Participants may register at the fireball Monday between 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. a half-hour before race time. Youths under 18 must be accompanied by a parent for registration — taking full liability.

Members of the scuba club will be cruising the river as a safety factor. Coastguard crews will be at the mouth of the river to pick up anyone caught in a lake-bound current.

"There's not much current in the river," said Cpl. LeMaire. "Entrants are going to have to work and swim to get to the finish line."

Because the race took time to receive certification, organizers are not sure how large the turnout will be. Cpl. LeMaire guessed optimistically that perhaps 100 would show up.

There is no entry fee for the event and a trophy will be awarded the winner.

Sails blossom near Picton as for learning program

Marmora Man Dies During Swim in Creek

MARMORA — An autopsy was being conducted at Belleville General Hospital today to determine cause of death of a Marmora man who, late Thursday afternoon, was pulled from Beaver Creek into the Shanick area, 10 miles north of here.

Wilbert H. Cooper, 57, had tended to go fishing in Beaver Creek with his brother Percy, of Marmora. But, before getting into the boat he decided to go for a swim, said police.

About 15 feet from the bank he is thought to have suffered some kind of an attack. He did not sink, but, after being pulled from the river, was pronounced dead at the scene by a coroner from Marmora. This mishap is being investigated by Provincial Police from Madoc.

Mr. Cooper had lived in the Picton area before coming to Marmora.

Motorcyclists In Collision

Don Jardini, of Tweed, suffered minor bruises, while Terry Callaghan, RR 1 Coeburgville, also was slightly injured. The motorcycles were damaged to the extent of $500.

Forces' Day at CFB

Skies All Clear for Airshow

TRENTON — For weather this Saturday should be perfect for Canadian Armed Forces Day, a spokesman at CFB Trenton said Friday.

Weather plays an important role in the annual rendezvous, particularly with its airshow, and since the bulk of displays are located outside.

Temperatures are expected to hover around 75-80 degrees with a predominantly sunny morning and possible clouds in the afternoon. There is a possibility of rain but it is not forecast until Saturday evening, well after the show.

Base visitors will not be admitted through the main gates but through entrances of the GRD weekend road.

Air cadets will be the first on the air program flying gliders; followed by a display of remote-controlled model aircraft.

At approximately 3 p.m. there will be a mid air show of planes used by Canada's Air Transport Command followed by the show's stars, the Snowbirds, Canada's crack precision jet fighter team.

In addition to the airshow, all facets of base operations will be described in static displays housed in the hangars.

Two Charged In Car Theft

PERTH — Richard Joseph Cherrien, 25, and Raymond Norman Yeomans, 18, of Woodstock were charged Thursday with a possession of a stolen automobile and possession of a sawed-off rifle, following a police pursuit of a car from Madoc.

Police said a car, reported stolen in London, Ont., first was spotted near Madoc, and it finally was stopped east of here after it went through a road block, damaging a cruiser.

No one was injured.

WILLIAM R. STEWART, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stewart, Belleville, received his Bachelor of Arts in Economics from the University of Western Ontario at the June Convocation. A graduate of Moira Secondary School, Bill is now employed in the accounting dept. at Brooke Bond, Belleville.

Sailing Draws Young and Elderly

By Margaret HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — It's anchors aweigh this week for participants in a beginners' sailing course underway at Prince Edward Yacht Club.

The seven-day program has attracted 54 applicants ranging from approximately 10 year to fifty. Four instructors teach sailing in three daily courses, each three hours long. Lectures are coupled with this practical work to teach the rudiments of sailing.

Ted Rose, Demorestville, PEYC director and an enthusiastic supporter of the program, says two types of craft are employed for the lessons. The first is the Petrel, a 15-foot boat, and the Laser, an extremely fast one-man craft. The boats are owned by Molson Brewery, sponsors of the course.

Mr. Rose says the courses, ending this weekend, promote beginners to a higher level of competency in a week. Cost of the course is $180 for children and $150 for adults.

Although the course ends this weekend PEYC will retain an active interest in promotion of this sport, said Mr. Rose.

He said that he and fellow club members Alec Galloway and Dr. Ben Bechard, have become responsible for organization and rejuvenation of sailing in the Picton area. The yacht club has purchased six Pram-style dinghys of the El Toro class and these eight-foot craft can be used to foster racing in Picton Harbor. Club members can sign up for use of these boats for recreational sailing and racing.

In August, the larger keel boats and centreboard boats will race from Picton Bay to Sam Island in Hay Bay.

On a September weekend another race including power boats, will be held, this time from Picton to Prinyer's Cove where docking will be provided at the marina. A cocktail will follow for race participants and landlubbers arriving by car. The boats will dock overnight, returning to Picton next day.

Mr. Rose says the PEYC racing group will study various boats this fall and place orders for a small fleet of two or three-man sailing boats before Spring thaws.

"Racing is the lifeblood of a club as far as young people are concerned," Mr. Rose said.

He adds that, hopefully, PEYC will eventually claim junior and senior racing groups. An instructor has been hired by the club and possibly next year it can sponsor its own sailing classes.

Building Plans Cancelled Out

The proposed bottle cap manufacturing plant which was to start building in Belleville this spring has been shelved.

The $1.8 million metal lithography firm that would have made caps for soft drinks and beer bottles, Mundet Crowns Ltd., was to have been located in the city's northeast industrial park on University Avenue across from Standard Paper Box Co. and not far from the future Procter and Gamble site.

The announcement to go ahead will made official last October. Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis, said Wednesday: "The decision has been made not to go ahead.

"It's mostly a business of dollars. The project was to have cost $1.8 million but because of economic reasons, it has risen to about $3 million," said Mr. Bemis.

Future Of Indians

Diane MacKay of Ottawa was an interesting visitor to Belleville recently. As executive director of the Canadian Association in support of the Native Peoples, she told a Beta Sigma Phi group of the varied problems facing the aboriginal peoples.

Probably few might say that even the terms "native" and "aboriginal" in reference to Indians, Metis, and Eskimos, tend to perpetuate the state of inequality that surrounds the lives of the majority in their categories.

This and the fact that they live to a large extent on reserves or in the far north and Arctic regions. Here they are isolated from other Canadians, in limbo as between a mystical past, an uncertain present and a future offering perhaps more promise than before, but still far from personally or racially fulfilling.

We have been suggesting of late that the problems of our own poor and of our native peoples should merit more attention, more than that devoted to politically-tinged aid programs overseas and to interfering in the affairs of other countries.

Mr. McKay may have had the same thought in mind when she said: "One of our biggest jobs is to re-educate Canadians about their own country's history. . ." For one thing, where Indians are concerned, she said there is now a reading program for the children that is much more relevant to their lives than the old "Dick and Jane" books.

We note also that in Peterborough a two-year diploma program in native studies will be introduced at Trent University this fall. It will involve practical training affording students opportunities for employment in government agencies, native and band council assistant, and practical field assistance that deal with native communities.

But aside from these hopeful signs there remains the spectre of native peoples in Canada living in the most primitive conditions, in places where alcoholism, despair and disease are rampant.

Reference has been made here to the terrible conditions in McDougallville, a ghetto on the fringe of Red Lake in Northwestern Ontario. It was the subject, in part, of a report on life in that community put out by the Red Lake Indian Friendship Centre a year or two ago. There are other places like it across the country and they are a reproach to our affluent and self-satisfied society.

And it is not peculiar to this country; the same kind of situation occurs in the United States, as a recent NBC television documentary about the plight of Indians in South Dakota illustrated.

All this in North America — and we boast about our high standard of living.

Police And Public

Solicitor-General George Kerr's observations about the police and their relations with the public have merit.

While the people of this province have reason to be proud of the calibre of its police and confident in the job they are doing, there is room for improvement in a variety of fields. As columnist Don O'Hearn notes elsewhere on this page police conduct is not always blameless.

Mr. Kerr's remarks to the Association of Chiefs of Police in Belleville this week addressed itself to this general problem.

Since public confidence in the police is a paramount attribute, Mr. Kerr wondered if police contacts with the general population could not be improved, and notably with young people.

The suggestion is that perhaps the police may be unnecessarily harsh in face of such phenomena as long hair. Really, it is not that much a cause of wonderment any more and certainly should not prejudice those who effect it in any confrontation with the law.

The young for their part could improve their manners where the police are concerned. A surly attitude toward the men in uniform benefits no one.

Police officers see more of life in the raw than anyone other than doctors, nurses and ambulance personnel. For that reason as much as any other the men and women of the ranks are persons of compassion and understanding too. They are the people who are always there in an emergency. And they deserve our support and co-operation.

A Minority Ruling the Majority

Quebec Liberal Strength a Vital Factor in Election

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Okay, let's face up to the prospect of the country ending July 8.

Look at it from any angle and it has to be disturbing.

An already fragmented and regionalized country, even more divided.

Short of an explosively unexpected last-minute miracle, if the Liberals win, then Quebec and especially Montreal will call the shots as the government's sole power base.

If the Conservatives take it, federal power will be divided between the Atlantic Provinces and the West, with Ontario between, and Quebec for once outside the circle of national political leverage.

The Liberals over the years, have shaped it that way.

Their self-satisfied strategists, proud of picking up 18 of a total of 18 seats held in the last Parliament by the now-collapsing Social Credit populists.

For more than ever, it would make them this Quebec party, walled off in their own political fortress from any meaningful representation all across Canada except, perhaps, in New Brunswick which, maybe in wise self-interest, divides its federal political loyalties.

The consensus of those who have toiled the hustings from coast to coast seems to be that seats in the Atlantic Provinces — save for Newfoundland where a switch could be in the voting works — are solid still.

West of the Ontario border, word is that the Liberals have certainly could lose a few more of their seven seats, leaving only Jon Rae of Vancouver-Quadra, James Richardson in Winnipeg, Otto Lang in Saskatchewan, and Joe Guay in Manitoba's St. Boniface.

Which leaves Ontario, a province unlike all the others, the voters in many of its 88 seats fickle shoppers, addicted to switching brands.

Ontario is nothing uncertain about Quebec.

It is solid Liberal, routinely has been counted on for the safe alteration, when it went for Diefenbaker's huge 208-seat sweeping of Mike Pearson in the 1958 election.

In the past Parliament, well over half the Liberal caucus was from Quebec.

In Trudeau's cabinet of 31 were from Quebec, eight of them out of Montreal.

And from Montreal there were Trudeau, Drury, Pelletier, Goyer, Allmand, Lalonde, Sauve and Mackasey.

That kind of cabinet clout translates into what Quebec wanted, Quebec got.

Nothing will change Quebec. Not inflation; not language; not separatism, even in the Armed Forces. Not unemployment, nothing.

In Quebec, Trudeau does not even have to bother side-stepping those issues, not really talks much time campaigning.

Yoss in New Brunswick's five Acadian seats, one of them held by Prime Minister Dubie, incidentally Joe Guay's French-dominated St. Boniface, perhaps a couple of Franco-influenced Northern and Eastern Ontario constituencies like Mississing and Ottawa-Vanier and there is a reasonable chance the Liberals can hold a majority — for the two-thirds Mr. Pearson had.

There's a decisive swing in Ontario, with the province, like Quebec, solid as a bloc, enough to restore a reasonable power balance.

That, or the impossible, like Quebec not going Liberal with as many as 70 of those 74 seats.

Canadian Ban on U.S. Beef Imports

By BRUCE LEVETT
WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's ban on United States beef imports—designed to protect the health of her consumers—is being criticized by Americans as a non-tariff barrier designed to support the Canadian cattle industry.

Critics here, while accepting the Canadian responsibility to ensure that no beef containing traces of the growth hormone diethylstilbestrol (DES) reaches the butcher shops, feel that the method of enforcing that responsibility smacks of protectionism for Canadian cattlemen and feeders.

Canada followed the U.S. lead when she banned the compound last year. The U.S. ban subsequently was overturned in a legal technicality, leaving U.S. feeders free to use the steer-fattening hormone provided no residue of DES remains in the beef when it reaches the market.

Canada, however, has a total ban on DES and spot-checks her herds to ensure they have never been exposed to the compound.

In line with this, she has insisted that any U.S. cattle to meet headed for the Canadian market—imported were worth $140 million last year—carry a "DES-free" certificate with the attesting DES has never been fed or implanted in the cents consignment.

The U.S. argues that it would be impossible to guarantee this tariff. Canada has resisted all U.S. counter-offers and has defied U.S. threats of retaliation.

The result has been a growing resentment that one of DES might be only one reason Canada has insisted the door to U.S. meat imports.

Senator Washington Post, in an editorial, says:

"Cattle prices have fallen sharply in Canada and some Americans suspect the Canadian government, which faces an election early next month, of having more than DES in mind."

There is no doubt that U.S. farmers, facing a glut of cattle on their own markets, are demanding protection from the imports because of falling prices.

In reality, imports have little effect on the meat prices, amounting to only about eight per cent of total U.S. consumption.

Nevertheless, cattlemen are maintaining pressure on the agriculture department for effective action and they can get. It was in this atmosphere that Secretary Earl Butz proclaimed:

"We are not going to stand by alone and be the dumping ground for excessive supplies of world meat imports."

When asked whether he felt the Canadian restrictions were strictly to enforce health measures or a ploy to keep prices up in the Canadian industry, he refused to answer.

Butz feels that DES, shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals, has become an emotional issue. He feels the U.S. made a mistake in banning the compound in the first place and that there is no danger to human health in its use.

In any case, with the DES situation scheduled for hearings and review by the Food and Drug Administration, observers feel it unlikely that the question will be resolved for at least a year.

In the meantime, with Canada standing firm and the U.S. threatening retaliation, the latest dispute is a festering irritation between two major trading partners.

Police Under Fire For Motel Raid

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — This year it was the Mong inquiry and the Hydro-Bud office building.

This year tis the Landmark Motor Hotel in Fort Erie and police raids.

It seems that every summer we get at least one show on the road around here that livens up the news.

It was a shocking incident to a great many people and certainly merits inquiry.

The aftermath inevitably has reached against the character of the town itself.

And the reputation of police, not only in this area but right across the province was tarnished.

The only satisfactory course of action was to bring the whole matter into the open.

It is possible some situations may be uncovered which could be embarrassing even to police but still it is better to get them out in the open than to have them ulcerating uncertainly.

Mr. Kerr has come in for considerable criticism, much of it unfounded.

Generally it has been said that the solicitor-general has too slow to act and that at times he gave the impression of hiding the whole matter too lightly.

Actually what happened was that as the minister responsible for policing Kerr acted with prudence in not rushing headlong into an inquiry.

He wanted whatever facts he could get before making his decision and perhaps on the type of inquiry that should be held.

Beyond this he perhaps talked too much, particularly to reporters, explaining hunches to them.

In the home his statements were clear and unambiguous and left no doubt of his concern.

But with the media he satisfied these perhaps too much, and one or two of his statements, if taken out of context, could have left the feeling he was handling the matter too routinely.

Law of the Sea Parley in Caracas Raises Vital International Issues

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The third United Nations Law of the Sea Conference which opened in Caracas, Venezuela, on June 20 has been called the most important international meeting since the founding session of the United Nations itself in April, 1945.

The reason for this is the scope of the issues and problems relative to the ocean and its ownership of their vast resources which will be discussed. 3,000 delegates from 151 nations will descend on the Venezuelan capital between now and the end of the conference next Aug. 30. They are duty-bound to sort out the various national and international allegations about our oceans.

Some of the major areas of discussion include extension of territorial waters by various countries, ownership of marine resources which as we now know includes sea-bed mineral and resources as well as those in the oceans themselves, rights to various continental shelves and international control of leading water passageways.

Any one or these would seem to have enough problems for a year's work conference of this kind to solve.

The Canadian delegation, a mixed group of specialists from the departments of external affairs, energy, mines and resources and technology, national defence and justice, will be involved with all these issues.

There is a wide array of several states which accepts the 200-mile limit over a continental shelf as a way of controlling its resources. But the big naval powers like the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. do not accept the extension of national sovereignty but do cut it seems where their fleets must operate without jurisdictional restrictions.

Some of the vast resources in the sea and in ocean sea bed now are known to exceed or equal those in the world's land masses. The seas contain more manganese than the earth.

And there is probably as much undersea petroleum in the world as is locked in our globe's various geological formations where it is found.

This means the whole Law of the Sea Conference could turn into a vast power plan for control of ocean-held national resources by the big powers. Not unlike the colonial land grabs by many of the same nations in Africa, Asia and the Middle East in the last century.

In 1970, Canada unilaterally extended her three-mile ocean territorial limits to 12 miles and unilaterally passed the Arctic Islands Pollution Protection Act. The latter places 100-mile sanitation zones around our Arctic islands which we will police when and if super-tankers start taking oil from our north, whether they are Canadian or foreign.

This Law of the Sea Conference will try to approve such unilateral acts by Canada and other sea states. But if it cannot do so, then the determination of countries like ours to go their own way will not be shaken.

In Latin America, Chile, Peru, Brazil and Argentina all have and police 200-mile territorial limits, unilaterally declared.

Then there are the claims of coastal powers that international sea passages like our Northwest Passage or the Malacca Straits between Malaya which moves 80 per cent of Japan's oil imports, be left international.

The inclination of states bordering such waterways or owning them to terminate their international status, now is based not so much on sovereignty claims but on the even harder-to-resist commercial and ecological requirements for their local ownership.

LETTERS

Election And Party Politics

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

The Intelligencer once again excelling its cynicism in advocating support for a 90-day freeze.

It admits that such action might depress the country and the federal government.

Further along it espouses that Liberal policy has been highlighted by extravagance, paper money and inadequate production.

In the first case most of us will recall the hypocritical editorials regarding those unfortunates on the Dole of "unemployed bums".

In the second case with typical inconsistency, the newspaper berates Liberal policy on the very grounds that the Financial Tory done set back up for edification.

Financial Tory consumer affairs analysts are telling what they expect and every effort is going to be the inevitable depression.

None of today's politicians or economists can stop it. The trend of this system together with its irreverence and built-in inadequacies has been evident over 30 years or so, destroy itself.

CLARENCE D. YOUNG
Editor's Note: The editorial noted that price and income controls, as advocated by the Conservatives as a means of containing inflation, would be temporary. It contended that a 90-day freeze, including curbs on Government spending, and refusal to offer measures — "at least is a policy." But Liberal policy, as we sustained, thus going by default, would mean "the usual old extravagance" leading ultimately to economic collapse. The editorial also contended that in the above letter, there have been "no specific suggestions other than to "unemployed bums" or to any "provincial Tory clique".

United Appeal Chairman Sought

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

The annual hunt for chairman for the 1974 United Way drive is currently under way.

I am at a loss to understand why this is. Did we not have here a professional hard worker from Ellis Grove as the ability as a fund raiser?

And as the citizens of Belleville not paying a wage of $18,500 per annum for this service? Then what do we need a chairman for?

I have the following suggestion to the UCS. Put the new director to work as this year's, (and subsequent years') chairman and each year, let the affiliate agencies of the United Way appoint a new chairman. They want the money — let them put some effort into it.

For 1974 I nominate Mr. Mullis as chairman and Mr. Diamaddies of the YMCA as co-chairman.

Once and for all, let us cut this nonsense out. It is getting around for a doctor, lawyer or some other well-heeled figure to take the head. These people are far too busy in the conduct of their own professions. Let those who are being paid directly, or even indirectly through the money raised, put the effort into it.

WILLIAM C. MACKLEY.

Trenton and Those 'Dirty Books'

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Those who constantly complain that education has regressed to the point where it's turning out morons, Trenton councillor Bob Wannamaker shows a definite need of an education or retirement, in his ridiculous plea for a "dirty book" review.

He complains about the lack of morals and points at "dirty books" accusingly, as if their removal would resolve the ills of Trenton, partly the value the industries have polluted, cause a rain of tax dollar bills and have Stanfield elected. "If we get one more dirty book in the Quinte Library Trenton would be a better place to live," he says.

Obviously he knows no more about psychology and is happy to its ignorance. Reports on pornography have proved no real damage is caused by them. Sex magazines only arouse, and then you look at them without a distorting window of hate and fear and ignorance, you realize not only is that natural but that anyone who cannot be aroused is abnormal.

The only harm comes from the guilt-making and punishment-dispensing attitude of the community. This is the danger, people who make sex dirty and evil, who kill and shout and hess in the name of "decency" or "morals" or the "community or religion, people who deny others their human rights, and notice that which they themselves are afraid to notice.

GRIZO RAYFUSE

Only Five Of 12 Died, Most 90

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Bill Thompson, administrator of Douglas Memorial Hospital, said here Friday that only five of 13 chronically ill elderly people died within months of their transfer from two homes for the aged in the Niagara region.

On Tuesday, Doug Rapelje, regional director of welfare for the aged, told a Niagara region social services committee meeting that 12 of the, 13 died following their transfer from Sunset Haven in Welland and Northland Manor in Port Colborne.

Mr. Thompson says that of the 13, five died, six are still in Douglas Memorial Hospital, one was transferred to another hospital and one was discharged.

"The people were all very ill," said Mr. Thompson. "Their average age is 80. With that age, you can't help but lose a few."

Welland Mayor Allan Pietz, chairman of the social services committee, said that the transfers were made at the direction of the province.

The suggestion for the transfer came from the minister of health and was designed to make the best possible use of available facilities in the region, said the mayor.

Early this year, Douglas Memorial Hospital opened a wing in its building for treatment and care of chronically ill elderly people who are now in homes for the aged.

Sent to Prison

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Marie Myre, 20, of Ottawa, who pleaded guilty to a charge of importing narcotics into the country, was sentenced Thursday to seven years in prison.

Fire Burning

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Fire crews in the northwestern forest region, which stretches from Atikokan on the Manitoba border, are battling a 5,000-acre blaze.

The fire is located 25 miles south of Highway 17, near Vermillion Bay, and while its cause has not been determined, one official said it is definitely man-made.

Mounties Check Munro's Campaign Contributors

TORONTO (CP) — Thomas McPhail, press agent for Labor Minister John Munro, said Thursday copies of Mr.Munro's federal election campaign budget and a list of his political contributors has been turned over to the RCMP who are investigating irregularities in the operation of Hamilton ledger.

Mr. McPhail said the RCMP visited the minister's campaign office in Hamilton.

He said Mr. Munro objected when the police wanted to take his campaign budget.

"He told them he was in the middle of a campaign and he said 'If you take that we'll be lost without it,'" said Mr. McPhail.

He said the RCMP eventually photocopied documents at campaign headquarters.

Mr. McPhail said he believes the RCMP were looking for the names of certain individuals and companies in Mr. Munro's lists of campaign contributors.

Compensation Boost Last Bill in House

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature faces the last hurdle before the summer recess this morning—the government's controversial increase in compensation for injured workmen.

The bill, tabled after a marathon session at 3 a.m., but the legislature are to be back in their seats this morning to undertake study of Labor Minister John MacBeth's amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Liberal House Leader James Breithaupt said he doesn't expect the party to produce any amendments to the pension increase—"but we'll oppose them."

The opposition parties have said the increases do not go far enough to help disabled workers and they have demanded the pensions be tied to the cost of living—a step the government refused to take.

The long session which ended this morning saw tired members leave the House after working an 18 hills.

Among the legislation given committee approval was a bill to declare the government of southwestern Ontario's Oxford county.

Other bills passed through committee study—the last step before the usual formality of reading—included measures to allow municipalities greater flexibility in area planning and tighter control of urban development, legislation to set up a regional transit authority in Toronto, and housekeeping amendments to a series of acts already in force.

The government began a strong push Monday to clear a backlog of proposed legislation and several bills were put over bills from the order paper before the summer adjournment.

Earlier Thursday, one of the high-priority items, the government's guaranteed annual income program for the blind, disabled and elderly, received third reading.

The plan, which provides for an minimum annual income of $2,000 for eligible recipients, is to go into effect July 1. It needs only routine royal assent.

Another series of bills remain on the order paper, but they are to be left over for consideration in the fall.

Ban on Pull-top Cans Proposed for Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — A report recommending a ban on soft-drink cans with pull-top tabs and other major changes in soft-drink containers was tabled in the legislature Thursday.

The report, prepared by a special committee was presented by Environment Minister William Newman.

The committee said the sharp metal tabs left over when the cans are opened cause litter and their sharp edges are a minor health hazard.

The report recommends that all soft-drinks be sold in refillable containers of standard sizes.

It said the province should set a minimum refund level for refillable soft-drink containers of five cents for containers up to 19 ounces and 10 cents for those over 18 ounces.

Refunds currently vary from company to company.

For young children who help finance their summer camp time, by collecting empty bottles, the report had an encouraging clause, suggesting that vendors be required to give cash refunds. Many smaller operators offer credit instead of cash.

The report said, however, that vendors should not have to accept more than 24 empties per person a day.

The committee did not go as far as recommending the throw-away soft-drink bottles be banned, saying such a move would be harmful to the industry.

The report also hit hard at the wine and spirits industry, which last year contributed the equivalent of more than 143 million 26-ounce bottles to solid waste in the province.

The report produced no recommendations on solving the waste problem other than to ask the environment ministry to develop procedures to reduce the bulk of glass waste.

The brewing industry came in for praise as a model bottle-return system.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
ENVIRONMENTAL HEARING BOARD
VILLAGE OF WELLINGTON
PROVINCIAL SEWAGE WORKS PROGRAMME

WHEREAS plans and an engineer's report concerning a Provincial sewage works programme to serve the Village of Wellington have been developed for the Ontario Ministry of the Environment and whereas approval is required in accordance with Section 40 of The Ontario Water Resources Act, as amended;

AND WHEREAS it appears from an examination of the said plans that the proposed sewage treatment plant would be located in the vicinity of Lot 26S, south of Main Street, West of Shrouds Street, in the Village of Wellington;

AND WHEREAS the Environmental Hearing Board has been requested by the Ministry of the Environment to hold a public hearing pursuant to Section 44(1) of the said Act;

NOW THEREFORE this is to give notice that the Environmental Hearing Board shall hold a public hearing on Tuesday, July 8, 1974 at 10:00 o'clock in the afternoon local time, at the Wellington Town Hall, 340 Main Street, Wellington, Ontario.

THE PURPOSE OF THE HEARING it is to enable the Environmental Hearing Board to obtain information and to hear the views expressed at the hearing so as to enable it to form an opinion on the merits as to whether the use and operation of the proposed site would or would not be in the public interest.

And Take Notice that if you do not attend at this hearing the Environmental Hearing Board may proceed in your absence and you will not be entitled to any further notice of the proceedings.

Plans of the proposed sewage works will be available for inspection in the office of the municipal clerk of the VILLAGE OF WELLINGTON, 340 Main Street, Wellington, Ontario.

T. M. Murphy,
Secretary,
Environmental Hearing Board.

Liberals Bullies, Not Partners - - PCs

EDMONTON (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield Thursday night delivered his strongest attack of the campaign against Prime Minister Trudeau's handling of federal-provincial relations, calling the Liberal government bullies, not partners, in Confederation.

Addressing his most enthusiastic crowd of the campaign, he accused the government of deliberately going against Alberta's interests in hopes of gaining more seats in Eastern Canada.

Mr. Stanfield's remarks won frequent applause from Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed, a fellow Conservative who was on the platform before the crowd that filled Edmonton's 2,500-seat Jubilee Auditorium. The Conservatives won all 19 Alberta seats in the 1972 election.

"The present government of Canada has gone out of its way to isolate this province, to provoke its government, and to cast dis oil and gas industry of Western Canada in the villain's role in the rest of the country," the Conservative leader said.

He saw a general thrust my the Liberal government to overturn provincial and local priorities "so that Ottawa becomes a more pervasive, more powerful presence throughout the land."

"I am offering Canada the opportunity to restore the concept of a federal government that is in partnership with the provinces, that will set its objectives and priorities in consultation with the provinces, that will respect the rights of the provinces just as fearlessly as it will protect its own."

Watched by all 19 Conservative candidates from Alberta, Mr. Stanfield charged that Mr. Trudeau has been trying to trade off the legitimate interests in this province for seats in Ontario and in Eastern Canada."

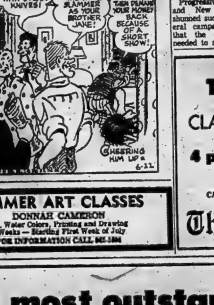
"That's the old Liberal game of divide and conquer, the old technique of sowing prejudice and suspicion in the hope of a harvest of votes."

Mr. Stanfield's biggest applause of the night came as he affirmed his pledge to halt the growth of the public service.

Premier Lougheed won equal enthusiasm from the crowd when he introduced Mr. Stanfield as a man who would "run the mandarins in Ottawa."

Native Protesters Disrupt NDP Rally

SASKATOON (CP) — About dozen their concerns with him 20 native protesters disrupted a New Democratic Party rally while NDP Leader David Lewis was speaking here Thursday night.



The group, including members of provincial youth and native organizations, demonstrated initially outside the main entrance to the downtown Centennial Auditorium where the rally was being held.

The NDP leader invited the group to sit down on empty seats in the front row and to when he finished speaking.

When he concluded, Nora Thibodeau, president of the Native Women of Saskatchewan, read a list of complaints against the provincial NDP government and accused it of breaking forward to native people.

Mr. Lewis said he understood that a meeting was scheduled July 3 between the provincial government and the native leaders. The group should not have disrupted the rally with the date so close, he added.

Toronto Liberals Welcome Trudeau

TORONTO (CP) — The crowd was only about half as large as organizers were prepared for, but a roaring mass of between 12,000 and 14,000 loyal Liberals provided Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau Thursday with his largest audience in the election campaign.

Conditions for the massive rally were ideal and, naturally, it went without a hitch. Bands and entertainers warmed up an already enthusiastic crowd and white balloons soared into the sky on cue as Mr. Trudeau, who introduced and sporadic hecklers merely helped spice up the prime minister's standard campaign speech.

But organizers, who planned on a crowd of 25-30,000, were less than joyous at the turnout for what was billed as perhaps the last monster rally in Canadian politics.

One launched into an argument with stadium manager Cecil Sublett when he revised his first estimate of 14,228 down to 12,000 shortly before the prime minister spoke.

"That's the kind of love," the genial Liberal complained.

Progressive Conservatives and New Democrats have shunned such meetings for several campaigns now, arguing that the energy and effort needed to stage such an event does not pay off in votes.

Liberal campaign organizers said they decided to gamble with the rally—a gathering of candidates and constituents from 26 ridings in and around this provincial capital—in the hope that it would ignite the party for the remaining 42 campaign days.

"What a meeting and what an evening and what a party we have!" he told the cheering crowd from a raised platform at the University of Toronto Varsity Stadium playing field.

Promises Said Worthless

SASKATOON (CP) — Election promises made by Prime Minister Trudeau are worthless, David Lewis said Thursday night.

"Worse yet, many of the promises are couched in subterfuge, semantics, hedging and all are half-baked because they have been knocked together in the panic of the (July 8 election) campaign," the New Democratic Party leader told a cheering Thursday night.

Your Chances Are Better with Soup

Statistically speaking, you have a better chance of winning one of four prizes in The Intelligencer's cooking contest if you enter a recipe in the appetizers and soups section.

While recipes for other divisions — main dish, dessert and vegetable salad — are beginning to pour in already, that category still has few entrants. There'll be a winner from each division — dinner at one of four restaurants in Belleville and a cash prize of $25 — so soup or appetizer recipe entrants have a better chance at least right now.

The competition, which closes July 31, is unique in that every recipe entered will be published in the cookbook that will come with your Intelligencer August 30. And every recipe entered will be eligible for a draw prize consisting of merchandise and vouchers from many area merchants. And, of course, there's the cooking competition itself which will be judged by three widely-known cooking experts.

Dorothy MacKinnon, her professional name is Dorothy Batchelor, is known across Canada for her years of work with the egg and poultry industry. Currently with the new egg marketing board, the home economist develops and tests recipes and makes it her business to disseminate nutrition information and cooking tips. She's the author of several cookbooks.

Ed Gould, currently a Hotel Management instructor at Loyalist College, spent five years as an indentured apprentice chef in England and later was chef de cuisine of the Golden Lion Hotel, Scotland.

Kay Pape has been a member of a gourmet club for several years and is a just plain great cook. The mother of seven children, Mrs. Pape says cooking is her favorite hobby. She helps husband Bill — owner of Pape's Steak House — with menus and cooking, too.

Voters Dropped

VANCOUVER (CP) — Increased training of federal enumerators resulted in some British subjects who voted in Canada's 1972 election being added to voters' lists, says Margaret Mirko, returning officer for Vancouver Quadra. The Citizenship Act says a British subject who is not a Canadian citizen must have resided for Canada before June 25, 1967, to be eligible to vote federally.

Ann Landers

Fat Legs Sour Beau

Dear Ann Landers: I am not a teen-ager. I'm a mature man who has been wanting to get married for the last two years. Please respond to this when you respond to my letter.

I met Miss G. at a summer resort seven months ago. We had a marvellous time and shared a lot in common when it came to religion, education, economic status and even political interests.

We live 50 miles apart and see each other nearly every weekend. G. has a nice figure and always wears pantsuits or long dresses. I must say that she has some great outfits and people frequently comment on her excellent taste in clothes.

Yesterday, for the first time, G. wore a knee-length dress and I saw her legs. It was a shock. They are terrible. I don't mean just heavy, but gross. I had a difficult time concealing my surprise. I felt almost betrayed—as if she had been hiding them from me.

I admit my feelings toward her have soured a bit and now I need to know if you think I could be happy married to this woman. We have talked about marriage from time to time and I'm sure she'd like very much to be my wife. What do you say? — Don't Know How

Dear D.K.N.: For heaven's sake, do the girl a favor and stop seeing her at once. She'd be a fool to waste another minute on a sap like you.

From now on, you ought to insist that any girl you ask out wear a dress (or maybe shorts) on the second date. You could then gather all the "vital statistics" at once and not waste your time—or hers.

Dear Ann Landers: I was struck by that letter from the teen-ager whose mother found her diary which caused so much grief in the family. You said, "Never put anything in writing that might cause pain or disappointment if it should be read 'accidentally'." That was astute advice, Ann, and I hope somebody listens.

Right now I'm suffering the torture of the damned because after 15 years of what I thought was a good marriage, I ran into my wife's old diary. It was under a box of family pictures in the storage room. After reading just a few pages I became sick to my stomach. I learned she was having a sizzling affair all the time we were engaged. She sleeps with a guy (who was an usher at our wedding) three days before the married me. Our son was born exactly nine months after our marriage and now I'm not sure I fathered that child.

I feel betrayed and cheated. It's becoming increasingly difficult to control my anger and hostility. I've talked with my priest and he advised me to forgive and forget, that it doesn't matter now, and to be thankful for the good years we've had together.

My wife doesn't know I read her diary and I need your advice. Should I tell her? I can't go on living this way.—Derailed in Bloomfield Hills

Dear D.: By all means discuss this situation with your wife at once. Bottled emotions are like a time bomb. The ultimate explosion can be extremely damaging. Go back to your priest for additional counselling and reassurance. He has given you good advice. In the meantime, are you listening, students?

Successful Living

Eye Check-ups Important

By DORIS CLARK

Four-year-old Peter was quiet and shy. He clung to his mother and wouldn't play with other children. They called him "stupid" and he did seem that way. Then he was fitted with glasses. Overnight he changed. He could see! He's friendly now and well behaved — a happy member of the kindergarten set.

Your child may wear an invisible dunce cap if you send him off to school with a dim view — of everything!

It's something you may not recognize. And he won't complain because he doesn't know what it is to see well. There is just one way to be sure. Take him to an eye specialist as soon as he is old enough to walk. Then again when he starts to school.

Less than half the children needing glasses have them.

Dear Doris: If the leaflet entitled "Aging — Some Rules To Go By" is still available, may I have one, please. I am far from 80, but I have two very dear old friends who might find the rules helpful.

They are both old in years but young at heart. Both have lost their life's partners, and now wish for something to fill the long days and empty hours.

Alone Too.

Dear Alone Too: Good for you for having dear friends in another age range than your own. Many of us can benefit by a look at life tremendously if we see every single person—from age one to age 91 — as somebody we'd like to know. There are untold treasures in this kind of exploration.

Loneliness is horrible — yet experienced regularly by so many older people.

(Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, in care of this newspaper, can put you on the way to more Successful Living.)

At Home

In honor of the 50th wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Robinson, RR 2, Marmora, their family invite friends and neighbors to a reception Sunday June 30 from 2-4 p.m. at Hastings Manor, Belleville.

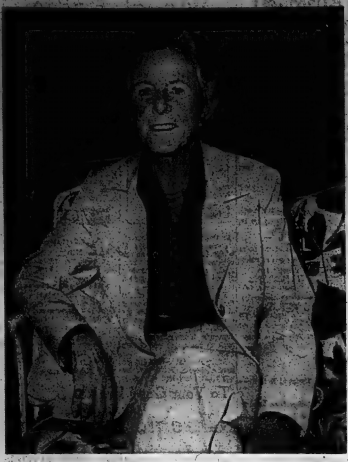
Why not install the other half now for summer comfort?

Chances are, you already own half a central air conditioning system — the more costly half! If your home is heated by a modern, warm air furnace, then you have the air mover, ducts and registers and you can add on an air conditioning unit very simply. All it takes is an outdoor condensing unit, a cooling coil and refrigerant lines. And a simple wiring job from your panel to the condenser.



Slam the door on heat. Humidity. Pollen. Dust. Noise. Bask in cool, summer comfort.

The cost is lower than you think. Our experts will measure your cooling needs and give you an estimate — at no obligation, of course. And when Moira Schuster quotes a price, that's it — there are no extras. Installation and taxes are included.

Oh yes, you are welcome to use Moira Schuster's easy convenient financing plan and pay for your air conditioning system in small monthly installments.

Mabel Hees

Active Sportswoman, Veteran Campaigner

Mabel Hees, who was "born into a political family" thought she'd escaped politics, when she married George Hees forty years ago this Sunday.

But, as she puts it, "I only escaped for a few years — during the war. George became interested in politics . . . he says so much he thought should be done and there we were."

A member of parliament for 24 years, this is the 10th election Hees has contested.

While Mabel Hees travels in the Prince Edward-Hastings riding — where George Hees is seeking re-election as the Progressive Conservative member — with her husband she doesn't generally tag along on cross-country campaigning tours.

This election, for example, she's spending most of her days at the family's Cobourg estate, Rathburwood — Rathban is a family name — enjoying the country life she loves so well.

Three daughters — Catherine a Rutgers University professor; Martha, a social worker in Hamilton; and Roslyn, a director of the private agency Washington Population Reference Bureau — are grown and gone from Rathburwood but the swing set still sits on the lawn for use by the pair's four grandchildren.

A graduate of Varsity College, University of Toronto, Mrs. Hees devotes most of her spare time to sports. Golfing, skating, tennis, riding and skiing are all special interests and Mrs. Hees feels particularly lucky that their Rockliff area home in Ottawa is so handy to all of these sports for the four months of the year they live there.

"I laid down my needles on VE day and I haven't picked them up since," she says.

Social Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Callaghan, Corbyville, are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Jane Marie to Laury Empson Pascoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Pascoe, Shannonville. The marriage will take place at 4 p.m. July 13, at St. Charles' Boremeo Church, Read.

* * *

Mrs. Bessie Stoh of Frankford was united in marriage to Ross Dafoe, Belleville, on Saturday, June 22, 1974 in College Hill United Church. Rev. Roy Veisey officiated at the ceremony.

SUSANNE ELLIS, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gibson of Belleville graduated from Queen's University May 24 with a Bachelor of Education. A graduate of Centennial secondary School, Mrs. Ellis is doing research at Queen's University and will be teaching in the Kingston area in the fall.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
Saturday, June 29

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your plans will suffer minor frustrations today, but it won't be anything that can't be worked out. A "fun" evening is ahead.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Get your domestic responsibilities out of the way as soon as possible so you can do something that satisfies today's creative social urges.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Superiors tend to look upon you at this time in very favorable light. A good day for a private confab with the boss.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) It's your big ideas that have the best chance of success today. Concentrate on major issues that have far-reaching effects.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) It's best to leave certain confidential family matters to yourself. Nothing of value will be realized by talking loosely to outsiders.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will be the victorious party today if you are willing to make compromises and concessions to facilitate an agreement.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't treat with indifference or complacency propositions you now have offered by persons who can further your present ambitions.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) Something that you have thought through carefully may look risky to others. If you stick to your game plan it will turn out as you envision.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The outcome of something important appears to be in doubt at this time. You shouldn't despair, the real truth favors you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't rely upon hearsay information. Instead, go directly to the source. You'll beat friendly hand that wants you to "spread the bear."

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are still in a fortunate cycle for getting what you go after. Don't sit on your duff, start piling up points.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Behave in an open and generous manner toward those you have dealings with. You'll find you will be treated with the same consideration.

Opening lead—♥ 2

By Oswald and James Jacoby

One of the best plays in bridge look so easy that no one realizes how difficult they really are. Here is one that helped decide an important team match.

The bidding and play of the first three tricks was the same at both tables. South won the first trick with the queen of hearts, led a diamond to dummy's king and a spade back to his queen. West overcalls one spade. What do you do next?

Answer Tomorrow

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♠	Pass	2♣
Pass	3♥	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ 8 5 4 ♥ K J 4 3 2 ♦ A Q 9 7 ♣ 6 3

What do you do now?

ANSWER: Bid four hearts. Don't keep your partner in suspense. He won't bid a weak jump shift.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You hold the same hand as before. Your partner overcalls one spade. What do you do now?

Chronic Leukemia Help Now Simple

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would be so pleased if you could explain why doctors said, "No help in any way for chronic leukemia." Can we expect it to just stay chronic after 15 years of 20,000 to 30,000 white-cell count?

I stay busy, have plenty to keep me happy, will soon be 70, but I do need an honest answer to my question. Have decided it's lack of knowledge about leukemia.—Mrs. S.

I don't know of any doctors saying any such thing. I take it for granted you mean chronic lymphatic leukemia, which is more likely to attack older people than younger folks.

There is help for it—radiation treatments and medication. But if you mean "cure" rather than "help," that's another matter.

If at 78 your white count remains between 20,000 and 30,000, I would say that you are doing well—and I would gather that this is being achieved without some sort of treatment. You are busy and happy, and it seems to me that you have been getting whatever help you need.

It's true that we do not have a cure for the various forms of leukemia, but more is constantly being learned, even about the far more dangerous acute leukemia cases. And even there, in the acute cases, we have a steadily increasing number that are kept in remission for years at a time, whereas only a decade or two ago life expectancy was measured only in months.

There is help for chronic leukemia, and for the acute cases, too.

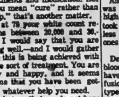
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been having my period for three years (I'm 46). The last six months I've been having terrible cramps. They are so bad I can't even get up or walk. What would help me? What causes them?—Ja Pale.

Your case sounds extreme, and the cramps certainly need treatment.

From the beginning of menstruation, the secretion of estrogen produces steadily more tissue, resulting often in the situation you describe. Part of the trouble can be laid to the hormone acting upon the uterus.

Your case sounds extreme enough to call for a visit to your doctor. Any of the analgin products are helpful, and perhaps a diuretic would offer some relief. And don't neglect exercise. It was shown in a study among Mah ethnic girls that those who took part in gym classes had less menstrual pain than the ones who did not.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My blood type is O-Rh negative. I have had to have several transfusions. I read somewhere that type O is common, so why do they always have trouble getting blood for me?—Mrs. A.K.



Yes, type O is common, but it is more likely to be O-Rh positive, while mine is Rh negative, which isn't that common.

Belleville Industrial Site Said Gratifying

The newest addition to Belleville's growing family of industries was officially welcomed to the city Thursday afternoon.

This was the Castings Division of S. A. Armstrong Ltd., a Toronto-based firm that will eventually employ between 25 and 40 employees once operations start rolling after mid-November. Cornerstone Builders of Belleville are doing the design and construction work.

Taking part in the official cornerstone laying ceremonies Thursday were Mayor Robin Jeffrey, S. A. Armstrong president, J. A. C. Armstrong of Toronto and Walter Stethem of Armstrong.

In attendance were various city councillors, Jack Ellis, Brian Holmes, manager of Corporation, Fred Bemis, Industrial Commissioner, Bruce Nickson, chairman of the Industrial Commission Chamber of Commerce president, George Thompson, his manager Don Sgiton, and various representatives of city business and industry.

In her statement Mayor Jeffrey told her audience that Belleville is becoming an important industrialized community in Eastern Ontario and a lot of the thanks should go to Mr. Bemis and Mr. Nickson working on the city's Industrial Commission.

J. A. C. Armstrong, president of the company which will produce brass and iron casting sections in the city, said that his company hired consulting engineers to search for a suitable plant location between Trenton and Cornwall.

"They decided on Belleville and after we looked into it, we were gratified that we made such a decision," he said.

The site of the plant occupies 6½ acres on the newly built cul-de-sac called Herma Boulevard in the city's northwest industrial park off Harmer Street south of Highway 401. Work started in early June and actual construction work should start early in July.

Completion date of mid-November is being planned.

The plant based in Toronto is Canada's largest manufacturer of centrifugal pumps. The initial stage of the plant should consist of about 25,000 to 30,000 square feet and will make castings for centrifugal pumps and heat exchangers. Plant superintendent will be David Hamilton who comes from Toronto to assume these duties.

Artist's rendering of S. A. Armstrong, Castings Division plant to be completed in mid-November

The city's newest industry, S. A. Armstrong, Castings Division, was officially opened Thursday afternoon in a cornerstone laying ceremony. Mayor Robin Jeffrey smiles broadly as she lays the stone while Armstrong president, J. A. C. Armstrong and Walter Stethem, in rear, vice-president of engineering and manufacturing, look on.

Police Say Begging A Problem

Ontario's top ranking policemen passed a motion at the end of the annual conference of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police here yesterday that will see them approaching the federal government to request that begging be restored as an offence under the vagrancy section of the Criminal Code of Canada.

In 1972, the federal government deleted the offence of begging from the criminal code on the grounds that it was regarded as discrimination against the poor.

The Ontario police chiefs, who met in Belleville for their annual conference, have expressed opposition to that change, saying that in big cities young people who beg have caused some problems that the police can't cope with.

Police chief Robert F. Cook, of Sarnia, the chairman of the OACP's legislation committee, told The Intelligencer that he felt the problem of begging "is becoming paramount, particularly in the larger cities where some young toughs will stand over older people and intimidate them to give them money."

CAS to Decide

Committee Would Put Foster Parent on Board

By AL ZOBAS
Staff Reporter

Foster parents will gain a voice in the Hastings Children's aid society if both directors and the province accept a special committee recommendation that calls for a Foster Parent Association (FPA) appointee to sit on its board.

The provision for FPA representation was recommended by a committee formed by CAS president Allen Bronson to study possible revision of society bylaws.

The full board of directors is expected to deal with this, and other committee recommendations in September, after the summer recess. Final approval for changes in society bylaws rests with the provincial government.

In an outline of committee recommendations it is proposed an FPA member sit on the board as the seventh appointee. Current bylaws provide for six appointees — three directors from Hastings County, two from Belleville and a single director representing Trenton.

All other directors of the 20-member board are elected at the CAS annual meeting.

The committee's action follows charges that present board policy is discriminatory in denying foster parents society membership. A move by foster parents to become society members was blocked at the CAS annual meeting in March, but was met with the promise that board policy would come under review.

At that time, the special committee was formed to undertake a study.

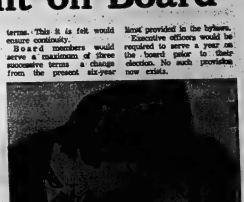
Thursday's release states plans are also being considered to waive a requirement that all CAS members be subject to board approval — a practice now followed.

President Mr. Bronson issued only elaborate on the statement, saying only the release contains "the intent of the bylaw committee."

"The release follows the proposed bylaws pretty well," he said Thursday. The board considered changes in society bylaws earlier this week.

He said only one minor amendment was made to the proposals at that time, but would not elaborate.

It is proposed society membership to be opened to all registered voters in Hastings County, Belleville and Trenton. Excluded would be society salaried employees.



Changes in the term of office of directors are also suggested.

The seven appointees and the five-member board executive would serve one-year terms. Now a maximum of two years is permitted executive officers by CAS bylaws.

Remaining members would also serve a single one-year term with the exception that they would serve two-year terms. This it is felt would ensure continuity.

Board members would serve a maximum of three successive terms, a change from the present six-year limit provided in the bylaws.

Executive officers would be required to serve a year on the board prior to their nomination. No such provision now exists.

A Final Look

United Community Services president Virginia O'Rourke (left) and secretary Marjorie Cairns proofread stencils for the final time Thursday before the 1974 edition of a people service directory goes to press. It is expected the 100 copies of the 75-page listing of Belleville health, welfare and recreational groups will be ready by Friday next week.

The Campaigners

Long Days Meet More People

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

"Hi, I'm Marie Kurchak, Liberal candidate for Hastings.

"I hope you'll listen to what I say in the campaign and remember me on July 8."

Two hundred times a day, from 7 a.m. until after 10 p.m. it goes on, the endless meet-the-candidate campaign of the Liberal party in this riding.

It all rests on the slim shoulders of Marie Kurchak, 33-year-old hopeful, bringing the new style of politics to a staid riding.

Mrs. Kurchak is battling entrenched Conservativism, male chauvinism, and the ennui of the present electoral campaign with her own brand of political activism.

She begins at 7 a.m., meeting workers as they enter plants for the day shift. She continues with coffee parties, and "main streeting," accosting people and introducing herself.

"Hi, I'm Marie Kurchak. Have you any questions?"

She knows the answers.

After the campaigning ends about 10 p.m. she spends three hours reading up on the national events of the day and headquarters' communiques on issues. She refuses to let anyone else research them for her.

She gets six hours sleep a night if she's lucky and eats one meal a day, in the evening when she can finally relax.

"Most members of parliament try to make points for themselves instead of trying to get information out to their constituents" she says.

There is plenty of grant money available, through, for instance, the department of consumer and corporate affairs, if people know how to apply for it. Information like this is lacking at the constituency level, says Mrs. Kurchak.

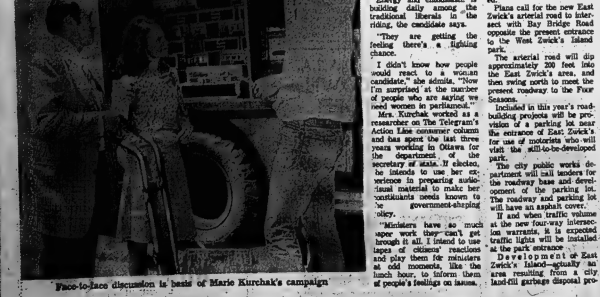
"Most people don't know the division between federal and provincial jurisdictions or where to turn."

She's there to indicate the turning point.

"I don't intend to let up after the election," says Mr. Kurchak. "My goals is to keep bringing people together to build a community network of information to go back to the government."

Mrs. Kurchak isn't directing her campaign to any particular group or specifically to young people.

"I want to bring all interest groups together," she says,



Energy and enthusiasm is building daily among the traditional liberals in the riding, the candidate says.

"They are getting the feeling there's a fighting chance.

I didn't know how people would react to a woman candidate," she admits, "How I'm surprised at the number of people who are saying we need women in parliament."

Mrs. Kurchak worked as a researcher on The Telegram's Action Line consumer column and has spent the last three years working in Ottawa for the department of the secretary of state. If elected, he intends to use her experience in preparing sociocultural material to make her constituents needs known in government-shaping policy.

"Ministers have so much paper work they can't get through it all. I intend to use tapes of citizens' reactions and play them for ministers at odd moments, like the lunch hour, to inform them of people's feelings on issues.

Face-to-face discussion is basis of Marie Kurchak's campaign

East Zwick's Road Starts Next Month

Customers at the Four Seasons Hotel travelling from the city's downtown area will still have a bit further to drive following completion of a proposed East Zwick's Island arterial road.

Construction of the new roadway is expected to get under way in July and when it is completed the present entranceway to the hotel off the Bridge Road will be closed.

Plans call for the new East Zwick's arterial road to intersect with Bay Bridge Road opposite the present entrance to the West Zwick's Island park.

The arterial road will dip approximately 200 feet into the East Zwick's area, and then swing north to meet the present roadway to the Four Seasons.

Included in this year's roadbuilding projects will be provision of a parking lot near the entrance of East Zwick's for use of motorists who will visit the still-to-be-developed park.

The city public works department will call tenders for the roadway base and development of the parking lot. The roadway and parking lot will have an asphalt cover.

If and when traffic volume in the new four-way intersection warrants, it is expected traffic lights will be installed at the park entrance.

Development of East Zwick's Island—actually an area resulting from a city land-fill garbage disposal project — is a long-term project of the city park's board. Overall cost of the East Zwick's park has been estimated in excess of half a million dollars.

First phase park development was initiated last year with the building of the man-made hill, adding of topsoil and grading of the entire park area.

For several years the city has placed $100,000 in its capital budget for continued East Zwick's development. This year's arterial road and parking lot portion are expected to cost approximately $60,000.

100F Picnic On Weekend

An annual picnic, complete with a day of games, contests and an outdoor supper at Hide-A-Way Park on West Lake, was held by the Belleville Independent Order of Oddfellows No. 81 and Quinte Rebekah Lodge No. 133 last weekend.

The day-ending Tug-O-War was won by the Rebekah Lodge.

Winner of the 50-50 draw was R. Gradwell of RR3, Leamington, Ontario.

Services Available In New Directory

A "people services" directory, the first to be published in three years, is within days of completion and distribution, Virginia O'Rourke, United Community Services president, said during an interview Thursday.

The enlarged 75-page directory outlines services available to Quinte area residents in the health, welfare and recreational fields in Belleville.

Enlarged from the 54-page 1971 directory, this edition includes a greater variety of special interest groups, professional organizations and service clubs among its 250 listings.

"Copies will get into the hands of people that will be using them soon," Mrs. O'Rourke said. "They are reserved for agencies that supply or have requests for information."

Work on compiling and updating listings has been carried on since autumn 1973.

Three Loyalist College students, under the behavorial studies program, worked toward the directory's completion, but UCS personnel did the majority of the paperwork.

However, said Mrs. O'Rourke, it was beyond the scope of the agency's limited manpower to include groups outside Belleville. Only organizations within the city that provide service to Belleville residents have been included.

Each listing, indexed alphabetically and according to type of service provided, outlines a group's hours, fees (if any), affiliation and membership. All are cross-indexed.

Mrs. O'Rourke said Thursday that her agency plans to issue a second edition if demand outstrips the available 100 copies — all printed at the Ministry of Community and Social Services offices here in Belleville The ministry is underwriting the entire cost of publication.

Once complete, the directory will be used as a supplement to the Handbook for Counselling Newcomers used by the ministry in acquainting recent new Canadians with the Quinte area.

McGlothen Records 11th Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lyon McGlothen, who has been more games than anybody else in the National League, pitched a four-hitter for St. Louis Cardinals Thursday night for his 11th victory of the season, a 6-1 breeze over New York Mets.

In Thursday night's other National League games, Chicago Cubs edged Montreal Expos 5-4, Cincinnati Reds beat Atlanta Braves 6-3 and San Francisco Giants topped San Diego Padres 4-2.

"I'm not doing anything different than I did last year, except maybe I'm throwing a few more strikes," said McGlothen, pacing his 11-3 season and 2.62 earned-run average with 1972's 1-3 mark and 8.32 ERA with Boston Red Sox.

"The Red Sox gave me a chance to pitch and that was all I've just didn't win."

He didn't have much of a chance, though. Thomson used him for only 23 innings, during which he had 15 strikeouts and eight walks. He's pitched 196 innings already for the Cards with 72 strikeouts and 41 walks.

"I'd like to win as many games as I can. I want to get this club into the World Series," McGlothen said.

He got St. Louis a half-game lead over the Philadelphia Phillies in the East Division. So did Reggie Smith, Ted Simmons and Joe Torre, who scored consecutive run-scoring doubles in a four-run second inning.

Dave Concepcion ripped a three-run homer in the fourth inning to give the Reds their triumph over Atlanta, moving the Reds within six games of the idle West Division-leading Los Angeles Dodgers and saddling the Braves with their third straight loss.

The homer put the Reds ahead to stay at 5-3.

Bobby Bonds hit a single, a triple and a three-run homer to help the Giants snap their six-game losing streak and keep them from falling into last place behind San Diego in the West.

John D'Acquisto not only hurled a six-hitter for San Francisco, he also walked and doubled.

Dave Rader doubled and D'Acquisto walked before Bonds belted his 11th homer in the second inning. In the fourth, D'Acquisto doubled and scored on Chris Speier's single.

Cubs' Fifth Inning Sinks Expos

MONTREAL (CP)—A load-off one out later on a Montreal error. triple by Vic Harris highlighted a seven-run uprising in the fifth inning that carried Chicago Cubs to a 5-4 victory over Montreal Expos in National League baseball play Thursday night.

Harris hit Ernie McAnally's third pitch of the inning off the fence in right-centre, 400 feet from home plate, and scored

VIC HARRIS

Bonham went to second on the play and scored when Don Kessinger followed with a single to the middle. Billy Williams and Jose Cardenal drove in the two other Chicago runs with base hits off McAnally, 5-7.

Chicago took a 2-0 lead in the fourth when Steve Ontiveros doubled and scored on a single by Cardenal but Montreal came back to tie it in the bottom of the inning. Rusty Staub's fly lofted over a run with a bases-loaded single.

That run was the first against Expos' followed complete game and Steve Renko and Steve Rogers against Philadelphia Phillies.

Montreal chased Bonham, 6-10, with a two-run rally in the sixth inning as reliever Oscar Zamora came on to get the victory out of further trouble.

Larry Lintz led off with a walk and moved to second when Willie Davis singled to left. Ken Singleton scored Lintz with a base hit to left before Ron Fairly walked to load the bases. Bonham was lifted for Zamora and the breaking-ball specialist got Bailey to hit into a double play, which scored Davis, before getting Foli to ground out.

Bailey cracked his eighth homer of the year—a solo shot to lead off the ninth—to cut Chicago's lead to 5-4, but Zamora retired the next three batters to record his second save of the season.

Pattin Learned Lesson Well

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's a good thing Marty Pattin threws a lot faster than he learns.

"I threw five sliders in a row to (Aurelio) Rodrigues in relief on our last road trip to Detroit," said Pattin after his long, strong relief stint helped Kansas City Royals topple Oakland A's 5-4 Thursday night. "And he hit one of them for a home run.

"I realized right then my last ball is my best pitch and I haven't been using it enough over the years."

Manager Jack McKeon also mentioned that Pattin's best pitch was the one he wasn't throwing.

"We told him he had a good fastball and to use it. He proved it tonight."

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland Indians shaded Boston Red Sox 2-1; Milwaukee Brewers tripped Detroit Tigers 5-1; Minnesota Twins thumped Chicago White Sox 6-3, and California Angels blanked Texas Rangers 5-0.

Angels Convince Williams

ANAHEIM (AP) — Dick Williams, who left Oakland A's after victory in the last two World Series, is benching his ailing baseball next Monday to manage California Angels because the offer was "too tremendous I couldn't turn it down."

Williams, 45, agreed to serve with the Angels through the 1977 American League season for what is believed to be at least $100,000 a year. He succeeds Bobby Winkles, fired earlier Thursday by the Angels, 30-44, languished in the Western Division basement.

"I'm quite happy to be returning to baseball," said Williams who has been in private business since A's owner Charles O. Finley blocked his hiring as manager of New York Yankees.

Williams quit the A's after the 1973 World Series and Finley, after accusing the Angels to approach Williams, requested the hiring of a council-appointed in San Francisco then prevented Williams from managing any team except Oakland through 1975.

Gene Autry, Angels' chairman of the board, said Finley "didn't act out of compensation. We did this on a friendship basis."

Williams said he missed baseball, but when asked if he would have taken any offer that came along, he said: "No, not. Definitely not."

Coach Whitey Herzog will direct the Angels until Williams arrives.

Williams, the only man to manage more than two seasons for Finley, had said he wanted to leave Oakland so that he could be closer to his family on the East Coast.

"The salary, the (contract) longevity and the locality," said Williams, persuaded him to come to the Angels. "I was raised in Southern California in Pasadena, and I still have family, my parents, out there," he said.

Some Doubt Surrounds Queen's Plate Favorites

TORONTO (CP) — If you listen to the assessments of Jos Thomas and Ted Mann, the Queen's Plate shapes up as a battle Saturday between Police Car and Native Aid.

Police Car is a 5-to-2 favorite in the race for Canadian-foaled three-year-olds at Woodbine Racetrack and Native Aid is the second choice at 3 to 1.

"This horse seems only to run as hard as he needs to to beat his opposition," Thomas says of the Windfields horse which is unbeaten in four starts this year.

"He ran a good race and he just ran as fast as he had to run," says Mann, describing Native Aid's last victory in last Sunday's Plate Trial Stakes.

But there still are doubts game, winning streak, isn't one of them.

Jim Perry picked up his 300th career victory Thursday night, beating the division-leading Red Sox, who had roughed him up last Saturday in Boston.

Perry, 6-7, gave up seven hits and struck out three batters without issuing a walk before getting ninth-inning relief help from Tom Hilgendorf and Tom Bukacy.

General manager Harry Dalton dangled a lot of money in front of his new manager Dick Williams. Having Nolan Ryan on his team didn't hurt one bit.

Ryan fired the fourth one-hitter of his career, limiting Texas to Alex Johnson's first-inning single, to give interim manager Whitey Herzog his first California victory.

Ryan, the American League strikeout leader with 163, fanned 11 Rangers and walked only one as he posted his 10th victory of the season and third in a row.

The triumph snapped a three-game losing streak for the Angels. It came in their first appearance under Herzog. He will direct the Angels over the weekend until Dick Williams arrives Monday to replace Bobby Winkles, fired earlier Thursday.

Deron Johnson hit a grand slam home run to highlight a five-run sixth inning that backed the six-hit pitching of Clyde Wright and gave Milwaukee its victory over Detroit.

Long Stretch Is in Vain

The stretch by Rollins Construction's first sacker Ralph Plume didn't help in this case, as Auger Men's Wear's Al Ferguson beat out the throw from short stop Paul Goodfellow for a base hit. The infield hit was one of two by Ferguson, although they didn't mean much, as Rollins came up with a 7-5 victory, their 12th of the season.

Lefty in Repeat Performance

Ethier Praises Mates After Perfect Game

By ALAN TEEWORTH
Sports Staff

Tuesday night in the Quinte Football League, Bob 'Shot' Ethier fired a three-hit shutout. Apparently the outstanding performance in that contest wasn't good enough for Ike Howard and Robert Printing southpaw.

So in Thursday's game with the Ellis Janitors, he authored a perfect Game, facing the minimum 21 batters once the seven inning game, not allowing a hit, walk, or having his teammates make an error.

He paid a compliment to his fielders, commenting on their fine play throughout the contest.

The perfect games was the second in his outstanding pitching carrer. The other one occurred when he was burling for Bob's Tavern, a team which plays out of Ogdensburg, N.Y., in tournament action, last season.

Among his other feats as a chucker are three no-hitters. He threw one in the old Belleville and District Softball League, one in the Commercial Softball League, over the 7 innings and one in Ontario Amateur Softball Association Junior playoffs.

Ethier left nine of the Juniors' batter watching third strikes in taking the 4-0 victory. The win was his third of the season against two losses and the second this week. Larry Foster handled the catching duties.

That is a little irregular in field. The game not scheduled to pitch Thursday, Scott Reid, the Printer's star chucker, was on tap for the start, but had injured his hand slightly and was not able to throw. Ethier came on and proved a perfect, no pun intended replacement.

His teammates backed up his gem with nine hits, although the first, and only error of the game as a result of a walk and an error.

Two of the other three runs the Printers scored were also unearned, with McKenna involved with the errors on those plays as well.

The winners' hits were all singles, Scott Reid, playing left field and Dwight Rathwell each had a pair of safties, with Ken Genereaux, Dave Skelton, Allen Campbell, Terry Pope, and Ethier all collecting one.

The best the Juniors could manage off Ethier were eight ground and four infield outs, combined with the nine whiffs.

Gary McMurray, the losing hurler, mowed seven down on third strike calls, walking two.

BOB ETHIER

In the second game of the twin bill at the Alemite, Rollins Construction, down by three runs afer three innings, decided to make it a perfect night for them as well, coming back for a 7-6 victory.

The win gave the Constructionmen a perfect 13-0 won-lost record for the season, which had reached its completion of last night's games. The loss left the Trenton team tied for the fourth and final playoff spot with Devolin Motors and the Juniors. All three teams have ten points.

George Ferguson was responsible for the first two Auger runs in the first inning, collecting a pair of RBI's with a home run. The four bagger was crashed out of the park, over the fence above the left field fence, just fair by about three feet.

In drove in Larry Mavety, who was on first base with a walk.

Al Ferguson scored the second run for Auger's, tearing in from first base on Jim White's hit, in the third frame.

But then, in the fourth frame, the wheels of the big red machine started to roll. Paul Goodfellow scored an unearned run after being hit by a Ferguson pitch. He scored, with Mavety being charged with the throwing error.

Auger's added a fourth on Joe Theriault's double, a sacrifice by Roger Drake and a sacrifice fly by Dave Henry.

Rollins came back with a single in the top of the fifth, scoring on Ken Denville's base hit.

Auger's got their last run in the fifth, on base hits by Mavety, and the second one of the night for Whyte.

Two triples and two base hits spelled trouble for Auger's in the sixth with Rollins cashing in for three more runs.

Paul Goodfellow opened the rally with a one out single, followed by Doug Dafoe with a walk. Gilbert out Allen Durvall then added a single, with Wayne McTaggart sending him home with a three bagger.

Extra base hits continued to be the key, for the Constructionmen in the top of the last inning, with a home run, and triple, along with a base hit once again plating three for the boys in red.

The final total of hits for the winners was nine, including five of the extra base variety. Duvall had a triple and single to pace the victors, with Carlton bagging his home run. Triples were collected by Boomhower - Dafoe, and McTaggart, with Denville adding a single and Goodfellow a base hit.

Winning hurler Denville threw four strikes past eight batters, walking only one. He gave up eight hits.

Ferguson was nicked for nine hits, whirling eight and walking none.

Wheelchair Trials Open Here, Saturday

It all happens Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at OCD.

The 1974 Ontario Wheelchair Sports Trials will get under way with 46 participants from across the province.

Opening ceremonies will include addresses by Mayors Robin Jeffery, of Belleville, and Robert Patrick, of Trenton, and introduction of the athletes. The ceremonies will take place at 1 p.m. Saturday afternoon, in order to accommodate the guests of honor and the athletes.

The first official event of the Trials however will be at 9:30 a.m., the provincial chess playdowns.

Athletic events begin at 9 a.m. with the running of the 400, 60 and 40 meter track competition.

Belleville's Easy Roller's Wheelchair Club is sponsoring the event.

JOANNE MUCKLE

Easy Rollers' president, Bruce Bean, says, "This is it. The climax of about five months of hard work. I know it'll be worth it."

In order to qualify for the Canadian Wheelchair Olympics athletes must come within a reasonable degree of the present national records.

For example, the Canadian Wheelchair record for middleweight weightlifting is a single lift of 262 pounds. So for a lifter at the Ontario Trials to go on to the Canadian Trials he should lift close to that weight.

The record for Canadian Wheelchair Women's javelin is 41'8". Considering this is done strictly with the use of the arm and the shoulder and no run to pick up throwing distance, it's a good mark.

Roger Lamorre and Joanne Muckle will be co-ordinating the weekend events. The pair have, in just a few short months, put together an amazing list of athletic events, arranged publicity campaigns, sought financial assistance and as Bruce Bean points out, "generally worked their butts off for the success of the Trials."

Assisting Roger and Joanne are Marg Verschoor, Karen Fraser and Maureen Simmons.

Highlights of the three-day affair is an exhibition wheelchair basketball game featuring the Toronto Thunderbolts, on Saturday evening.

The regular athletic events include swimming, track and field small bore rifle and recreational competitions.

Admission price is 50 cents for adults and free for anyone under 13 years of age.

ROGER LAMORRE

Constellation on the Move

"Our club is on the move," says Ron Mitchell, coach of Constellation of the Industrial Softball League, "and we're going to go a long way."

This is his statement after the team, which had been in the basement of the league's West Division until last night, picked up their third win in a row, dumping powerful Brooks Bond, first place holders in the East, 3-0.

In other games in the league, UIC thumped Stewart Warner 15-7, and CNR rallied tweded Independents 18-7.

It was the strong pitching arm of Ken Kertik that carried the Constellation crew to the win over the Boodmen. He held them to eight hits, striking out seven and walking none.

Ross Geen had the loss on the Brooke Bond mound, knocked for 12 hits, fanning three and issuing five bases on balls.

Wayne May and Kerik each had a double for the winners, with Ron Mitchell, Bob Reid, Mike Callaghan and Jim Clare each stroking two singles.

Jack Walsh had a double and single in defeat, with Lou Rivers punching a pair of singles. One base hit each went to Ron Stratton, Al Colden, Bruce Royal, and Paul Sharp.

Every player in the lineup had at least one hit as UIC collected 15 of them in their romp over Stewart Warner. Ron Jary led the way with a four bagger, double and single, with Ron Embury striking a home run and single.

Al Walker and Joe Scanlan had a double and single, with Joe Clark and Bill Healy adding two singles each. One base hit apiece went to Clint Halliday, Bill Belnap and Dale Ducarme.

Jim Henn had three singles to pace the Warner attack, with Eric Powell cranking a four bagger. Skip Rollins had a triple, with Rod Bennett stroking a double. Dominic Lane, Ken Bertrand, Craig Adams each had one base hit.

Scanlan fired the win for UIC, striking out five and walking only one for the winners. Rod Bennett was tagged with the loss, fanning two walking five.

Thirteen walks by three Independents' hurlers and five errors, along with 11 hits combined for the 18 CNR runs.

Zane Plumbe led the win with a triple and double, with Bob Duvall adding three base hits for the CN team. Rob McMurter had a double, with Bill Bell, Barry Tamlin, Jim Murray, Perry Sole and Casselman all connecting for the base hits.

Ron Puller cranked a two run shot for the losers, with Dave Skelly adding a pair of singles. Other base hits were to George Foote, Bob Casselman, Ken Bertrand, Doug Boomhower, Earl Colton and Ivan Courtyea.

Peewees Defeated By Whitby

Belleville UAW Local 1823 Peewees went down to defeat Thursday night at the hands of a tough Whitby team, by a 7-4 margin.

Dale McTaggart took the loss for Belleville, allowing eight hits. He fanned five and walked three.

Allen Chizen had the win for Whitby, allowing five hits. He left eight batters watching third strikes, and walked none.

Five players shared the Belleville hitting, all with singles. Steve Carr, Mark Crawford, Steve McCrory, Jim Mulroney and Sharon Mulroney each stroked one hit.

Goalies Sharp In 2-2 Draw

WARKWORTH (Special) — The accent was on offence here Thursday in a Bay of Quinte Soccer Association contest but goaltending by both sides was superb as Warkworth Institution played Trenton Spartacus to a 2-2 draw.

It was only the fifth point for Warkworth but it enabled the club to stay one ahead of cellar-dwelling Spartacus which has four points in the standings.

The home side needed a spirited comeback in the second half to earn the split in points.

Spartacus, with Roger Mountford potting a pair of goals, appeared to have things under control, trotting off the pitch with a 2-0 lead at the interval.

And the Trenton team maintained that edge until the late going. It wasn't until the 35th minute of the second half that the Institution squad broke through, narrowing the margin on Dexter Taylor's goal. Five minutes later, Bruce Kruno shot the equalizer.

Trenton's Mountford was moved up to the forward line and the move paid off. A solid performer who had been used as a sweeper in earlier games, he showed he has the scoring touch in his one. Shot late in the game, Spartacus goalie Gordon Mountford to the half line as they concentrated on preserving the tie.

Cam Connor A Roadrunner

TORONTO (CP) — Bugged Cam Connor signed a five-year contract with Phoenix Roadrunners of the World Hockey Association Thursday for an amount "comparable" with, and even better, than the one he had previously signed for a graduating junior player.

The 18-year-old native of Winnipeg, who completed 378 minutes in penalties last season with Flin Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Hockey League, had been a first-round draft choice of both the WHA's Los Angeles Sharks and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

His WHA rights were subsequently traded to Phoenix.

His agent, Frank Miloe of St. Catharines, Ont., said of the financial terms of the agreement: "It is our belief it is one of the highest signed by a graduating junior hockey player."

He refused to disclose the actual figures, but said the highest known signing so far is familiar with was one for $750,000.

General manager Bill MacFarland, former president of the Western Hockey League and for many years a player, coach and general manager in the WHL, jokingly referred to the pact as "more than I ever got in my entire (WHL) career."

The Roadrunners also called the news conference to announce the signing of Dave Gorman, third highest scorer last year in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A Series with 53 goals and 128 points.

Multi-year Contract

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Defenceman Paul McIntosh, the fourth-round choice of Buffalo Sabres in the National Hockey League's amateur draft, has signed a multi-year contract, the team said Thursday.

McIntosh, a 5-foot-10, 170-pounder, scored 16 goals and assisted on 34 in 53 games last season for Peterborough Petes in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A play.

Gaels Rebound

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels snapped a four-game winless streak by defeating Brooklin Warriors 15-6 Thursday in Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A play.

Dan Welker, Bill Patterson, Bill Murdoch and Scott Newton each scored two goals for the Warriors, with Blair Campbell adding the other.

Oshawa took a 4-3 lead after the first period, and extended it to 8-4 after two periods.

Gorman, who still has a year of junior eligibility remaining, was one of the exceptional juniors taking in the WHA draft.

Nine teams now signing bonuses for their players was well in excess of the 100,000 figure reported earlier by Montreal sources.

Connor, who in addition, to his more than 400 games in the penalty box last year, played offensive ability, too—67 goals and 44 assists.

Gorman finished his third season with the Hawks as the third highest scorer in the St. Catharines club's history, was the top-scoring right winger in the league, a second team all-star and led the OHA in scoring in the post-season games.

Favorite Numbers Pay Off

BUFFALO (CP) — A retired Buffalo firefighter, John Rieker, walked into Buffalo Raceway front office Thursday night and claimed the largest single parimutuel payoff in western New York horse racing history—$28,863.

A track official said Rieker presented the 7-2-8 trifecta ticket dated May 30 and was presented a cheque for the winning sum.

"I owe it all to my two favorite numbers," Rieker told raceway manager Gaston Mucciolo. The numbers are 4 and 7 and I always play 7-2-8 in that order."

Rieker in his 70s, retired from the Buffalo fire department several years ago and is on pension.

He told the race track officials that he delayed cashing the ticket until his last social security card was replaced. He declined a cash payoff and a security escort.

COLBERT UPS TAKE

Top Bowlers

About 30 members of Easy Rollers Wednesday night gathered with friends and relatives for the Handicapped Bowlers 1st Annual Barbecue. Awards went to (front row, left to right) Don Blake, high single, Teresa Scott, joingly referred to the high average, and Gary Lavender, high single with handicap. Missing from last night's awards was Theresa Mathias, most improved bowler.

Provisioners Break Out

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Burlington Amateur Provincers defeated Niagara Falls 13-5 in Ontario Fastball League play Thursday night to retain their lead in the East division.

Winning pitcher Frank Bird, his record now two wins and two losses, had a no-hitter going until the seventh inning when Bill Drennan came into the game during a four-run Niagara Falls rally to save the wi.

Burlington collected 15 hits off loser Walt Szpilewski who pitched the entire game for Niagara Falls. Drennan had a solo home run by Hal Kropp, a triple by Gracini and a double by Danny Benallick.

Norm Neudorf, contributed a double to Niagara Falls' seventh-inning rally and Pepper Martin got a solo home run in the n nth.

Burlington committed five of the seven errors in the game, but still the Ontario Amateur Softball Association eliminated the solo tournament on Dominion Day.

TO THE BULLPEN

DALLAS (AP) — David Clyde, the pitcher who went straight from high school to the major leagues Texas Rangers last year, has been removed from the American League baseball team's pitching rotation, manager Billy Martin says. Martin said the 18-year-old left hander has been replaced with right hander Steve Hargan. Clyde is 3-4 on the year, having lost his last four decisions.

Peace Returns to CFL

Players, Clubs Sign Three-year Agreement

OTTAWA (CP) — Peace returned to the Canadian Football League today as players and management signed a three-year pact giving the players increased pay, for playoff games and the Grey Cup match.

Neither Norm Kimball, head of the management negotiators, nor George Reed, president of the CFL Players' Association, would give details of the settlement.

"We came up and they came down," said Kimball after roughly 12 hours of negotiations with the players.

"We think it is one of the best, if not the best, deals for athletes in North America," said Reed.

Kimball said it was the decision by the players to sign a three-year deal that turned the tide in the negotiations that threatened the start of the exhibition season as well as regular season play.

Only four days earlier Kimball said the owners had "no more dollars" to offer the players. And Reed had said the players would not budge from their offer.

The dispute centred on pension, per diem pay during the training camps and pay for playoff games. While pensions and training camp issues were settled earlier, it was such demands as $6,000 for Grey Cup winners by 1975, an increase of 100 per cent over 1973, that raised the hackles of the owners.

As of Tuesday, both sides were roughly $600,000 apart. In addition, the players were seeking a two-year contract, while the owners wanted a three-year deal.

With the help of CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur, both sides came back to the negotiating table Thursday.

At the first session the players again came down on their demands although insisting on a two-year deal.

After an adjournment, the management side, headed by Kimball and consisting also of John Barrow of Toronto Argonauts and Ralph Sazio of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, countered with an offer over a three-year period.

When the players accepted, then all nine CFL clubs engaged in a conference telephone call during which Kimball said there was unanimous agreement to accept the terms.

"Both sides showed good faith and something was bought," said Kimball. He added that both management and players went out of their way to come to an agreement.

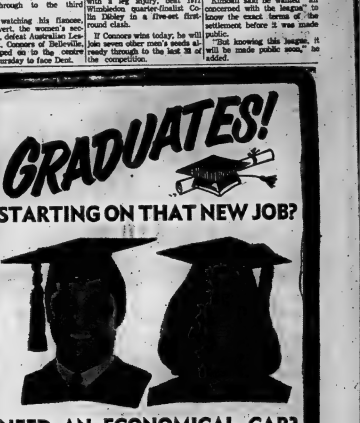
"We'll be ready to go back to work today," said Reed on behalf of the veteran players who went on the voluntarily retired list to back up their demands.

Kimball said he wanted "all concerned with the league," to know the exact terms of the settlement before it was made public.

"But knowing this league, it will be made public soon," he added.

Unseeded Dent Could Upset Jimmy Connors

LONDON (Reuter) — Third-seed Jimmy Connors of the United States faces a battle for survival in the Wimbledon tennis championships today.



Connors trails 5-4 in the opening set against Phil Dent, 24, with the tough Australian to serve. The American will require good form if he is to move through to the third round.

After watching his fiancee, Chris Evert, the women's second seed, defeat Australian Lesley Hunt, Connors of Belleville, Ill., stepped on to the centre court Thursday to face Dent.

Only seven games were possible before rain ended play for the day, but in that time the unseeded Australian showed he has the potential to topple Connors.

Dent, who returned to top-class tennis last year after missing most of the 1972 season with a leg injury, beat 1971 Wimbledon quarter-finalist Colin Dibley in a five-set first-round clash.

If Connors wins today, he will join seven other men's seeds already through to the last 32 of the competition.

Top Money Winners In Canadian Open

TORONTO — Seven of the top 10 money winners on the PGA Tour — prior to the U.S. Open — are now confirmed as participants in the $200,000 Canadian Open.

Jack Nicklaus (fourth, $118,342); Lee Trevino, (seventh, $108,463); Gary Player, (eighth, $99,188); Leonard Thompson, (ninth, $98,369) and John Mahaffey, ($94,831).

Allin, who doubled his tour earnest win record with victories this year in the Doral Open and the Byron Nelson Classic is one of those engaging young men who are picking up large cheques on the PGA Tour.

An army artillery officer in Vietnam, he was granted a qualify for the tour in 1970, when he won at Greensboro. He didn't win again until 1973 at Orlando, but, as he has said, "I always think I can win again, but I don't know whether it will be next week — or next year."

Hale Irwin, the former University of Colorado star football player who performed well in the 1973 Canadian Open, except for one shot, matched the winner of the $200,000 Inverrary Classic stroke for stroke in March.

Unfortunately for Hale that stroke was the margin of victory for Leonard Thompson and the difference between Thompson's $52,000 and Irwin's $28,800. It came on the first day when the two shot 73-72. They matched 69-68-68 for the next three days but Irwin couldn't catch up, missing a four foot birdie putt on the 72nd hole that would have forced a playoff.

John Mahaffey, whose first tour win was in last year's 1973 Sahara Invitational, is a third-year professional who handles the pressure of being a future star fairly easily.

Mahaffey, who warmed up for his successful PGA Qualifying School attempt by playing on the 1971 Peter Jackson Tour, has finished well up in the money on several occasions this year.

Also coming to the 1974 Canadian Open will be defending champion Tom Weiskopf, 1965 winner (at Mississauga) Gene Littler and Masaaria Open winner Lee Elder.

BIRTHS

Wayne and Eleanor Watts are pleased to announce the addition to their family of a baby girl, Jennifer Lynn, born at Belleville General Hospital on Monday, June 24, 1974 in his 4th birthday. Proud brother Kelly has agreed to show Bonnie all the ropes.

POLKER — Michelle is thrilled to announce the arrival of her baby brother, born Tuesday, June 21, 1977 at Belleville General Hospital, weighing 8 lbs. 3 ozs. Proud parents are Gilles and Sandra Polker (nee Mowry) thanks to Dr. T. Woodley.

RITZO — Wayne and Cheryl (nee Cunningham) of R.R. 1, Frankford are pleased to announce the arrival of their first child, a daughter, Angela Lynn, 8 lbs., 5 oz. on Wednesday, June 22, 1977 at the Belleville General Hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

ROUSE — In memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, John C. Rouse who passed away June 25, 1975.
We visited the grave today,
It was so neat and clean,
We placed flowers there,
And could not give relief.
We talked to you about our pain,
We thought you'd hear,
But you remained still,
Your heart had ceased to beat,
We cherish her memory in our hearts, Ruth Rouse (Unmarried)

BROWN, Benjamin Jesse — In loving memory of Benjamin Jesse Brown who passed to her reward June 24th, 1962.
Deep buried on from strength to strength,
Safe with your sickness deep by day,
Safe with your weakness deep by night,
To wake at once in perfect health,
And find in God's own light,
That rest is truly best.
Lord, how blest are they
Who sleep in Jesus.
We cherish her memory in our hearts, Ruth Brown (Unmarried)

CHEESMAN — In loving memory of our dear father and grandpa, Frederick Ray Cheesman who passed away June 25th, 1976.
Sadly remembered thrown from our midst,
With silent thoughts and unshed tears,
We gaze on, we know that's true,
Those we love don't go,
Wonderfully remembered by son Doug, daughter Mary and grandchildren Douglas and Robert.

BARRETT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Frank Barrett who passed away June 25th, 1975.
Every hour we dearly miss him,
Sadly do we feel his loss,
Memories of him we cherish,
Though he's not with us now.
Lovingly remembered by wife Margaret and daughter Mary Ann.

CHEESMAN — In loving memory of our dear father and grandpa, Frederick Ray Cheesman who passed away June 25th, 1976.
Wonderful memories of one so dear,
Sadly we think of you each year,
Those we love don't go from our midst,
We loved him too dearly to forget,
So we keep his memory fresh in our hearts,
Always remembered by daughter Doreen and grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Mary Ida Lucas wish to express their appreciation and gratitude to the many friends and neighbours for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and passing of our dear mother. Portrays Indians

Indian folk singer Shingoose, shown at a recent free concert in Toronto's High Park, will be recording his material in Toronto this summer. Shingoose prefers to portray the Indian way of life rather than the usual stereotyped roles. (CP Photo)

Curtis Jonnie Caught Between Two Cultures

Before known in music circles as Shingoose, Curtis is a Canadian Indian who has spent most of his life in a white man's world. Since leaving the reserve at Roseau River — about 40 miles southwest of Winnipeg — 30 years ago four, Shingoose has been involved in one form or another with music.

For 20-odd years he has drifted through North American cities looking for roots but finding relatively little to tie him down — until recently. Within the last few years, audiences have begun to take an interest in his work.

Shingoose, the name itself is the clan name of several hundred western Indians and has been on the receiving end of racial prejudice and mentions that in a white society he has had a lonely life. But he does not dwell on it.

The music that he writes and performs, contemporary narrative Indian folk with a blit of traditional chant, is Indian - oriented but does not spit controversial fire against the centuries-old inhumanity of whites to the Indian.

Shingoose said in an interview that his music used to be bitter.

"I would sing songs like: 'Red man, white man's time is dying,' and point fingers. I got out of that and started making my music a personal experience.

Indian folk music has not really been developed in the Canadian recording industry and it generates curiosity among industry personnel.

Shingoose's own product is scheduled to be recorded in July at Toronto studios with an album slated for September release. Second guitar tracks will be played by recording artist Bruce Cockburn.

The album will not be lyrical in nature, Shingoose said, but rather "very controlled, very light but with a lot of punch." Every a message with a "positive image of what Indian people are really all about."

"I want to destroy the myths of what 'Indian' is. We don't put any emphasis on nationality or our pious Indian. It's just there."

It is ironic that Shingoose hopes to steer away from heavy controversy in his current projects, for his biggest recognition in Canada so far has been based on violent social issues.

When the occupation of Wounded Knee, S.D., by militant Indians occurred last summer, Shingoose wrote a song about it. The composition was heard by Johnny Yesno, at that time, host of the national CBC radio program Our Native Land. Yesno had the singer perform the work on his show the following week. Response was enthusiastic.

The documentary was first shown last November and rebroadcast several weeks ago.

"There's a wealth of topical discussion that everyone should be aware of to understand the problems between Indian culture and white culture," he said. But rather than do top-heavy on his people's woes, Shingoose said he prefers to sing of Indian joys.

His musical background started when a missionary heard him singing and decided to use his voice for hymns during her prayer services on the reserves. Shingoose was four years old at the time.

He was abandoned by his mother, who left the reserve to marry a white American, and the youngster became a ward of the missionary, then the Children's Aid Society and finally of the famous Boys' Town in Nebraska.

Shingoose received extensive musical training while in the care of the missionary, and it continued in Boys' Town's concert choir which toured the United States and played syndicated network TV shows.

He also formed the Indian's first rock band in 1964.

Later there were other groups, cities and club dates. In Washington, D.C., he accompanied folk guitarist Roy Buchanan heard Shingoose's basic work and asked the Indian to join his own group.

Shingoose was noticed, but said it was not on the strength of his talent alone.

"I'm not very conventional in terms of physical ex-

NEW YORK Reuter) — Jazz king Duke Ellington, who died last month, left an estimated $200,000 estate, but failed to leave a will to dispose of it.

This was disclosed in Manhattan Surrogates Court Wednesday where Ellington's son, Mercer, has filed a petition seeking the court's authority to administer his father's estate.

The estimated estate value did not include Ellington's interest in copyrights to his musical compositions and royalties that may accrue.

SHOSHONE, Idaho (AP) — Daredevil Evel Knievel says he plans to jump the 1,400-foot-wide Snake River Canyon on his motorcycle Sept. 8. But he may need a government permit to carry out the stunt.

Don Sweep, district manager for the bureau of land management, said he understood the 35-year-old Knievel intends to land on federal property. If so, Sweep said, he would have to obtain a permit. The bureau oversees such things as safety and environmental impact.

BRINDISI (AP) — Elisabetta Barsac-Well, 36-year-old daughter of the late French theatre director Andre Barsac, was found dead Wednesday, Italian police said.

Officials said fishermen noticed her body floating in the sea.

David Carradine Makes 3 Movies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "There's no secret to making a movie," says David Carradine of television's Kung Fu series. He has made three.

The first is called You and Me, a tale of a motorcycle gang member—played by Carradine — who witnesses a murder and goes on the run. His life is changed by the friendship of a boy, played by Richard Chaffourne II.

The other two are A Country Mile described as a rock, country musical, and Around, a mood piece which defies description. He has parts in both, too.

Carradine was previewing You and Me and editing the other two films at the Burbank Studios, where he spends the rest of the year in Kung Fu. The actor and filmmaker watched rushes of Around with Barbara Hershey Seagull, who was breast-feeding their 18-month-old son, Free.

As he strolled, the slender, lanky-looking actor described how he became a movie maker.

"I was the summer before last and I knew that my agents wouldn't find me a picture to do during the layoff from the series.

"A friend of mine brought me the script of You and Me and I got some other friends together and we decided to make it.

"I'm even found someone who was willing to back us. But he insisted that Barbara had to be in the picture, because she was a movie-star name. But she was going off to Europe for a picture and when she came back she would be extremely pregnant. So we shot all of her scenes first, spending $5,000 for 10 minutes of the film."

Carradine and a pickup film crew "mostly from outer space" began filming in Los Angeles and continued up the coast. Production expenses amounted to $75,000, plus $100,000 in deferred salaries. With all the finishing touches, You and Me cost $180,000.

Joseph E. Levine of AVCO-Embassy offered a down payment of $250,000 for the film. Carradine rejected. "Too aggressive, knowledgeable, greedy."

He was so encouraged by the results of You and Me that he went on the second again last summer and came back with the other two films for a production cost of $85,000.

"All three are beautiful films — wide screen and in color; I know that everyone will enjoy them."

Carradine believes this will be his last season with Kung Fu.

"It's not that I don't like the series; I do. It has been a continuing challenge to keep it alive and different, so it doesn't become routine. I think we have succeeded and it has helped me in many ways—as a performer, as a recognizable name, as a person.

"But I think after next season it will be time to move on to other things. Now that I've found out how easy it is to make a film, I want to make more. I'd like to do Shakespeare on film. The Tempest perhaps.

"I seems to me the one play of his that is hampered by being confined to the stage."

Progress. Quinte country has always been staked out for it. The district has always held options on future expansion. Such expansion has been current for some time — and progress still holds firm.

Progress has been economic and cultural — and inevitable.

The strategic location of the two core Quinte counties of Hastings and Prince Edward makes them an obvious central production point for supplying the nation's two major metropolitan markets.

This has been a key factor in recent Quinte economic growth. The steady buildup of new industry, the expansion of long-established plant units is the ultimate evidence.

Just as significant an asset has been the Quinte counties' greatest, single natural resource . . . environment.

There's the pastoral charm of Prince Edward, against a background of cows and lagoons; there's the farmlands, hills and rugged bushland of Hastings. Contrasting settings mellowed and blended by history into a particular, local heritage.

This has made Quinte country a good place to be. In the past, the signified a recreation industry of wide potential. It still does.

But, more recently, it has meant new settlement, new people opting for the living quality of Quinte country. Such welcome recognition and ensuing cultural change has also brought keener awareness of need to safeguard local heritage while absorbing change. This too, is progress.

In this special edition, The Intelligencer scans a broad range of activities which involve contemporary, Quinte community progress.

Belleville

—A Good Place to Be

By publishing annually a picture story of Belleville and area, The Intelligencer arouses interest among residents in the development of our Quinte area. In addition, this special issue serves as a valuable and enticing reference to outside interests in manufacturing, commercial and residential development.

The scene today is healthy and positive. Substantial new investments are being made in housing, commercial and industrial development. These investments ensure economic prosperity for our community and clearly demonstrate the confidence held by private enterprise in the future of Belleville.

Continual improvements are being made to the recreational and park facilities. Leadership programs in recreation have been enlarged and are available throughout the city at community schools and playgrounds.

The first Belleville-Lahr Student Exchange Program has been completed and the second exchange is now established.

Municipal projects of roads, sanitary and storm sewers, feeder water mains are proceeding. Their purpose is to expand and better the services necessary for the development of Belleville. Municipal buildings to house the Utilities and Transit Commission will open in 1974.

Community organizations continue to meet social service and cultural needs with their programs.

Belleville is becoming a popular convention centre. Organizations across our country recognize its attractive location and its fine hotel and meeting facilities.

This capsule comment hopefully indicates a city that is proud of its past, a people sharing and supporting the present, and planning enthusiastically its future.

ROBIN JEFFREY,
Mayor.

GEORGE THOMPSON

You don't have to look far to see how Belleville has progressed in the last few years, not only industrially, but also from an educational, cultural, and social standpoint.

We feel that this progress has been matched by the growth, development and improvement in business in the area also. We at the Chamber of Commerce are pleased to have had a role in this advancement.

The role of the Chamber of Commerce is one which many people find difficult to define and one which varies from community to community.

Ours is an organization of business and professional men, interested in promoting and assisting good local government, and in promoting those things which will benefit all citizens. Our members subscribe to good business ethics and practice.

Our role is to assist our members in their individual contributions to the life of this city and to be the means by which they can work collectively in Belleville's interests.

While the Belleville Chamber of Commerce does not directly deal with new business or industries being attracted to Belleville we do indirectly by pointing out the many things that make Belleville, The Friendly City, a good place to live.

We advise the industries of Belleville and their corporate contribution to our city!

GEORGE THOMPSON
President,
Chamber of Commerce

FRED REMIS

Economic development of a community is a team effort. The community is dependent on many areas for assistance and resource material. The manufacturing or service industries wishing to locate in our City are interested in many facets of the community as well as proper building sites.

The term "economic development" means the total economic development of the community. Assistance is given to all sectors, including industrial, commercial, residential and social. Development paths are planned for periods of up to 20 years with special emphasis placed on population impacts and the intricate design of future city structures as a result of special growth trends.

With the concern for growth that has and is being exhibited, the planning function has a new role, one of control. Many large cities are now restricting growth in certain areas to enable a better life style.

How big is too big? You will receive many different answers to this question, but for planning a model community perhaps a 75-90,000 population would be large enough to offer most services required by the citizens.

In the case of Belleville, by the year 2000 our estimated population should be 75-90,000. This figure could be altered slightly in the event of an amalgamation or a restructured form of government.

By establishing the parameter of population the major emphasis can be placed on planning the community structure, the setting aside of zoned lands for parks and recreation, residential, commercial and industrial purposes.

The establishment of an official plan provides the framework and guidelines necessary for community development. A more careful planning process may be taken involving such factors as types of growth. For example what types of manufacturing and service industry are required in the community?

The growth of our city over the last few years is indicative of our need to create jobs for the area's citizens. Also the need for more sophisticated service support facilities for our manufacturing industries. The economic development of our community is an indication of the foresight and planning of our city councils and their understanding of the community's needs.

Diversification Is Key To Area's Development

Diversification is the name of the game when it comes to industry in Belleville. And it's the concentration of smaller industries, especially the service type that accounts for this unique factor.

"About 75 per cent of the area's industries are made up of the smaller ones, employing up to 50 people," said the city industrial commissioner, Fred Bemis.

"Having this diversification of industries in Belleville helps to strengthen the whole community," said Mr. Bemis. "It's much better to have industries spread out over a wide area than to have just a few large plants once," he said.

Most of these smaller industries are concentrated in the northeast and northwest industrial parks of the city where they have easy access to Highway 401.

Let's take a look at the northwest park first. Already established there is Wilson's Sporting Goods, a Simpsons-Sears warehouse and Offord Underwood. Nearby the park is Pacific Mobile Corporation, a sales and distributing centre of mobile homes and travel trailers.

Currently under construction is Mohawk Foods, a food processing plant. G. A. Lindsay Ltd. Castings Division and Red Beech Industries which will manufacture office and business furniture.

An extension of the growth in this area is the construction of a road to be called Mohawk Court, running off the extension of Bell Boulevard, formerly Hanna Road.

In the city's northeast, a Procter and Gamble plant is currently under construction and is due to be completed by early next year. A total of 150 employees are expected to be employed here once operations begin rolling in the approximately 170,000 square foot building.

Again indicating growth in the northeast sector is a plant which opened last November, Canadian Durabla Ltd., which produces asbestos gasket material and one opened in February of this year, Standard Paper Box Company, which produces corrugated cardboard cartons.

In the same park, International Couprage is undergoing expansion. The plant manufactures fibre drums and cores.

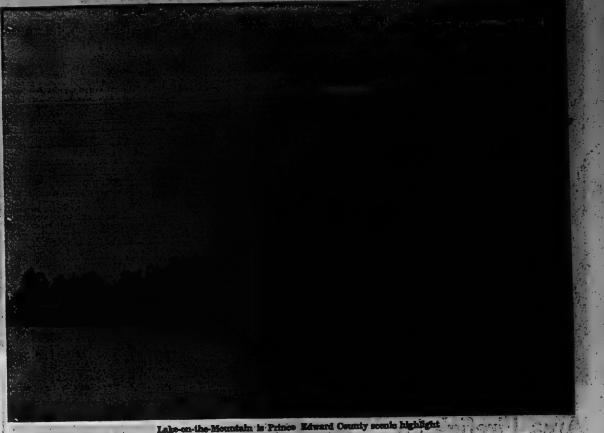
And of course, ther are the established industries in the north east part, such as Mobil Chemical Plastics Ltd., Allied Chemical Ltd., Brooks Bond Foods Ltd. with division Ono and Blue Ribbon and Black Diamond across Highway 401, and Stagg Electric.

The second phase of a four stage industrial mall is currently under construction there which will provide valuable space for smaller service type of manufacturing industries.

Leaving the two parks and a truck driver carrying with a diverse industrial basis a turck driver carrying perishables along the 401 and finding trouble with his refrigeration unit can find a place in the city where it can be repaired.

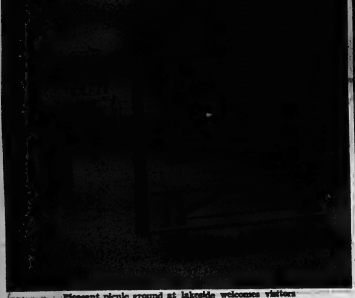
Most of the industries mentioned up to now have been recent additions to Belleville's growing family of industries.

But we can't forget the established industries such as W. T. Hawking Snack Foods, International Hardware, G. H. Lanning, Delory Stalite, Canadelaine Carpet and Union Carbide.



And there are the city's larger industries, such as Northern Electric which employs over 1,200 people and which last fall expanded a section of its Sidney Street plant to the former Amplitron Building on Dunsack Street.

And there is also Mead Johnson which recently began manufacturing a new product line, under Westwood Pharmaceuticals of dermatological products. The new line which puts out such skin care products as Alpha-Keri bath oil and Keri Lotion started manufacturing May 1. This involves about 16 additional workers, added to the company's 400 workers.



But even with the few heavier type industries, such as Stewart Warner and Stephens-Adamson, the common thread running through industrial Belleville is the small to medium type of industry.

Industrial Commissioner Bemis illustrates well the feeling he and the commission have when bringing new industry to Belleville when he says: "We like to see products leaving the city bearing the label 'Made in Belleville'."

And it might be added more and more products, everything from cheese to a paper bag, have lately been bearing this stamp.

City Itself Big Business

Municipal administration and provision of services for a city the size of Belleville is now in the order of "big business" and with increased population and assessment, is growing every year.

This year the city will have revenues estimated at just under $13 million, of which $7,000,000 will go for schools and the balance for general city purposes.

The total of just under $13-million compares with actual revenues of $10,048,262 for 1957. Taxable assessment for 1958, as given, is $220,325,695 up from $194,994,197.

The 15-year financial review of the city by auditors George A. Welch and Company lists the city's 1943 population as 14,947 as compared with 21,566 back in 1956, an increase of just under 10 per cent.

Area of the city at 7,666 acres remained the same as 10 years ago, but city officials make no secret of the fact the municipality is rapidly running out of space for future residential and industrial development.

Since 1954, the city's residential assessment has increased from $60,892,000 to $91,974,000 last year. Commercial and industrial assessment in the same period rose from $30,086,000 to $52,945,000.

Reflecting the high costs of providing services, the city tax rate has shown a marked increase from that of 10 years ago. Back in 1954 the public school residential rate was 4, comparatively easy 28.7 mills as compared with 34.1 mills this year. The highest mill rate in the 15-year period was in 1951 which saw a levy of 31.7 mills.

In the same period the city's expenditures jumped from $4,550,000 in 1944 to a whopping estimated figure of just under $13-million this year.

One of the biggest increases over the 15-year period has been for capital expenditures which jumped from $202,000 for 1944 to $2,629,000 last year.

But despite the big jump in capital expenditures, Belleville's per capita net debenture debt of $127 for general municipal activities is well below the average of other Ontario cities of a comparable size.

On the other hand, the per capita debt for public utilities work is above the provincial average for cities the size of Belleville.

And that's the way he would like to see it remain.

Area Firefighting A Mutual Affair

Emergency services are an important part of any community's life, but the organizations that provide these services usually function unnoticed by the public they serve.

If there is one group of men that provide the Quinte area with an essential service that is, for the most part unheralded, it is the Hastings and Prince Edward Firefighters Mutual Aid Association.

The mutual aid association, composed of all volunteer and professional fire departments in the area bounded by Trenton, Deseronto, Picton and Madoc, is a co-operative organization of firefighters that is designed to provide Quinte-area residents with a comprehensive and co-ordinated system of fire protection.

Meeting once every month, the association's members gather to upgrade their fire-fighting skills and to discuss problems they share together in fighting fires.

More important than this, however, is the network of agreements and emergency measures that knit the member departments together to provide the Quinte area with a responsive and efficient firefighting unit in case disaster strikes.

In the 11 years of its existence, the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association has developed a system designed to provide member departments with emergency assistance in the case of a serious fire and to alert other nearby departments to standby to cover for stations that the network of engaged in fighting a fire.

Steve Waite, the deputy fire chief for Sidney Township and this year's president of the mutual aid association, explained that the network of "first calls" and assistance agreements is coordinated by Belleville's fire chief, Leo Culhane.

In emergency situations, where one of the district, or for that matter one of the city fire departments, needs assistance, the mutual aid member will place a call to the Belleville fire hall and supply the dispatcher with an emergency code number Deputy Waite said. "Chief Culhane will then set the mutual aid wheels in motion and assign a nearby department to assist, while other departments will be put on standby to cover for the two departments who are busy.

"In that way the manpower and equipment of each fire department in the area is supplemented by that of its neighbors and we will never be caught in a situation where we lose buildings simply because we haven't the men or equipment to fight a fire properly."

In addition to the mutual assistance agreements and the monthly information meetings, the mutual aid association has undertaken a number of educational and charitable projects.

Over the past year, the mutual aid association has sponsored a number of fire-fighting courses at Loyalist College, and has sought to train volunteer firefighters throughout the area in the ever-changing techniques of fire prevention and control.

The four 12-week courses at Loyalist were the first of their kind in the two counties and, to date, the response they have elicited has overwhelmed the organizers. Captain Ray Reid of the Belleville fire department and Bob Pierce, a volunteer firefighter in Thurlow, who served as chairman of Mutual Aid's educational committee when the courses were first introduced.

In summing up the value of the courses sponsored by the mutual aid association, Captain Reid explained that all the communities in the two counties will benefit from the enthusiasm of the firefighters.

"Courses of this type improve the standards of fire-fighting and also foster co-operation among the fire departments," he said. "When all of us have the same training, we will find it that much easier to work together."

The major charitable work undertaken by the mutual aid association this year was the donation of a sizable sum of money to William R. Kirk School to sponsor an athlete who was attending the Special Olympics in Winnipeg this year.

County Fire Protection Developed Over Years

PICTON — Prince Edward's first fire truck, chugged like Picton in the roaring twenties. Its four cylinders eagerly pounding to prove that it could, indeed, attain its rumored speed of 30 miles an hour.

Where there is smoke there is sometimes a liar. Raymond Sheppard, a Picton resident who occasionally drove this admirable machine, remembers "It could, on 30 miles an hour if someone was pushing it downhill."

The plucky little four-cylinder truck had no regular driver but was piloted by the first man on the scene following a fire alarm. If that, when the exact had driven the truck before he probably arrived carrying a jack. Mr. Sheppard remembers that Picton's new fire engine was prone to flat tires in times of emergency. Rural fire protection was not for sale in the 1920s. Mr. Sheppard notes that the heroic little truck "would have to be used to attend local blazes.

Today, fire protection in Picton and Prince Edward has been improved to provide a ratepayer with efficient round-the-clock service.

Picton firefighters stand ready to combat emergencies with three trucks fitted with modern equipment. Fire Chief Leonard Sripp, four full-time firemen and 15 volunteers are prepared to respond to alarms.

Fire protection today is sold by the town of Picton to North Marysburgh, and Athol township as well as to Loch Sloy Industrial park and Prince Edward Heights.

The Bloomfield — Hallowell fire department, formed about four years ago, protects ratepayers in their villages and township.

Fire Chief Ralph Rolston reports that two pumpers, two tank trucks and a rescue wagon for grass fires equip the fire hall. All units are radio-equipped and provide a total of 2,500 feet of 2.5-inch hose and 2,000 feet of 1-inch hose. The Bloomfield — Hallowell fire department is staffed by Chief Rolston, deputy-chief Jack Stenning and a roster of 25 volunteers.

Prince Edward's newest fire brigade, the Wellington — Hillier fire department officially opened its hall in August, 1973.

In 1972, Hillier township purchased a new fire truck and contributed it to the equipment already owned by Wellington's fire department. An old garage in Wellington village was bought and renovated as a fire hall for the amalgamated municipalities.

Hillier Reeve Lewis Wight says his township pays 60 per cent of all operating costs of the fire department while Wellington pays 40 per cent. Originally, his township purchased protection from Wellington but under the new program, better service is offered through an amalgamated fire department.

Consecon-area residents are protected by a 1,500-gallon tank truck based in a substation there and manned by two volunteers.

Wellington-Hillier fire chief Otto Bowerman is assisted by 17 volunteers, four from Hillier and 13 from Wellington village.

Township Reeve George Foster recalls that his council fell under heavy criticism about five years ago when fire levelled a Sophiasburgh residence. This controversy prompted negotiations with Picton for fire protection but an agreement could not be reached.

To offer residents the protection they sought, the Sophiasburgh fire department was formed. This brigade headed by fire chief Donald Potter, is manned by 20 volunteers.

Ameliasburgh township residents are protected by a fire department manned by 21 volunteers headed by chief Arnold Wetherall. Equipment includes two pumper units, two tankers and a van carrying resuscitating aids.

There are two fire halls in the township, one in Carrying Place and another in Rossmore. Captain of the Rossmore division is Roger Flower, while captain of the Carrying Place section is Eric Peck.

Before Ameliasburgh's first fire hall was opened at Rossmore in 1968, the township purchased protection from Belleville and Trenton brigades. Many residents were ineligible under this system, for insurance reductions as they lived too far from the fire halls.

Now the Ameliasburgh fire department covers the townships more highly assessed areas and many home owners qualify for substantial reductions.

In South Marysburgh township, residents are protected by a volunteer fire department organized about four years ago.

Wherever fire breaks out in Prince Edward County, protection is now available promptly and country residents can enjoy the reassurance provided by the municipalities' foresight.

Golfers Enjoy Quinte Courses

Visitors to the area and newcomers to the city will find a variety of golf courses within range of a short drive.

Just south of the city on Highway 2, an excellent 18-hole layout presents a challenge for campers. George Balcaa is the pro at Bay of Quinte Country Club. Heading up the executive is club president Paul Vanderzaag.

With an eye to the future, Bay of Quinte plans a 1974 start on the building of a new clubhouse.

East of the city at Marysville, on Highway 2, the Belleville Golf and Country club is a going concern. The club is operated by Joan and Bruce Jones.

To the north, near the village of Shirley, the Oak Hills Golf Club offers plenty of eye-catching scenery as golfers make the rounds.

Further north, near Tweed, a community 36 miles from this city, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Austin have operated the Poplars Golf Club for the past 12 years.

Located on the Marlbank Road, across from the Stoco Lake Hotel, the nine-hole course is a favorite with tourists and locals alike.

Just off Highway 33, near Carrying Place, a 16-mile drive to the west of the city, Ross and Carol Hicks operate Barcovan Golf and Country Club. Here, golfers may take to the 18-hole regulation course or get in a fast round on a par 3 layout.

At Trenton, 13 miles west of Belleville, the town has a nine-hole course and the Canadian Forces Base boasts a busy 18-hole setup.

And there's more on the way.

Gary Goyer, a Belleville resident, is busy preparing for the opening of his executive par 3 course, west of the city. Incorporated into this layout will be a driving range, as well as miniature golf. Opening date is set for some time in August.

Road Repairs Cheaper

Roadway renewal in Belleville is getting a financial boost from the premium position of the Canadian dollar as compared to its American counterpart.

The total funds available because of the premium position of Canadian currency is more than $800,000 and is growing by an annual amount of about $80,000.

The funds are available as the result of the sale of city debentures in the United States from 1962 on during a time when the Canadian dollar was in a discount position.

Over the years, more than $7,000,000 worth of city debentures were sold on the United States market and when the funds were converted into Canadian currency the city ended up with $7,330,000.

The additional money was put into a foreign exchange fund on the expectation that it would be required when the debentures were repaid.

But the premium position of the Canadian dollar has resulted in this money not being required and the Ontario Ministry of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs has granted the city authority to use the fund amounting to $830,677 at the end of 1973 — for other purposes.

The proposal is to put some, or possibly all of the money into a special fund to be used for road renewal purposes so this way badly needed road reconstruction can be programmed without a direct impact on the tax rate.

One of the first uses for the "found" money will be the reconstruction of Sidney Street north of College Street, although due to delay in property acquisition, the work is not expected to get underway until next year.

Capital works budget road projects to go ahead this year include reconstruction of Dundas Street East, from Front Street to Bleecker, to four lane, and reconstruction of a section of Victoria Ave., east from Pinnacle.

Scheduled for next year is the construction of the planned new bridge across the Moira River at the north of Pinnacle Street and the extension of Pinnacle Street to join North Front Street.

Also in the plans for future years is the reconstruction of College Street east from North Front to the College St.

LABELS

What's so great about a label anyway?

To the eye, a label is just a bit of cloth or a cardboard tag attached to a garment. To the ear it's a descriptive name. In both instances, it indicates the reputation and the integrity of the maker. It is your guarantee of dependability, your silent guardian against shoddy workmanship or questionable material.

Deacon Brothers Sportswear Limited has become synonymous with all of these fine qualities. When you see the Deacon Label in shops across Canada, you can be assured of quality and value.

In the Fall of 1973, Canada Cement Lafarge Limited, started production of cement products at their new plant near Bath, Ontario. This new plant produces 1.1 million tons annually of finished products and is Canada's largest cement plant.

Stephens-Adamson engineered, manufactured and installed over $2 million of bulk materials handling equipment which is fully automatic and controlled by the central computer. The equipment includes two rail-mounted bucket wheel reclaimers, two travelling stackers, and 27 belt conveyors with a total length of 9,200 feet. The conveyor units range in widths from 24 to 54 inches with the longest conveyor being 1,305 feet. Two high temperature drag chain conveyors that handle the hot clinker from the kiln also form part of the system.

MARINE SYSTEMS

Canada Steamship Lines' vessel, M. V. "J. W. McGiffin," is the largest Canadian self-unloading bulk cargo vessel ever to sail the Great Lakes. It has a carrying capacity of 30,000 tons of coal or iron ore pellets and can maintain a surface speed of 15 m.p.h. when loaded.

The complete self-unloading equipment aboard this vessel was designed and manufactured at Stephens-Adamson's plant in Belleville, Ontario. The system is comprised of 286 gates, numerous belt conveyors, a special loop belt elevator and a 250 foot long boom conveyor for stockpiling the cargo on the shore. This vessel is designed to unload its cargo at a rate of 4,800 tons of coal, or 6,000 tons of iron ore per hour.

Church Women Active in City

By ISABEL HUGGAN
Staff Reporter

Clusters of blue-rinsed grannies selling doilies at bazaars, raising money to save starving heathens — is that your image of church women's groups?

Then you've had your eyes closed for a number of years.

You haven't seen the hundreds of women, young and old, who are active in endeavors of both a social and religious nature.

In Belleville there are 33 places of worship — Catholic, Protestant, Greek Orthodox and Jewish — and in each of them the women's groups play an integral role.

"Women contribute to the church in so many other ways than raising money," says Monsignor J. P. Sullivan of St. Michael the Archangel Church.

"Women are on the same footing as men, each less segregated in their church functions now. They participate in the liturgy, conduct study groups, and devote much of their time to local social work."

In fact, some women's groups no longer consider raising church funds part of their function at all.

The Lutheran women of Holy Trinity Church don't hold sales or teas, according to their minister, Rev. Donald Himmelman, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association.

Instead, they collect clothing for relief projects at home and abroad, meet for Bible study sessions, and do volunteer work for various local organizations.

"The focus for women's groups has generally become a more immediate one," says Rev. Himmelman.

Generalization about these groups is difficult because there are so many different types, depending on the needs of the churches and the women.

Missionary Societies, such as those at Centennial Free Methodist Church or at Parkdale Baptist Church, have as their priorities the giving of assistance to their mission fields.

The women of Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Ladies' auxiliary worked for ten years to help raise funds to build their church, opened in 1972.

Their duties also included making of church bread and linens, and maintenance of the church.

"Now that we have our building, we can broaden out to assist other community activities," says Helen Talaimanias, president of the Auxiliary. "We are in the midst of planning now the different ways we can help."

"One of the functions of any women's auxiliary is to help the men out," says Sadie Rose, president of the Sons of Jacob Ladies' Auxiliary. "We assist with maintenance of the synagogue and membership.

However, our main focus is toward the community, where we support the Red Cross, the Belleville General Hospital and the Volunteer Bureau. We help as individuals, and with funds derived from our autumn bazaar."

Most of the auxiliary members also belong to Hadassah-WIZO, which has aid to Israel as its main purpose.

"What is important is that the funds raised in Canada are spent in Canada," explains Mrs. Rose. "We buy the health and educational equipment here, and then send it to Israel."

Nancy Miller, president of St. Thomas Anglican Church Women, says that the reason many women join groups is for the fellowship.

"Newcomers to the city often become members of a church group in order to feel part of the community. Then they become involved in the local charitable work the group does.

"There seems to be a revival in the city of interest in local needs, in the value of volunteer work. I think it may be because women feel like I do, — 'If you're going to live in a community, you have to do your bit.'

"Yet it is still hard to find women who are willing to take executive positions demanding time and responsibility. Women are dispersing their efforts over such a wide area these days."

That's one of the reasons that the United Church Women created "units" within the organization, to appeal to the different ages and interests of women in the church.

"At Bridge Street United Church we have supper groups for the single and elderly who don't have family responsibilities, evening groups for working women, and afternoon groups for young married and middle-aged women," explains Barbara Nelles, president of the UCW.

"Like many of the other church women's groups, our concern is with what we call 'local outreach'. We visit handicapped and elderly people, with other groups we staff the Hastings Manor coffee shop, the Meals on Wheels service, and various other volunteer projects."

As Mrs. Nelles makes clear, church and synagogue women's groups provide the pleasant benefits that make a community a good place to live.

They also give women the chance to work together, and experience the satisfaction of seeing worthwhile projects completed under their guidance.

Youngsters Appreciate Program

Belleville's outdoor life program is a relatively new one, but in its few years of existence it has rapidly expanded.

The program is designed to give young people 12-14 years of age something to do with themselves, through the summer holidays.

There are seven, one-week camps (five days and four night's) that operate in conjunction with the Hastings County Board of Education and the Moira River Conservation Authority.

For a week at a time, 36 youngsters are given the opportunity to enjoy the atmosphere of camp life. Canoeing, archery, swimming and many other recreational facilities are provided through the program, all for the single price of $10 per person. The site of course is the E. R. Fisk Centre (near Plainfield) and all that need be provided by the individual are food and personal items. The program is supervised by five members of the Recreation and Arena summer staff.

The Printed Word...

DICK ELLIS, FOUNDER OF RICHARD ELLIS PRINTING

Since the invention of movable type by Johann Gutenberk in 1438 the printed word has conveyed messages, has educated, entertained and informed us. At Richard Ellis Printing you are offered a complete line of facilities for your publishing and advertising needs — letterpress, offset, silk screening. Our Motto "IF IT'S PRINTABLE, WE'LL PRINT IT".

Established in 1948 by the late Richard Ellis the company has steadily progressed and since DICK'S death in 1970 has been managed by his daughter and son-in-law Doreen and Doug Reid. Friendly personal attention has always been the keynote to their success.

Sponsors of several minor sports teams over the years, this firm is a Belleville Booster in the true sense. We are especially proud of our Ellis Jrs. since it is the only local Juniors softball club in competition.

Phil Dodds believes in flower power

Dodds Beautifies Cherry Valley

CHERRY VALLEY — Prince Edward County's "flower child" Philip Dodds has a message for the masses.

"Make the world a little more beautiful before you have lived here." Is the philosophy of this horticulturist who practices what he preaches in his home village.

An unincorporated hamlet in Athol township, Cherry Valley in reality does not boast a single cherry tree. The name is believed to have originated in the early 1800s when, possibly, there were wild cherry trees in the village.

A flower enthusiast undaunted by this misnomer, Mr. Dodds has spent recent summers encouraging local residents to plant Petunias. His comments that a mass display of this popular annual compensates for Cherry Valley's lack of cherry blossoms.

Headquarters for Mr. Dodd's personal Operation Petunia are at Valley Farm where he resides full time following retirement as news editor of the Picton Gazette, five years ago.

Minor Lacrosse Active

Nearly 186 youngsters registered to play the fastest sport on two feet this summer. They will be divided into four age groupings ranging from novice to midget.

Along with the boys that registered, 30 girls signed up. The girls will be allotted to the boys teams depending on their respective size.

This is the second year that females have been allowed to register for the sport in the city and it appears with the growing number that within a few years they will have an association of their own.

Fees for the season are $5 per person and $10 per family.

Glanmore Houses Hastings History

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

The historical heart of Hastings County and Belleville is a grey Victorian mansion on Bridge Street East — Glanmore House.

Nestled among towering pines and maples, the graceful old building serves as the home of Hastings County Historical Society and acts as a major drawing card for tourists in the Quinte area.

In the first year of its opening as a public exhibition showcase, Glanmore House has charmed more than 11,000 visitors. — And so it should.

Inspired by elaborate French chateaux, Glanmore House was completed in 1883 for a wealthy Belleville banker, John Philpot Curran Phillips.

Phillips, a lover of books and fine arts, was a staunch Imperialist, when he decided to build his home, he called upon a Montreal architect, Thomas Hanley, to design the magnificent building that remained in his family until only a few years ago.

Inside the house, grand rooms are faithfully refurbished to their original opulence. Large stone fireplaces are matched with marble mantels and ornate carvings. There is a sweeping staircase, and shattered bay windows look out onto a world that has changed considerably since Victorian times.

In fact Glanmore House adheres so strictly to the image of the Victorian period that it even comes equipped with its own ghost.

Percy Phillips, son of the original owner, died at the age of three and is said to be one of the house's permanent residents.

Age, beauty and character are just a few of Glanmore's traits. Its 14 exhibition rooms contain enough historically interesting materials to hold the attention of even the most lackadaisical history buff.

Starting from the top of the three exhibition floors, the list of treasures stored in Glanmore's rooms conjures up an image of sophisticated luxury that lifts a visitor from the present into the past.

The MacDonald Gallery: Originally the guest room of Glanmore House, the MacDonald Gallery now serves as a special exhibition room in which a wide variety of paintings and sketches by Quinte area artist Manly MacDonald are placed on public display. The room also contains an old fashioned loom on which weaving is still done.

The Paul Lamp Room: This collection of lighting devices donated to the museum by Dr. William Paul. Reputed to be one of the finest collections of its type in North America, the Paul lamp collection is housed in what used to be the master bedroom at Glanmore.

Susanna Moodie Library: This room, furnished with the help of Beta Sigma Phi, takes its name from Mrs. Susanna (Strickland) Moodie, a noted Canadian writer who was the wife of J. Wedderburn Dunbar Moodie, the first sheriff of Hastings County. The library houses a collection of school-books and drawings of past county wardens and historical society members hope to turn it into a repository for materials on the life and times of Hastings County residents.

The main floor of Glanmore House is divided into five distinct areas that house a wide variety of permanent and temporary exhibits.

The drawing room is lavishly decorated and is by far Glanmore's most impressive display room. Making use of articles that came with the house and drawing upon the city's Couldery Collection, the room exhibits a potpourri of pieces that amply reflect the tastes of the Victorian era.

Complete with Jacobean chairs, vases and British Parian ware, Louis XIV sideboards and clocks and candles suitable for any 19th century European salons, this long room is cordoned off to give visitors a comprehensive look at Victorians at its finest.

The music-card room was a favorite after dinner spot in Victorian times and still houses an organ and a marvelous highboy with a pullout butler's desk.

In the games room, Mr. Phillips' billiard table dominates the room to which the men retired for gentlemanly competition while their wives took tea in the breakfast room.

At present, the breakfast room is fitted with display cases that hold a wide variety of displays with a definite Hastings County orientation.

In the dining room, Glanmore's original tables and chairs, sideboards, mantels and paintings create an atmosphere for the high tea service that is borrowed from the Couldery Collection.

The Canadiana Room has a definite local flavor, with a variety of displays depicting the life led by the majority of Hastings residents early in the county's settled history.

At one end is a barnyard scene incorporating building sites and tools fashioned as far back as 100 years ago. In the centre are more antiques including the prize-winning over-and-under plow first constructed in Belleville.

In short, no matter what your interest, Glanmore House has something that will capture your imagination.

Marmora Mine's Life Extended

By RUBY MCCOY
Staff Correspondent

MARMORA — A change in the economic position that will allow continued mining of low grade minerals will mean an additional two years of life for Marmoration Mining Company at Marmora.

This was the good news the Marmora district received at the mine on Friday and announced over the weekend by mines general superintendent George Wisti.

In making the announcement Mr. Wisti said he was pleased the life of the Marmora mine had been extended.

"It will be good for the employees and for the people of Marmora" he said.

The extended life of the Marmora mine means that the operation will continue until 1977 instead of closing in 1975 as had previously been announced.

Mr. Wisti said that a year ago the market was not conducive to the continuation of mining low grade minerals as all officials of the parent organization, Bethlehem Steel Corporation in Pennsylvania, had taken a fresh look at figures provided by Marmoration Mines and had decided that it was feasible to extend the pit and continue operations for another two years.

There are 300 employees at the Marmoration Mines, including 22 students hired for the summer.

Mr. Wisti said the two-year extension in the life of the mine would give employees more time to make adjustments and find other employment.

Although the mine operation would now be continued for another two years, Mr. Wisti said it would be foolish for people to hope for further extensions.

"The ore resources are there," he said. "They're just not there," he said.

Roy Fox, president of Local 4604 of the United Steel Workers of America at Marmora said the union executive and members were very happy" to hear that the life of the mine had been extended, if only for two years.

He said it would be an additional economic boost for everyone in the general Marmora area, for members of Local 4604 and staff members at the mines.

"Also, he said, "we welcome the news as we go to negotiations with the company on local issues because we now fin bargain from strength whereas before the announcement we were trying to bargain with a company who told us they were closing in 1976."

This, he said, would have made the union's bargaining position very weak.

Municipal reeves of Marmora village and Marmora and Lake townships, also were pleased with the announcement, the mine's life would be extended until 1977.

Village Reeve Jack Reynolds said the extension would be of considerable benefit to the area and would provide additional time for the community to make plans for the eventual mine closing.

He said the extension would mean continued employment for between 50 and 60 mine employees who live in the township.

Also, the extension would mean another two years of full tax benefits for the township from the mine owners.

Mr. Bell noted that 14 per cent of the municipality's total tax revenue now came from Marmoration Mines.

Theatre Guild Plays Picked

Plans for the Belleville Theatre Guild's 1974 season are already under way.

The Guild's play reading committee has selected one play of the four it will present to Belleville theatregoers. It is still going over scripts.

The play is Brian Friel's Lovers. The Irish playwright has essentially written two short one act plays—Winners and Losers — and placed both under one title, Lovers, following a single theme.

Guild president Verna Patterson says this will allow more actors upon the stage, in parts that will not consume much people have time of.

Lovers, or one of the other three plays will come under the jurisdiction of a professional director this year, if positive commitment several years ago. A $2,100 Theatre Ontario grant for 1974 enables the troupe to hire a pro.

The Guild is investigating the possibility of producing a Canadian play in its season. If a Canadian play is produced, it would mark the second time one was produced by the Guild since Centennial year 1967, said Mrs. Patterson.

However, all Guild directors will have the benefit of more sophisticated technical facilities at the Pinnacle Playhouse. Plans are to totally refurbish the playhouse and complete sound and lighting starting began earlier this year.

OBC Offers Business Training

Ontario Business College at 94 Victoria Avenue in Canada's oldest private business college. It opened in 1868 and has been operating ever since.

A staff of eight, seven of them teachers, run the college for about 80 full-time day students. In addition, the college offers night courses to fundamental business skills and summer courses in subjects like shorthand refreshers and Speedwriting.

Since its inception, the college has attracted students from the eastern Ontario area, South America as well as from the eastern Ontario area.

The college claims its business training is superior to others, basing its statement on employment statistics and salary level. All graduates obtain employment and make more money to start than others. Average starting wage is more than $100 a week and can go as high as $131.

The college has an average of five to 15 positions available for graduates at any one time. A spokesman for the college says he is unaware of any graduate who is unemployed.

All courses at the college start at the beginning of every month, allowing students 12 opportunities a year to enter and graduate. Students can progress at their own speed.

Courses offered are advanced legal, medical or executive secretarial training, business administration, accounting and junior management and bookkeeping. Accounting graduates are qualified to enter the second year of the Certified General Accounting course.

Picton's Industrial Park Is Growing

PICTON — Loch Sloy Holding, a 700-acre industrial park at Prince Edward Heights, continues to attract new industry to the county.

Trenton Woos Varied Firms

This comment was made by Trenton Councillor John Bonn during a report from the town's industrial commission.

He said "Trenton has a wide variety of industries, none of which might be termed large employers of labor. This fact, along with the Canadian Armed Forces base, has lent considerable stability to the town's economy."

In the past 20 years, Trenton has acquired 32 new industries, though in the last two years the town has lost three.

The factors of the base and diversity "have enabled us to withstand this loss," said the councillor.

A brief submitted by the councillor outlines three reasons for bringing new industry to the town. To create employment, to produce additional income and to maintain a level of industry were the reasons cited.

Prince Edward director of economic development, William Duggan reported two new companies this month are negotiating leases and, if they sign, will fill the park's last vacancies.

Mr. Duggan added there has been tentative discussion of expansion of the industrial park with the erection of new unit factories. The economic development director predicted that Loch Sloy will remain the centre of industry here "for some time".

The industrial park offers seven major hangars and approximately 40 smaller ones suitable for light industry. The airfield located there has proved extremely useful to industrialists, according to Mr. Duggan.

One of the newest industries to locate at the park is The Marble Veneer Company of Canada, Ltd. President and inventor of the process is William E. Hodges.

The company manufactures decorative table tops, wall panels, and flooring from genuine imported marble. Approximately 40 persons will be employed this year and possibly 50 workers in within the next two years.

Another new industry in operation at Loch Sloy is Mardor Canada Ltd., a company that manufactures door and window moldings and sections. About 25 workers will be employed there this year and, employees hired when the company first opened, now are being trained to operate new machinery.

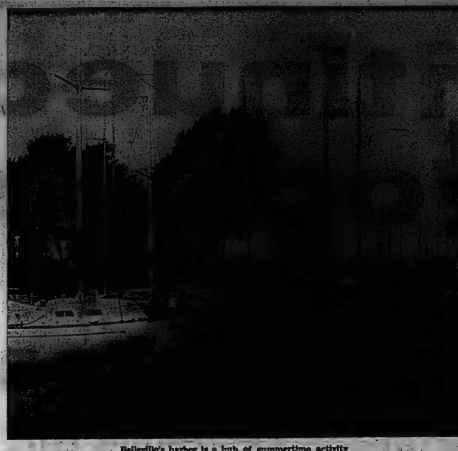
One of the first industries to locate at the industrial park, Baltimaster Boats, continues to operate a thriving boating trade.

Other tenants at the park include Skylight Homes and Wickes Canada Ltd.

Wickes Canada Ltd. now acts as the eastern Ontario sales, service and maintenance centre. A decision on whether to restart its production line is expected in August.

Mr. Duggan indicated that the company's action will be contingent on the recreational vehicle market.

The economic director observed that the opportunity for his department to work in co-operation with the owners of Loch Sloy has been "extremely good for the county".



Milford Fair Charming Event

MILFORD — Milford Fair, the only remaining township fair in Prince Edward County this fall will celebrate its 20th anniversary.

The fair is a one-day event with most entries closed to residents of South Marysburgh township. Among its main attractions are a horse show, floral exhibits, a livestock display, baking, sewing, arts and crafts and a baby show.

Each year school children parade from the school yard to the fairgrounds to open the program of special events.

A miniature showcase of Prince Edward County, Milford Fair annually attracts scores of visitors for an old-fashioned day in the country.

Belleville's harbor is a hub of summertime activity

Quinte Mall Expanding

While changes have been evident throughout the city and area within the past year, something new and exciting is being planned for the Quinte Mall in the city's south end.

A $15-million development has been planned for the Mall including mall expansion, a multi-storey motor hotel, and two 13-storey apartment structures having a total of about 300 units.

The mall expansion would almost double the present floor area space. At present Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd. of Toronto owns close to 70 acres in the Quinte Mall. The existing mall occupies 22.5 acres with 225,000 square feet of floor space.

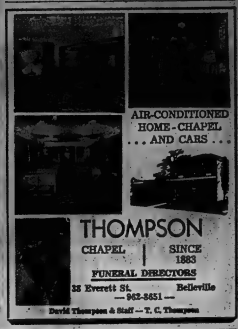
The planned shopping centre expansion would take up another 15.5 acres providing for 225,000 square feet of floor space, almost doubling the present size.

The announcement was made on April 5. Construction of the one- and two-bedroom apartment units on the south side of Bell Blvd would be the first stage of development. Completion date of the over all project has been predicted for late 1977.

The motor hotel would occupy a five-acre site west of the shopping mall. The name of it has not been disclosed. The two apartment structures would take up 7.8 acres on the south of Bell Blvd.

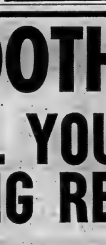
Fifteen acres to the west of the motor hotel has been reserved for showcase industry, while 1.5 acres of parkland would be provided.

Expansion of the present Simpsons-Sears department store is also in the plans.



Loyalist Active in Sports

Belleville's community colleges hasn't been around very long, but already its sports representatives have made their marks on the college circuit.



The three major sports at Loyalist are men's basketball, girls' basketball and hockey. In all three of these sports the representative teams placed third last season.

Along with the major sports, others such as curling

Loyalist took an Ontario championship in the men's division last season — badminton, table tennis, tennis, and several others are offered.

'A COMPANY THAT ACHIEVES CONSISTENT RECORD SALES'

Belleville Theatre Guild Involving More People

By AL ZANAS
Staff Reporter

It's been a good year.

The Belleville Theatre Guild has marked successes in overall attendance figures, profit and involvement of citizens in the four productions the troupe put on stage this season.

"In terms of involvement and the opportunities available for participation, this probably was the best season," said recently re-elected Guild president Verna Patterson.

"Part of the credit has to go to the theatre-going public," she said. "I think that there's a growing interest in the theatre in this area."

In terms of profit, over $2,000 will be carried over into the 1976 season. Oliver, Lionel Bart's adaptation of Charles Dickens' novel Oliver Twist, increased the profit margin considerably add the production.

Oliver topped off a solid, varied season for the Guild. It is Broadway smash musical, the troupe's first, was preceded by two three-act plays, Bill MacIlwraith's The Anniversary and Peter Cook's Midsummer Mink. These one-act plays started off the season.

Over the entire season, attendance was up over previous years. The number of subscribers was also higher than before with the box office recording 95% Close to 1,000 people attended all four Guild productions this year — approximately 95 per cent of the available number of seats at the Pinnacle Playhouse and Belleville Collegiate Institute.

The Guild used the high school stage when production staff ran into problems with housing the large cast and backstage crew needed for the production of Oliver.

Of 85 roles available in all four plays, 85 were filled without duplication. This limited degree of over-lapping is a marked difference from that of two years ago, said Mrs. Patterson. At that time, almost half of the actors played two roles in Guild productions.

"This isn't happening any more. The competition is stiffer for the parts. Before, we had to beat the bushes to get people to read for parts."

In all, some 250 people were directly involved in various Guild productions.

Professional involvement in Guild activities was more pronounced than in previous years. A Theatre Ontario grant of $750 helped pay the salary of professional Montreal designer Jeffrey Shon. The designer worked on sets for both The Anniversary and Midsummer Mink.

An adjudicator was called in to view the set of one-act plays, Comedy Hiatrys II.

Three separate workshops during the course of 1975 made possible increased involvement in Guild activities by the public. A children's acting workshop, another for costume design, and one for set building were held.

They were all very practical in the sense that they actually learned something and applied it," said Mrs. Patterson.

Oliver's cast spent months rehearsing.

Canadian Shield Yields up Riches

MADOC — This area is belying color Canada.

There's a legend that goes with it. But the reality is in the production of variously-hued marble beam from the stoney flatness of the Canadian Shield which splits Quinte country into two distinctive landscapes here.

The marble, concentrated in a colorful selection believed singular to Canada, is ground into chips and used for architectural terrazzo decoration.

Marble has been quarried in various locations throughout Hastings County. There's even a century-old church near here believed the only one of its kind in Canada built from the stone.

But the legend of how today's small, but bustling enterprises began goes back to the 1930s Great Depression. It's related by the man who runs one of the terrazzo operations, Bill Houston.

It goes like this: In the mid-1930s Carl Stoklosar of Madoc took a piece of polished marble to a Toronto company to sound out the prospects of doing business. The sample fell to the floor — and shattered. The businessmen got the idea of producing marble chips for terrazzo flooring and architectural facings. Mr. Stoklosar returned to Madoc and went into business.

Baseball Booms

Baseball had its registrations climb to over 700 this summer in its five divisions — tadpole, tyke, peewee, bantam and midget.

The association has representative all-star teams in the divisions from tyke to midget and all will have a busy schedule this season playing 34 regular season games in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association along with playoffs in the Eastern and Ontario Baseball Association.

Baseball's executive consists of Mac McClelland, president; Vi Christopher, first vice; Garnet Byrd, second vice; Jean Reid, third vice; Mark MacDonell, secretary; Charlie Bartlett, equipment manager and Doug McCrory, umpire-in-chief.

Fees are $5 per person and $20 per family.

His quarry operations and grinding mill are still in operation — a mile north, of here on Highway 62 — since purchased by a company headed by Robert Nash.

But it still operates under the Stoklosar name and sells across Canada and the United States. Mr. Nash estimates his production of chips — quarried from the surrounding country-side — runs around 5,000 tons a year.

Mr. Nash sells about 5,000 tons annually from his operation west of Madoc.

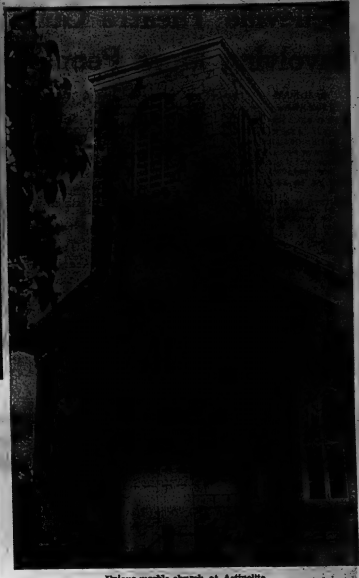
The demand for Madoc-area marble chips has been steady for years. One reason is the variety of colors — blue, red, green, buff, white, black. Then, are no huge deposits. But they're centred in a fairly small area, which makes for production economy.

"It's amazing the number of colors you can get from the ground within 15 miles of Madoc," says Mr. Houston.

"I don't think there's another spot quite like it in North America."

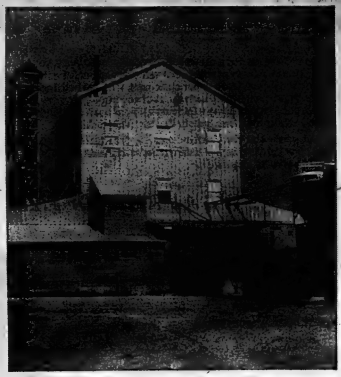
One reason is the great age of the pre-Cambrian Canadian Shield and the eons-old work of iron deposits. The chemical reaction has caused the variety of colors, creating solid rainbow pools beneath the gaunt, grey surface of the shield, says Mr. Houston.

The hunt is always on for fresh deposits as pockets of colored stone are worked out, says Mr. Nash. Among information sources are local farmers who unearth the colored stone.



Quarrying on a more ambitious scale has something of a history in the county. Slabs of marble were cut from the countryside in places like Tweed, Bronson and Actinolite.

In fact at Actinolite stands a unique memorial to industry. Marble was found in the vicinity or what now is Actinolite, north of Tweed, in the mid-1800s.



A church was constructed completely of marble for what then was planned as a community with a future. The future was never fulfilled. But the church still stands, solid as ever, now a United Church and marked by a provincial government plaque as likely the only house of worship of its kind in Canada.

Quinte Hastings Trail Is an Asset for the Whole County

Fresh air is the fuel that will fire a major Quinte industry industry of the future — recreation.

And the district already has one of the biggest fresh air facilities in Ontario.

It's the Quinte-Hastings Trail, still undergoing some organizational problems, but existent — and in use — nonetheless.

It's a time when trails have been discovered as the popular mechanism in the drive for the fresh-air outdoors. But the Quinte-Hastings facility, despite its initial breathing difficulties after birth, at least is a step ahead of installations elsewhere in Ontario.

For one thing, it reaches 233 miles from Lake Ontario toward Algonquin Park, a showcase of the province's contrasting scenery. It stretches from gentle farmland through rugged wilderness.

And it's not for motorcycles, like earlier trails elsewhere.

The Quinte Trail is multi-purpose. Which means it was originally planned for use by various outdoor groups, besides the hackney-driven, mini-bikers, snowmobilers, horseback riders.

Admittedly, explain organizers, it had to be so. The trail originally was created by public funds — $133,000 in Local Initiatives Program grants — so it had to be laid out in, order to a broad demand.

It suffered drawbacks after its creation three years ago. What was needed was volunteer support to maintain and keep the trail going. Responses was tardy. Now things appear changing, James Staveley, president of the volunteer group that runs the trail, said recently.

The trail — has received growing recognition as an educational facility; school groups have been formed to benefit from it. Military cadets have found it useful.

So have many snowmobilers in winter, hikers and others in summer — although there's no way of counting the numbers, says association secretary Grant Harvey.

More recently, the Ontario government has recognized the value of such facilities and is legislating programs for a provincial agency.

If the Quinte trail is selected for membership — and its multi-purpose concept is seen as a drawing feature — provincial funding would be available to ease the disappointment of slow volunteer help.

What that means is if the trail was an idea slightly ahead of its time, its time may now the approaching, he indicated to a recent trail association meeting.

"In the next five years there's going to be an unprecedented demand on our recreation facilities — particularly in this area where provincial officials see a fantastic demand. We can't escape it."

The trail concept meantime has caught the eye of those responsible for other trails in the province. They appear to be adapting the multi-purpose idea, says Mr. Harvey.

Also, recognition also has been won outside the province.

The trail association has had requests from official United States trails publications for information on its concept, he says.

Education County's Biggest Industry

The biggest industry in Hastings county has no definite product.

It is education, with a budget for the public county board this year of $35.5 million.

Hastings county board of education, formed in 1969 is run by a 17-member board of trustees, one of them the appointee of the Bay of Quinte Mohawk band on Tyendinaga Reserve.

In June, trustees and administrators will move into new headquarters, the former Queen Alexandra School on the corner of Ann and Dundas Streets. The remodeled building will house five administrative units, now located on five different sites. Included is a media centre, where audio-visual and other teaching aids are prepared and stored and from which they are circulated to schools by the board's own courier system.

The public board administers 49 elementary schools, 4 secondary schools and three schools for the trainable retarded.

Equalized assessed value of the schools is $50 million. They are operated and maintained at the rate of $1.40 a square foot a year.

Pupil enrolment is 14,889 in elementary schools, 8,915 in secondary schools, and 125 in the schools for the retarded, for a total of 23,139.

The county board employs 1,325 teachers. In addition, there are 92 people involved in special education, 32 support personnel (co-ordinators, nurses, library and audio-visual technicians), seven academic administration staff and a business staff, including custodians and secretaries, of 367.

Because Hastings is one of the longest counties in the province (about 115 miles), transportation is of primary concern to the board and administration. The board operates 270 daily routes to bus 9,800 students to school. Its buses travel 1,500,000 miles a year. Many of the routes are shared with the Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board under an agreement that results in more economical bus runs for both boards.

The county board is noted for its good relations with its teachers. A principals' council meets regularly with administration to share views, and various teachers' advisory committees have access to administrators and trustees on academic matters. Salary schedules range from $5,700 for a beginning teacher at level one to $17,000 at the top of level seven.

Volunteers Work Hard in Belleville

For more than seven years, the Central Volunteer Bureau has provided the people of Belleville with services ranging from hot meals for shut-ins to drives for cancer patients needing treatment in distant cities.

The bureau, originally a service of United Community Services, was begun and is still directed by Ruth Burrows, herself a volunteer.

The first service it offered was to act as a clearing house for volunteers in search of community work and community agencies in need of workers.

Since that time, it has expanded its service to running its own community programs as well as recruiting and training volunteers for other agencies.

In its own programs, more than 300 volunteers are at work; the bureau also lists more than 800 volunteers who work occasionally or regularly for community groups.

RUTH BURROWS

The volunteer bureau's own programs include weekly hot meals for shut-ins, a day nursery for handicapped children, preschool enrichment for four-year-olds, a furniture sharing program, English classes for new Canadians, Christmas sharing program to coordinate all charitable activities at Christmas, and even an adult literacy program.

For other community agencies, the bureau provides office services, speech interpreters, welfare trustees and the like.

Mrs. Burrows, who believes that volunteers are one of the city's greatest resources, adds that the bureau continually takes on new work as needs arise.

"One of our volunteers might see a need and if we find it can't be met within the framework of existing organizations, perhaps we'll set up to meet the need. Then we hope we can find a foster parent for the service."

Mrs. Burrows says the bureau also runs training programs for volunteers if the agency itself can't train personnel.

The bureau, Mrs. Burrows adds, will provide any services it can for non-profit, health, welfare, educational and cultural organizations.

However, she points out, volunteers to fulfill these needs are always needed, particularly in the summer months. For example, drivers are often requested as holidays leave gaps in regular driving schedules.

Contact the volunteer bureau at 962-1255, or visit at 240 William Street.

Shipping Cartons Made Here

You wouldn't be able to get far in business and industry without cardboard boxes. You need something strong, convenient and protective to ship your product in if you're ever going to get your product on the market.

But with the Standard Paper Box Ltd. plant on University Avenue in the city's northeast industrial park, how can you ship a product that is a paper box?

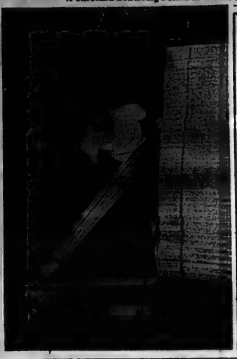
That's easy, as the boxes are shipped flat in neat piles and carried away by trucks.

Since February, the plant has been turning out corrugated paper containers for various industries. At Standard Paper Box, boxes are printed, cut, glued, folded, and stitched among other things.

"It all depends on the needs of the customers," said Miro Tretina, production superintendent. "We have our customers in Ontario and Quebec.

Examples of local customers of Standard Paper Box would be G. T. Lanning Hat Company, Maud-Johnson, Peta Shoe, Proctor-Lewyt in Picton and Dupont in Kingston.

There are about 25 employees at Standard Paper Box including the supervisory staff. While production started early in February, work is still being completed on the exterior of the 55,000 square foot building which in itself resembles a corrugated box in its blue metal facade.



A variety of machines perform the various functions in turning out the corrugated containers. One machine, called a flexo machine is fully automated and does the following jobs: feeds, prints, cuts, glues, folds, counts and ejects the box. Various other machines do such duties as taping, gluing and stitching.

So, if you need a corrugated paper box, anything from a five foot square one to one of 20 feet square, you know where to go.

"Bottled Sunshine"

Dear Customers and Friends

We at Reid's Dairy have dedicated this year towards the education of children.

To reach this goal, we are producing a comprehensive movie telling the story of milk entitled "BOTTLED SUNSHINE". Completion date is set for August of this year and the film will be made available to any interested group upon request.

We are also very proud of our plaque which is mounted to the front of the dairy. It tells the story of Reid's Dairy and reads as follows:

THE REID'S DAIRY COMPANY LIMITED
ESTABLISHED IN 1910 BY THE LATE FRANK REID,
OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SIDNEY.
THE ONLY REMAINING DAIRY PLANT IN HASTINGS AND SURROUNDING COUNTIES AND ONE OF A HANDFUL OF CANADIAN OWNED DAIRIES IN ONTARIO. THIS PLAQUE IS IN APPRECIATION OF THE MANY CUSTOMERS WHO ARE SUPPORTING THEIR LOCAL DAIRY.

Provincial Parks Offer Pleasure to Thousands

The Outlet — Sandbanks provincial park, a combination of two park areas, is located about 25 miles south of Belleville on Highway 14.

The Sandbanks is a 1,210 acre provincial natural environment park that preserves areas of natural, scenic and historic significance. Visitors can enjoy five miles of sandy beach. Ideal for swimming and picnicking and shelling and hiking. The Lake Ontario beach, however, is dangerous for non-swimmers because the beach slopes steeply underwater.

A park pamphlet states "Originally submerged, the Sandbanks was formed by sand collecting across the mouth of the bay. Eventually a shallow top soil with vegetation and a tree cover emerged to create the park as it is today.

"Most of the park area has been reforested because of the previous landowners' tree-felling program which together with wind, caused soil erosion."

Many thousands of trees now have been planted on sand prepared with hay and straw mulches and protected by wind barriers.

The sand movement now is under control but it remains necessary to protect the vegetation and tree cover vital in sand dune stabilization.

Facilities at Sandbanks park include toilets, running water, a beach and change houses. Overnight camping is not permitted except in emergency situations.

Outlet Beach park is a 673-acre provincial natural environment park preserving areas of natural, scenic and historical significance. Facilities include 483 tent and trailer sites, comfort stations, toilets, a sand beach, and picnic areas. There are no hydro facilities for trailers, however.

There are three separate campgrounds with some campsites overlooking wide sandy beaches and several miles of the Lake Ontario shoreline. The park, opened in 1958, originally was under water, forming part of a large bay, in Lake Ontario. After many years a sand bar formed across the mouth of the bay creating an inland lake.

This year at the park there will be two full-time security officers. The park control officers, Bruce Stratton and Bill DeJohn, have arrest and seizure authority within park boundaries.

Outlet Park will have a total student staff of 59 this year, including participants in the SWOP (Students Working on Resource Development) program. These students are not employed in the regular program but in park maintenance.

North Beach Provincial Park lies about 11½-miles west of Highway 33, approximately 12 miles from Trenton.

This 75-acre provincial recreation park has been specially developed for day-time use and contains fully serviced facilities. The park is on a sandbar between Lake Ontario and Lake North Bay, a small lake near the southern edge of Prince Edward County.

"Visitors to the park can see The Carrying Place, a site used by Indians as a portage between Lake Ontario and the Bay of Quinte," states a park pamphlet.

One of Prince Edward's most talked about views can be enjoyed from Lake on the Mountain provincial recreation park. This 258-acre site has been developed for daytime use and will be expanded.

The park is situated between "bottomless" Lake on the Mountain and a 178-foot escarpment that falls steeply to the Bay of Quinte. Park brochures note that the absence of a visible inlet to the lake and its indeterminate depth toward the middle led early settlers to believe that it was bottomless and connected by an underground stream, thanks to reflections from anti-pollution bylaws, sewage disposal system and garbage dump regulations. The general public realize that survival depends on the cleanup of our waters, is also co-operating.

The last two years have seen very high waters in our rivers and lakes. This has made for swift currents in rivers and streams leading into our bays and inlets. Pockets of silt and garbage have been flushed out and carried down stream.

Detergents have been dissolved because of the large volume of water and the streams are taking on a cleaner appearance.

Fishing in the Bay of Quinte has improved and local anglers are taking their limit of Northern Pike, and are coming up with the odd Walleye. The bay is cleaner than it has been for the past 10 years.

Fishing from harbor docks, youngsters are taking hundreds of Crappies, Perch, Sunfish, Catfish, Silver Bass, and other species.

Bass fishing has improved in the past few years and should be excellent this year.

The appearance of Rainbow Trout in the Moira and Trent Rivers is a sign of cleaner waters.

Coho and Splake, planted in our Great Lakes System by the Department of Natural Resources and by the American Game and Fisheries are finding their way to the Bay of Quinte and local rivers and streams.

Cleaner waters mean more fish. More fish mean more tourists.

Out bay, the finest body of water for boating to be found in North America, is taking on an improved appearance.

Swimming conditions look much better.

Look around you this year and perhaps you will see a way to improve our environment. Drinking water will improve, the scenery will be better, and life will be more pleasant.

Help improve our environment to clean our air, our waters, and our world.

Fishing Better As Clears Waters

Splake, Rainbow, Cohoe being caught in the Moira River at Lazier's Dam?

Yes, they're in the Moira. And the fish are being caught.

The waters of the Quinte Area are becoming much cleaner as each year progresses, thanks to regulations from anti-pollution bylaws, sewage disposal system and garbage dump regulations. The general public realize that survival depends on the cleanup of our waters, is also co-operating.

Wage Bill $7 Million

PICTON — Total wages and salaries paid by county industries in 1973 exceeded $7-million says director of economic development for Prince Edward, William Duggan.

Mr. Duggan notes that local taxes paid by industry total more than $350,000.

He reports that in 1972 industrial employment in the county totalled 942 permanent jobs and 729 part-time jobs for a total of 1,671 jobs, in contrast with a total of 1,973 jobs in 1972. He attributes the increase, in part, to the expansion of existing industries as well as the arrival of new companies.

Mr. Duggan predicts that an additional 100 full-time industrial jobs will be added in 1974.

Quinte Arts Council Looks Back On Successful Year in 1974

As the Quinte Arts Council goes into its 1974 season of activities this fall, it will be working under added prestige and recognition given it by the provincial government.

This year for the first time since the council's inception, the group received a provincial grant to encourage greater activity in cultural endeavors in Belleville and surrounding area.

Manfred Koechlin, council president for the 1973-74 season, said last month the $2,200 grant marks "the first time that the Ontario government has recognized the importance of cultural activities in the smaller communities."

This grant, said Mr. Koechlin, will be used to stimulate and promote programs for professional and semi-professional local artists. The remainder is earmarked for administrative purposes as well as to cover the cost of bringing professional productions to the city.

The council, an umbrella association of 21 cultural groups in Belleville and vicinity, can already claim such credits.

Three different professional productions played Belleville during the past season, all under the sponsorship, either in whole or part, of the council.

The first was the Toronto-based choir, the Festival Singers, under the world-reknowned baton of conductor Elmer Iseler. Their appearance was the first in the city.

The Kingston Symphony Orchestra, as it has in previous years, also played an engagement in this city.

As recently as last month, the Shaw Festival theatre company based in Niagara-on-the-Lake played to a near-capacity house at Centennial Secondary School.

Council members had been trying for three years to bring the company for an engagement in Belleville. This year, George Bernard Shaw's The Devil's Disciple was produced in a one-night stand.

Though the council plays a large part in bringing professional talent into the Quinte area, the most visible display of its organizational ability and of its direction is the annual Quinte Artsfest.

Going into its ninth annual festival later this year, the event, of month-long duration, presents mostly local talent to Belleville audiences. The festival was begun in 1967, Canada's Centennial year.

Earlier this year, Artsfest kicked off with a wine and cheese party to open its Visual Arts Display, an art and craft exhibition. Following close upon the display in April was An Evening of Music, a combined effort by the Belleville Choral Society under Murray Irwin and the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra under the guiding hand of Stephen Chorna.

Move It!, a youth talent night, rounded out the council sponsored events. Oliver, the Belleville Theatre Guild's musical, ended Artsfest '74 in the opening days of May.

Art Mart, held in downtown Belleville, was another first this year, and all expectations indicate it will continue. In 1972, the first one was cancelled after poor scheduling precluded good attendance by local craftsmen and artists.

1974's version was labelled a "bowling success". Approximately 25 artists displayed their work.

Art Mart was instituted to give area artists and craftsmen the opportunity to present their work to the public at other than the only former outlet, the Visual Arts Display during Artsfest.

Trenton Air Station a Pilot

CFB TRENTON — The Canadian Armed Forces base here has been chosen as a national proving ground for base development programs.

Two years ago the Department of National Defence began taking a look at upgrading and augmenting base buildings. A study — held on a small scale at the base here — showed CFB Trenton as a good location to try out a 10-year, base development program.

Captain Bob Burke, base protocol officer, says it was a recent announcement that named CFB Trenton as the pilot project and that the results here would determine base development for armed forces bases across the country.

"If one base can do it, the rest of them will be able to," said the captain.

Over the next 10 years, the program will renovate and increase the number of buildings at CFB Trenton.

According to Captain Burke, the average age of CFB Trenton's buildings is about 30 years and only a handful of buildings has been constructed since 1945.

About 2,200 servicemen and another 800 civilians work at the base, constituting the Quinte area's largest single employer.

Although federal treasury board approval is necessary for capital projects of this nature, Captain Burke says he is "hopeful this year will be a very active one in terms of renovations".

Federal approval is still withheld from a number of projects but the captain says here is hope approval will come soon.

Already the base has undertaken the refitting of a barracks block that will soon house base administration. This move will ease the cramped quarters base administration now shares with Air Transport Command office personnel.

A number of smaller projects have also been started recently centred mainly around reconditioning hangar and storage areas — storage. The project is now the foremost being the under way. provision of office space in Captain Burke could not say One Hangar until for freight what amount of money was being channelled into the development program or what priorities were being set for construction this year.

Volunteer Firefighters Are Backbone of Rural Protection

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

The radio wrecked and walls cold in at midnight of autumn nearly 30 men have deserted their beds, their sleep for their families.

Rushing to an old distillery warehouse, to an old general store, both of which have been converted into garages, they climb aboard a couple of old trucks and drive madly into the night with their sirens screaming and their hearts pounding.

Man who live further away from the fire halls rush to the fire in their own private cars; they are firemen without sirens. The only thing that distinguishes them from other motorists is the white and amber flashing VFF light on the top left fender of their cars.

The scene is a common one in the Quinte area. The men who act it out are far from being common men. They are volunteer firefighters from Thurlow township, one of the 18 communities in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties who receive their fire protection services from volunteers.

Unlike the firefighters in the 7 larger municipalities, these men are not professionals. They are school teachers, factory workers, garage mechanics and electricians who have opted to spend their spare time helping people. The prestige that goes with being a firefighter isn't the motivating force behind their desire to serve, instead these men devote their time to community service simply because their community has a need and they feel they can fill it.

In a time of rapidly soaring prices and sharply increasing accident and fire rates, the volunteer firefighter in communities such as Thurlow provides his neighbors with an economical and efficient protective service.

For as little as $7,000 a year — just a shade more than half the annual salary of one professional firefighter — a township the size of Thurlow can equip and maintain a fire department that is composed of two fire halls and is manned by 30 volunteers.

Such a saving doesn't come from the wisdom of politicians or the thriftiness of a township treasurer. It lies in men. In the isolated hockey games, the sleepless nights and the lost leisure time of the men who have decided to serve their community.

Thurlow isn't a special case. Other townships in the Quinte area — Madoc, Sidney, Ameliasburgh, Tweed, and Tudor — rely upon volunteers for their fire protection. Thurlow's story could be retold almost word for word in any other location in the two Quinte counties.

The Corbyville and Point Anne detachments of the Thurlow fire department, for example, provide a good example of the types of sacrifices made and the services rendered by the volunteers.

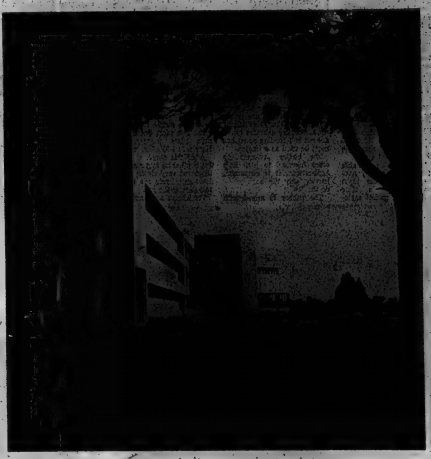
Every Monday night, the volunteers meet at the Corbyville fire hall, an old distillery warehouse that has been converted into a garage, and there they test their equipment, practice their fire drills and try to improve their firefighting skills. The volunteers from Point Anne devote their Tuesday nights to their practice drills.

In addition to the two training sessions at the fire halls, the Thurlow volunteers spend two nights a week attending a firefighting course at Loyalist College, where, along with other Quinte area volunteers, they study modern firefighting techniques under the direction of the Belleville professionals.

Was they are not studying or practising, the volunteers are usually busy satisfying their passion for keeping their equipment in top shape. In Corbyville, this interest has led the firefighters to build and equip their own rescue van, while the volunteers in Point Anne are currently busy refurbishing an old hydro truck in an attempt to turn it into a ladder truck for the use of both detachments.

In the future the firefighters hope to purchase two cab and chassis assemblies for a set of five-ton trucks and, using their spare time, will build a set of tanker trucks that will be designed specifically for use in rural areas.

If they are not working on their trucks and equipment, the volunteers are trying to scrape together some money to finance their projects.



Currently the Corbyville firefighters are trying to raise some $7,000 to finance a new rescue van. The one they are using now, an old second hand telephone maintenance truck, is already carrying more equipment than it can safely handle.

Completely equipped with cutting torches, floodlights, stretchers, a portable generator and a wide variety of power tools, the van has been used to free people from auto wrecks and to help police search for drowning victims.

The police have nothing but praise for the volunteers and their peers agree and judging by the letters of thanks that continually appear on the bulletin board at the fire hall the accident victims they have helped are glad the volunteers are not ordinary men.

Belleville Gaskets Go World Wide

In the 1870s an Englishman, who had previously worked in an asbestos factory in his native land, was working in a lumber camp in Quebec.

He wore asbestos socks, which he had knit from yarn he himself had made. Upon returning one evening to the bunk house, he kicked off his wet boots, pulled off his socks and mechanically tossed them into the fire.

With his fellow workers watching, he retrieved them from the fire and put them back on his feet with no ill effects.

Meanwhile, his co-workers died in horror, believing this to be the work of the devil. They reported the incident to the manager who promptly dismissed the prankster.

But now a 100 years later, asbestos is a little better known. The exact way it was originally formed still remains a mystery, but almost everyone knows about its fire-resistant qualities.

Then it is fitting, that when something is needed to withstand high temperatures even though as high as 2,000 degrees, that asbestos should be called in to do the trick.

At the Canadian Durabla Ltd. plant on University Avenue, asbestos is the main component used in their manufacture of gasket material which is shipped throughout the world.

The plant is a recent addition to the city's industrial family, being officially opened on November 23 of last year.

The company, which employs about 80 people, doesn't manufacture gaskets. Just gasket material which is sent out in rolls or sheets to such destinations as refineries, pulp and paper plants, petro-chemical and rubber industries throughout the world.

The asbestos comes to the plant from Thetford Mines arriving in bales. Rubber coming from Bowmanville is used as a binder in the process so that the entire gasket will be uniform and cohesive for handling and installing. The rubber is then combined with other chemicals.

Theoretically, the best seal would be a layer of pure asbestos of uniform density and thickness covering the sealing surface of the connecting flanges when they are bolted securely together. This cannot work, because asbestos fibres are not self-bonding so rubber must be used as a binder.

The binder performs no other function in high heat applications. It is consumed, leaving only the asbestos to do the job.

The rubber is mixed with solvent and other chemical ingredients into a cement.

Then the asbestos is blended in. The ratio can be several grades of the materials are then with the rubber being placed in the machine and the asbestos being shovelled into this machine by hand.

After it is blended, the mixture is then put through what is known as a calendar which turns the mixture into a long uniform sheet. Curing takes place at this stage by feeding the mixtures between the precision rollers of the calendar under high pressure and temperature.

In this curing process, the rubber is vulcanized, while the asbestos remains intact since it is heat resistant.

After the mixture has been cured and rolled, it is cut into sheets. The process of rolling can take anywhere from five minutes to an hour depending on the thickness required. At Durabla, thickness ranges from 100 gauge, to ¼ of an inch. The most popular size, says plant manager Jack Harris, is 1/16 of an inch.

After this stage, the asbestos is piled up into sheets and inspected very closely. Strong 1,000-watt lights are used for this part of the job.

The sheets are inspected for any imperfections such as blemishes, being off gauge or not properly cured. As well tests are done by quality control men to check the tensile strength compression and the heat resistance of the product.

Before this is done the sheets that look visually good are passed through a printer which prints the company's trademark on them.

From here, the asbestos material is handled in one of two ways. It can be cut into smaller sheets if it is to be exported outside North America. And if it has a North American market, it is rolled up. After this stage, it is weighed and made ready for

Among the destinations the product may head is are Switzerland, Hong Kong or the Caribbean. Mr. Harris says the company is considering potential markets in Taiwan and Thailand. The entire operation may take five days from the time the material comes in, to the time it is processed, inspected and sent out.

One additional point of interest about Canadian Durabla is the switch the company is making to the metric system in its weights and measurements.

Mr. Harris pointed out that right now the conversion to the metric system has started and in a way has been going on since the plant opened. This change is especially important, said Mr. Harris, since North America is about the only marketplace among Durabla's world customers that isn't metric.

Minor Softball Summer Favorite

Minor Softball can boast the highest registration of any minor summer sport in the city. Over 370 children will participate in the five different age groupings which softball offers. In four of the five divisions, representative teams will be entered in Ontario Amateur Softball Association Leagues.

Softball's executive is headed by Don Smith. Vice-presidents are Pete Hunt, on the East Hill and Dave Murray, on the West Hill. The umpire-in-chief is Ken Brookes, statistician is Garry Miller, secretary is Ken Trice and equipment manager is Cam Smith.

Registration fees are $3 for individuals and $6 for families.

While the boys are out firing the ball around, the girls aren't going to just sit around and watch. So, for the eighth summer in a row softball is going to have a feminine side.

Close to 200 young ladies registered to play in three age groupings ranging from 9-16 years.

Registration fees are $1 per person and $5 a family.

Ties to Past Strong in County

PICTON — "The county is a self-contained place. Those who can take their positions in the community as farmers, merchants, business or professional men. Those for whom there is no place leave."

This observation is included in the opening chapter of the book, "The County" co-authored by Richard and Janet Lunn.

A community with strong ties to its past, Prince Edward takes pride in the preservation of a colorful history through its museums.

In 1967, Canada's centennial year, the Wellington Historical Museum was opened. Formerly a Society of Friends (Quaker) meeting house, it features room vignettes, collection displays and an attractive sales counter. Curator is Mrs. Ruth Armstrong.

Ameliasburgh township boasts perhaps the largest museum in Prince Edward, complete with log cabin and three other outbuildings. The original building was constructed in 1808 as a Methodist Church of native quarried limestone. The chief displays feature Indian artifacts found in Ameliasburgh, Reverend Bowen Squire's paintings depicting early scenes, the chapel, the blacksmith shop and wedding clothes of 100 years ago.

The Marysburgh museum, located five miles east of Glenora ferry, houses a collection of historical artifacts in "The Rose House", a pioneer farm residence. The displays tell the story of the settlement and development of Marysburgh.

In South Marysburgh township the Mariners' Park Lighthouse Museum attracts hundreds of visitors annually. This outdoor museum features the top from False Duck Lighthouse (originally the oldest in Prince Edward) which was reconstructed as a memorial project.

The Prince Edward County museum opened in July, 1975, stands in Picton. The former Old Church of St. Mary Magdalene it features a wide collection of displays depicting the town and county's early days.

Prince Edward County council also has purchased the adjacent church rectory for development in conjunction with the museums.

Volunteer-official Co-operation United Community Services Aim

Attainment of increased co-operation between volunteers and various levels of government is the biggest challenge voluntary social agencies face in the coming years, says Virginia O'Rourke, United Community Services (UCS) president.

"There is a need for the voluntary sector to be more involved, as that local input is there," Mrs. O'Rourke said.

Head an agency composed entirely of volunteers on its board of directors, the UCS acts as co-ordinator for 12 social welfare agencies under its United Way fund-raising umbrella.

Formed in the mid 1950s, it was charged with studying and acting upon needs discovered in the Quinte area in the fields of education, recreation and community health and welfare.

Co-ordinator of the annual October United Way campaign, the agency raises money to cover operating costs of participating agencies as diverged as the Belleville Minor Sports Association and the Victorian Order of Nurses.

To date, it has places several Belleville groups on their feet, sponsored public educational seminars, and remains an active dispenser of information.

At present, several new projects are in the fire.

Since late last year, a steering committee has been working, charged with investigating the need for a separate family and marital counselling agency in Belleville.

Within weeks a brief outlining the committee's findings will be in the hands of the provincial ministry of health, where it is hoped funding will be found.

The committee agrees that UCS concern that family counselling services were inadequate in Hastings County. The service, it was felt, was spread too thin over too many separate agencies.

The Central Volunteer Bureau, now funded in part through United Way campaign dollars, was one agency the UCS created from the ground up to its present independence. Originated in the 1960s, the service provided a means to outgrow the capabilities of UCS staff.

A decision was made to send it on its way as a separate agency. At present, the bureau operates the annual Christmas Sharing project, Meals on Wheels, and the Furniture Exchange Program.

Now in the works, is the resettlement of the Canadian Mental Health (CMHA) Association Belleville chapter. Some four years ago, the group was active in forging a public push for the establishment of a mental health clinic here.

However, success was followed by the CMHA's demise. Plans are in the works for its resettlement as a public educator.

Thurlow Recreation Activities Expanding

Since its formation in 1972, the Thurlow township recreation committee has expanded its activities to encompass a larger part of the township's populace. From all indications, it plans to continue to do so in future.

The committee is an active growth of the township's minor sports organization. After operating for some 8-10 years, minor sports organizers felt the need to expand their programs and include activities other than sports.

Funds to support committee activities come from registration fees, and fund-raising drives, some in the form of dances. Team sponsorships, as in the case of minor sports, add more dollars.

(As now set up, minor sports conducts leagues "for baseball, soccer and boys' and girls' softball.)

The recreation people receive some funding through a municipal grant. For 1974, council has granted $2,400 up by $600 from last year.

Over the three years the committee has acted, it has expanded its programs substantially.

In 1972, only five township playgrounds were staffed by volunteer workers in the summer.

In 1973, in part through an Opportunities for Youth grant, 11 playground leaders watched toddlers in various parks in the township.

This year, 14 playgrounds will be supervised. Part of that supervision will be made available through a $2600 Ontario Youth in Action (OYIA) grant. The provincially-funded program, Fun and Fitness, will see two councillors in each of 11 township playgrounds for two mornings a week — Tuesdays and Thursdays. It begins July 2 and concludes August 22.

Another 1800 OYIA grant from the Ministry of Community and Social Services provides for the construction of playground equipment from natural objects — such things as logs and tree stumps.

Kay Summers, a committee member, says this year as with last, the committee is hoping to organize a swimming program at the Quinte Kiwanis pool in Belleville. Children from all parts of the township will be taken to the pool by bus. For both the past two winters, an outdoor ice surface has been provided area youngsters at Harmony Public School on Thurlow's concession road five. However, no organized hockey program exists.

Township boys have been registering in hockey programs in Stirling and Belleville. However, both municipalities are running into problems with their ice surfaces.

The village is now in the initial stages of replacing their old arena. Belleville's Memorial Arena and Dick Ellis Rink are nearly oversubscribed according to city officials.

However, there may soon be an answer to Belleville's lack of ice time. Plans are in the offing for another city ice surface — either through a municipality built facility or a double rink as proposed by the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund for their Canniton Rd. property.

Both Thurlow and Sidney councils and area recreation committees are also talking of possible construction of a regionally-based ice surface.

Adult education programs are also expanding in Thurlow township.

In fall, 1974, the committee hopes to provide a wider range of adult programs through the Loyalist College extension department. Last year an Aikman Interest Program was organized, while in 1973, an adult craft program was held at Harmony Public School for two months.

New programs? Kay Summers says the 12-member committee (a maximum of 13 is allowed — all appointed by Thurlow council) is receptive,

Soccer Play At New High

The soccer boom has not passed over the Quinte area.

Interest in the sport is at a high level with the city represented in the new Premier Soccer League, and a 10-team Bay of Quinte Soccer Association (BQSA) enjoying another successful season.

Formed to give senior players in Eastern Ontario a chance to play at a higher level than had been the case in the past, the Premier League embraces teams from Oshawa, Kingston, Ottawa, Peterborough and Belleville.

Named the Olympics, the Belleville entry has proved it belongs in this select company in the season's early going.

The BQSA has been around for many years.

With former Belleville Northern Electric star, Peter Crowe heading up an energetic executive as president, the group has grown to 10 teams this season. And many of the players on its club rosters are products of minor soccer and a healthy high school program.

Belleville has three teams in the league, Gordon Mills Olympics, a feeder team for the Premier League entry; United and Parsons Cleaners represent the city.

Other teams in the league are Wadsworth Institution, Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, Brighton, Cobourg, Cooney's Haulage of Bayside and two Oshawa town teams, Whitby Insurance, and Pandas.

Why are so many Quinte area families choosing DEMARK to build their homes?

Century-plus Castle Overlooks Harbor

PICTON — Inn On The Bay, Prince Edward's newest dining lounge, conjures up images of moats, drawbridges and knights on white horses.

Villeneuve House or Castle Villeneuve, as the inn once was called has stood for more than a century and has been called one of the six best houses in Ontario. It was created in the French Gothic style by the addition of four towers to an ordinary farm house. The house was built between 1805 and 1811, but it was not until 1890 that it became a "castle".

In 1842 Philip Low, QC, a native of the Jersey Islands who emigrated to Canada as a youth, purchased the property. A highly respected lawyer and businessman, Low was Picton's first appointed mayor in 1837.

When he built his castle he chose the name Villeneuve because it had been the name of his wife's mother, a cousin of Admiral Villeneuve who was defeated by Nelson at the Battle of Trafalgar.

One of Prince Edward's most impressive homes, Castle Villeneuve reportedly claimed a ballroom ceiling entirely covered with a fresco in pale pink and blue the creation of a French artist living in exile.

Inn On The Bay overlooks where Picton's most fashionable couples danced a century ago, now is a banquet hall decorated in royal blue, white and gold. One of its focal points is a grey marble fireplace.

The magnificent ballroom, Picton Harbor and visitors can dine with a view of the water. The owners of the castle plan to build dock facilities at the property's edge to accommodate boaters.

Philip Low's castle echoes the history of a town and a time long past to vacationers stopping in Prince Edward to dine in a mansion.

NOW . . . a Complete One-stop Building and Hardware Supply Headquarters

Another PROGRESSIVE EDITION by the Intelligencer covering PROGRESS IN BELLEVILLE finds BELLEWOOD LUMBER expanding and growing.

BELLEWOOD within the last year has made many changes including what we trust will be additional service to our many and varied customers. We still carry the largest inventory of builder's supplies in Belleville such as lumber, nails, roofing, hardware, paints, plywoods of many kinds, panelling, floor tile and linoleums, rugs, kitchens, plumbing and electrical supplies, cement, gypsum products and many other items that are classified as "building supplies".

During this past year BELLEWOOD has incorporated a PRO HARDWARE franchise right in the middle of all the other products. This vastly expands the Householder items such as glassware, small appliances, vacuum cleaners, lawnmowers, bicycles and many other items too numerous to mention, yes - right down to the mousetrap.

Also during this past year, we have expanded our merchandising policy to include the CASH & CARRY aspect which has worked out very well for many of our customers with the savings that we are able to pass on.

We would like to thank our many customers for bearing with us while our sales floors were being remerchandised and express our appreciation to our old and regular customers for their continued business. Also we extend a warm invitation to our new customers that will be attracted to our many new lines under our PRO HARDWARE franchise.

Windows Opportunity for Personal Flair

LONDON (CP) — The choice of window accessories in decorating provides the homeowner with the opportunity to add an individual flair to her rooms, says Ann Brewer, merchandise editor of the publication Carpets and Textiles.

With the proper selection of color, pattern and texture in curtains, a dull room can be made to look bright and lively, or a bright room can be subdued. Careful selection can complement the furniture, carpets, paintings or whatever else is considered the room's most important feature.

Miss Brewer said a low budget need not be a deterrent to attractive window treatment. Denim is a fashionable furnishing fabric and inexpensive prints can add special life and appeal to a room. Plain fabrics can be made to look expensive with trimmings.

Trimmings have returned to fashion for furnishings, she said. Different colors are brought together by the selection of a trim which incorporates most or all of the shades and its use on dominant furnishings—curtains and upholstery, bedspreads or dressing table drapes.

This new interest in trims has stimulated demand for a return to old-fashioned window treatments which show the accessories to full advantage, such as swags and tails and elaborate drapes and pelmets.

Miss Brewer said style of curtain can be used to emphasize the good points of a window or disguise its bad points. Short, squat windows, for example, can be made to look more attractive by the use of vertical stripes, vertical trim on the inside edge of the curtain or a tiered treatment.

Wide windows can be made to look narrow with a horizontal pattern or trim.

Individuality is important in bringing character to a room, especially in the case of a housing development, where every window is the same shape and size. Miss Brewer suggested unusual curtain treatment, such as tiered or draped curtains with tie-backs or unusual edge finishes.

An important factor in the popularity of fashionable window treatments has been the introduction by manufacturers of styling tapes and curtain fittings. The tapes, which can add pencil or pinch pleats to the curtains, show that curtain styling is as important as the fabric itself, Miss Brewer said.

Proper selection of the curtain track is vital. Decorated pole styles, available in painted or carved wood finishes, and brass curtain rails are back in fashion and Miss Brewer said a curtain tape which can be undersung must be chosen so the pole or rail is not obscured.

The decorative finials, in such shapes as pineapples, fleur-de-lis and balls, add an individual touch and are available for all price ranges of tracks.

Miss Brewer said it is possible to buy a curtain track which can be bent in any way desired, for example, along a wall, around a bay window, out along the opposite wall and even around the room, to create walls of fabric.

When choosing the track the weight of the curtains must be considered. Heavy, lined velvet curtains will not pull satisfactorily on a flimsy plastic track and it is worth the extra expense to have a track fitted that will support the curtains and allow drawcord operation to prevent finger and wear marks.

Sentence 3 In Cottage Break-ins

MADO — Three Oshawa youths who pleaded guilty to breaking into eight cottages Tuesday were given two-year suspended sentences in provincial court here.

David Alexander Bovay, 17 and David William Bacon, 18, were ordered to spend their sentences at the Salvation Army's Home of Concord, Toronto. Terry Allan Aylward, 18, was placed on curfew while serving his sentence at home.

The three were charged with breaking May 22 at cottages on Stoco Lake, five miles east of Tweed. Police said goods taken, including alcoholic drinks, were valued at about $350.

Gas and Water Mixed To Make Truck Fuel

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Some Norman postmen are delivering the mail with water in their trucks' gasoline.

"We haven't had any trouble at all," said Blair L. Wildermuth, director of the postal services maintenance technical support centre at the University of Oklahoma. "We've been operating some of our vehicles since last November on regular mail routes, using the gas and water mixture. There have been no mechanical problems."

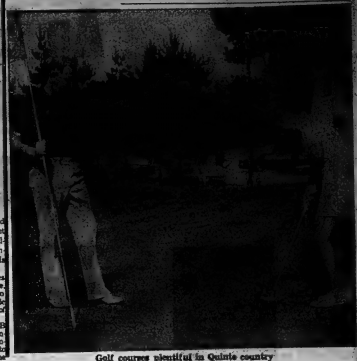
But the average motorist is not advised to dump a pitcher of water in his gas tank to beat the high price of gasoline. It takes some sophisticated equipment to make the mixture.

The water-gasoline mixture is an emulsion, produced by a special machine. It is something like distributing the cream all through the milk in homogenized milk.

If the water and gasoline are just mixed together, the lighter gasoline separates and rises to the top. Properly emulsified, the result is a cleaner-burning product and one which provides better mileage per gallon, proponents say.

"We're going to try to write up a final report by the end of July," Wildermuth said. "We've been running tests daily to see how the mixture works.

"We have tried some experiments up to 50 per cent water, but we concentrated our testing to 12 and 25 per cent. The 25 per cent water mixture seems to be the optimum."



The emulsified fuel was developed by Walter J. Ewbank, Oklahoma University professor of aerospace, mechanical and nuclear engineering.

Although the current fuel crisis has heightened interest in his work, increased gasoline mileage wasn't his only goal when he started the experiments in 1965. He also was looking for a way to reduce the amount of pollutants automobiles emit in urban areas.

Ewbank estimated that a 12 per cent water mixture would produce nearly a 12 per cent saving in fuel cost. The emulsifying machinery is inexpensive and "water is cheap."

Mainly, the mixture produces improved octane performance, substantial reductions in carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxide emissions and elimination of lead emissions, he said.

Ewbank has formed YAREB Associates Inc. with Frank Andrews, a Fullerton, Calif., consulting engineer, and others to license oil companies to use the process.

Plan New Hatchery Near Bath

GLENORA — Tenders will be called this fall for a fish hatchery at Bath near the Lennox Ontario Hydro generating station says James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Taylor said construction should begin early next year. Fish production, hopefully, will start in the fall of 1976.

In its initial phase, splake breed from brook trout and lake trout will be produced, says Jack Christie, chief biologist, Glenora Fisheries Research Station.

Splake have been selectively bred by the natural resources ministry at Maple and, says Mr. Christie, the future for the species appears good.

A six generation program has been utilized to mate the early sexual maturity characteristics of the brook trout with the deep water capabilities of the lake trout.

"I recognize it take a couple of wild generations further before we can be sure, but I do not think nature is going to reject this fish," he commented.

Mr. Christie adds that experimental white fish hatchings also will be initiated and attempts will be made to bring the white fish up to a reasonable size economically.

Ore talk: Jack Ellis, Edward Willis, Stanley Randall

At Marmoraton:

Possible Ore Source Discussed

MARMORA — An ore supply prospect that could extend another operations at Marmoraton Mining Company here is under preliminary exploration.

If the project was realized it could lengthen operations into the next decade at Marmoraton — now facing completion shutdown by 1978.

Under study is the possibility that iron ore deposits could be available to the Marmora mine's smelter from a site nearly 60 miles northwest in Anstruther township Anstruther is on Highway 28 in Peterborough County.

A Toronto mining company believes its ore holdings in Anstruther may prove a viable supply source for Marmoraton, employing 300 and largest single industry in rural Hastings County.

Brion Bay Gold Mines holds extensive mineral acreage in Anstruther which company officials believe may have extensive development potential.

But predictions for any future working agreement between both companies are guarded at present.

Both Marmoraton and Biron Bay representatives met here Tuesday but emphasized discussions were merely preliminary and exploratory.

Precise value of Biron Bay's findings have also to be formally confirmed by detailed, no-the-spot exploration.

But engineering studies, including preliminary drilling and a magnetometer survey, give reason for optimism, said a Biron Bay spokesman.

"We're not shooting pie in the sky. We know we have something solid here," said company president Edward Wilis after Tuesday's sounding-out discussions here.

With him at the meeting with Marmoraton representatives was Stanley Randall, Biron Bay director and former Ontario trade and development minister.

Discussion of a feasible supply tie-in with Marmoraton was facilitated by personal friendship between Mr. Randall and Jack Ellis, now seeking re-election as Conservative MP for Hastings. The mines is in his riding and since Marmoraton announced it was nearing the end of operations, he has been seeking solutions for the local community's economy, said Mr. Ellis.

He arranged Tuesday's talks here between both companies.

Possibility of the Biron Bay supply source has already been discussed in Toronto with representatives of Beth Can Company, the Canadian exploration offspring of Bethlehem Steel, the big United States parent of Marmoraton. The talk was also arranged by Mr. Ellis.

A Beth-Can geologist is expected to inspect the Anstruther holdings next week, said Mr. Willis.

The deposit is basically of similar grade "to what Marmoraton has been working with," he said.

The site was first explored in 1914, but development was not then economically feasible, he said.

In recent times, however, it has become more attractive. An all-weather road runs through the holdings, linking it to Highway 28, less than four miles away. A high-power hydro line crosses the property. There is a rail connection 18 miles away.

What form ore shipments would take is among major future details that would have to be resolved. Marmoraton mines its own ore, concentrates it, before shipping the resource to Bethlehem furnaces as pellets.

Should the Brion Bay prospect develop, deposits could be shipped as raw ore or liquid concentrate. This last would pose cold-weather problems and one possible solution touched on was a pipeline to Marmora.

Epidemic Strikes

JAKARTA (AFP) — A cholera epidemic in the South Celebes has killed 55 persons in seven weeks, the official Antara news agency reported. Local health authorities are conducting an extensive inoculation campaign and are sanitizing wells to prevent spread of the disease.

Quinte Men Sworn In

Five Quinte area policemen were sworn in as members of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police during the opening session of association's annual conference here Tuesday.

Superintendent Gordon Marshall Keast, of the Belleville detachment, of the Ontario Provincial Police, Chief Robert Joseph Gagne, of the Tweed Police Force, Chief Francis Reid, of the Gananoque Police Force, Chief Richard Smith, of Kingston, and Donald H. Thompson, of Tweed, were all sworn in as active members of the association.

During the opening ceremonies, 32 new active members were sworn in, and six associate members were admitted to the association.

Your peace of mind is important to us.

DONALD S. ARMITAGE
President
F. LaPALM LTD.
northAmerican Agent

When you're faced with re-locating your family, you'll find it comforting to know your possessions will be in the hands of professionals who care about them.

59 Years of Experience Has Taught Us A Lot About People

During that period of time it has been our privilege to have successfully relocated literally thousands of Canadian Families. We are well aware of what a trying time this can be for a person. Often a whole new life style is about to unfold. It is an important time for you and we don't think that you should have to spend a single moment of it worrying about transporting your worldly possessions.

That's why we say "Your peace of mind is important to us". We are happy to say that a great deal of our business comes to us through referrals, and that means SATISFIED CUSTOMERS.

In the moving business, as in your own industry, competition is keen. To stay on top, you have to excel. Everything we do then, from the estimate, to unpacking the last carton is geared to a single objective, seeing you and your family settled, comfortable and happy in your new home.

As Professionals, We Do The Work And Eliminate The Worry.

All it takes on your part, is a simple phone call to set the wheels in motion. Usually within twenty-four hours a courteous moving consultant will call at your convenience. You can rely on him. He'll tell it like it is, while he will provide you with an Experienced Estimate. Actual costs cannot be determined before the van is loaded and weighed.

Our representative is concerned with more than estimating the weight of your shipment, he will help you determine the services you need to make your move a happy one.

Because he is experienced, you'll find him a wealth of tips and useful information. Because we're part of the North American Family, you decide where our vans go. We have no fixed routes, like a railroad or airline, in fact we probably serve as many places as the Post Office. Without exception, our pickup dates are firm.

Again, due to our northAmerican World Wide Affiliation, we are able to meet most delivery schedules on the nose. From packing, in transit to delivery and unpacking, rest assured, your shipment is in the hands of trained professionals.

You'll Find Our Service Unexcelled

While you may regard our estimators and drivers as strangers in your home, they are bonded employees and will extend to you and your family every courtesy.

They like their work and enjoy people. No job is too big or too small. Small apartment or fourteen room estate home, it's all the same.

And don't worry about storage. Today, storage is required in 30% of moves. There are two kinds, permanent and storage in transit. We offer both services at reasonable costs.

Bulky articles such as boats, snowmobiles, trailers and tool sheds present special moving problems. We're equipped to handle them and we're proud of our track record, in the care, protection and handling of such articles.

We're Proud of our northAmerican Affiliation.

While we at F. LaPalm are an Independent Firm, pleased to be a citizen of the Belleville Business Community, we're proud as well to have represented northAmerican Van Lines throughout the district for over twenty years.

northAmerican is the fastest growing of the major Van Lines on this continent, and through community oriented independent agents, such as ourselves, has as many vans and as much experience as any other Van Line in the business.

You benefit two ways. You have the many advantages than an international organization can provide, yet you deal with a local firm who must live where it does business. This spells customer satisfaction.

20,000 Square Feet of Storage and Growing

Our Belleville warehouse provides 20,000 square feet of clean, heated storage, catering to private home owners and commercial contracts.

Plans are already afoot to considerably expand this central facility. While operating at near capacity we welcome your inquiries now and in the future.

A Simple Phone Call Starts You On Your Way

If you're planning a move now or in the future, a simple phone call will start you on your way. We suggest that you retain this advertisement.

Dial our numbers listed below, ask for either J. A. (Art) Cavers or R. H. (Ron) Godden. They can offer you the finest in moving services. Operations Manager Eugene (Gene) Frederick, will set the wheels in motion to guarantee you peace of mind.

Full-time Executive For Health

The Hastings — Prince Edward health board, has appointed its first full-time administrator.

He is Clifford Cotton, 43, of Tweed, who is currently business administrator and treasurer for the Lennox and Addington County board of education at Napanee.

He will take over his position as administrator-secretary-treasurer with the new health authority in Belleville July 15. He succeeds Carl Bateman, Hastings County administrator to the post. Presence of county duties resulted in Mr. Bateman's resignation earlier this year.

Mr. Cotton is a Tweed-area native. Before the centralized county school system was introduced in 1962 he was administrator for Hastings school area No. 2 which supervised education facilities in the Tweed-Marmora-Madoc district.

The health board is formed of municipal representatives and appointees from Belleville, Trenton, Hastings and Prince Edward.

It is the governing unit for Hastings-Prince Edward Health Unit which was organized seven years ago from an amalgamation of local health authorities in both counties. Mr. Bateman has been administrator for the board since its inception.

Community activities are well supported

County Official Plan Passed

After nearly three years in preparation and an expenditure of $160,000, the official plan for Hastings county has seen final approval at county level.

The plan still requires approval from the provincial minister and from the Ontario Municipal Board.

Third reading for the official plan bylaw was approved at Tuesday's meeting of the county body but not before objections were voiced and requests for delay until the next council session.

The recommendation adopting the planning committee report and giving approval in principle to the bylaw was carried by a 31-14 margin with two absentees.

The bylaw was given two readings at an earlier session with third reading being delayed to allow possible amendments.

Since that time 134 changes have been approved by the planning board and even with final passing still more amendments are expected.

Rawdon Reeve Ray Shortt led off the discussion stating he would not approve third reading because amendments had not been discussed at the local council level.

Elzivir Reeve Kenneth Smith who wanted third reading deferred until a later meeting declaring that by the end of the year there would be three times as many changes.

By giving third reading now council would be "tying a knot with our tongue that we cannot untie with our fingers," he said.

But Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen, urging third reading, declared there must be a starting point somewhere.

NNothing that the official plan had been under preparation for nearly three years, Reeve Allen said "we have got to have some place to stand, we have vacillated long enough."

Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey also urged third reading.

He said he Quinte Planning Area, of which his township was a member, like the county still didn't have an official plan and because of this all commercial development in Thurlow had been frozen.

Developers and property owners seeking eased restrictions and regulations were the people insisting on changes to the plan, he said.

Bancroft Reeve Jack Heslin also urged final bylaw approval. He said there must be a starting point somewhere. But as conditions change there would be further amendments and a complete review should be made every five years.

This requirement raised objections from Limerick Reeve Frank Robbins and Wollaston Deputy-reeve Buddy French.

Deputy-reeve French felt the regulations was unnecessary there were no buffer strips were not called for by campers.

As a camping ground operator he said areas where there were no bffer strips were always first filled.

County planner Nail Carney said the regulation calling for strip of a natural vegetation was an attempt on the part of the planning board to give a degree of privacy for campers.

The ruling, he said, would be effective only on new sites.

Rotary Gets New Officers

PICTON — A Cherry Valley merchant, Milton Fennell, Tuesday was inducted as president of Picton Rotary Club.

Mr. Fennell succeeds outgoing president Howard Mallett of Picton.

First vice - president is William Duggan and second vice-president, William West. Secretary for the new term is Clifford (Gippy) McCalpin and assistant secretary, Carman Slack. New treasurers is Arthur Lloyd and assistant treasurer is Gordon Oden.

Advance Polls This Weekend

Advance voting in the July 8 election will be registered at three polling stations in Belleville this coming weekend.

The polls will be held Saturday and Monday at both city fire halls and Queen Victoria public school on Pine St. Times of voting on both days will be 9 a.m. - 9 p.m.

Because of summer vacations, advance polls in this campaign have an added significance, say electoral officials.

Eligibility requirements are flexible. Anyone having any reason to believe they will be unable to vote election day may cast their ballots during the two-day advance poll.

Distillery One of Earliest Industries

Possibly the oldest continuously operated business in the Quinte Bay of Quinte district, Corby Distilleries Limited has come a long way in the past century.

Popularly known as the "home of good spirits" what is now Corby's was in the beginning as a combination gristmill and distillery eight years before Confederation — back in 1858.

Today the Corby name is known throughout America and the world, with the distillery at Corbyville having a peak employment of about 400 persons.

While many of the buildings in Corbyville date back 40 years or more, the plant production facilities are continuously being modernized in keeping with current technology.

Five years ago, for instance, a complete treatment plant for liquid wastes was installed at a cost of half a million dollars. This plant — a North American first — not only removes 99 per cent of the water pollutants generated in the company's processes, but also cools the water leaving the plant and enriches it with life-giving oxygen. As a result, the Moira River downstream from Corbyville is clean and suitable for fish life. This plant has generated considerable interest in the distilling industry in North America, and experts from many companies in Canada and the United States have visited Corbyville to acquaint themselves with the techniques employed.

Actually Corby's multi-million dollar distillery grew out of a small grist mill operation established on the banks of the Moira back in 1813 at what was then known as Hayden's Corners.

Originally owned by Samuel Reed, the grist mill was purchased in 1857 by Henry Corby, Sr., a Belleville baker and importer who two years later was to add the distillery operation.

From that small beginning grew the sprawling distillery complex which today is one of the largest industrial operations in the district.

A grist mill and distillery apparently was a popular combination back in the days prior to Confederation.

The distillery operation was to provide an outlet for surplus grain. Mr. Corby succeeded in producing quality whisky from it and the popular acceptance of his products soon saw many area farmers bringing all their grain for sale at the distillery.

As early as 1858, Mr. Corby was advertising choice brands of flour in bags or barrels and "celebrated" whisky in 30 or 50 gallon casks to suit the customer.

One of the byproducts of the distillery operation was the "stillage" which was sold back to farmers as livestock feed. To provide an additional outlet for the stillage or "wet grain" Mr. Corby soon had a large herd of cattle and hogs for feeding. Sale of wet grain to farmers continued into the 1920s.

But in addition to his "celebrated" whisky, Mr. Corby was to be popular as well in community and political circles. He served as reeve of Thurlow township and both as reeve and mayor of Belleville and later was to be elected as MLA for East Hastings.

Mr. Corby died in 1881 and the business was carried on by his son, Henry Corby, Jr., who was later to become a member of parliament and finally a senator.

As an adjunct to the distillery operation, hogs were once grown on a large scale on the Corby farms with hops picking alone employing up to 400 persons in season.

Soon after the turn of the century the distillery was sold to Mortimer Davis, a member of the Davis Tobacco family of Montreal. Mr. Davis introduced tobacco growing but the distillery operation continued to flourish.

Possibly the biggest construction boom at Corby's was about 46 years ago with the erection of the numerous multi-storey rack houses for use in aging whisky.

In recent years this construction boom has been continued to innovations such as a 30 per cent expansion of the distilling and byproduct facilities, erection of a large new cask warehouse, as well as continuous modernization of bottling equipment.

But regardless of possible future developments in distillery operations it is a safe bet that Corby's name will remain.

Belleville Team Was World Champs

Known around the world as the Home of the McFarlands, Belleville has always been well represented in Ontario Hockey Association leagues.

City senior team, sponsored by the late Harvey McFarland of Picton, skated off with World and Canadian titles in the late '30s.

The McFarlands of 1958 captured the Allan Cup and one year later, the team won the International Ice Hockey Federation's world championship at Czechoslovakia.

Many of the players who came to Belleville to play for those teams remained in the city and are still making contributions to the sporting life of the community. Most are involved coaching teams at the minor level.

Senior hockey disappeared from the local scene last season when rising costs and lack of support at the games forced Belleville Eagles' officials to withdraw from competition. This situation is one that is becoming commonplace in Senior A circles.

There is no problem at the Junior level. Belleville Bobcats have completed their second season as a member club of the OHA's Metro Junior B League. And both seasons have been successful for general manager Jim (Dodge) Matthews' team.

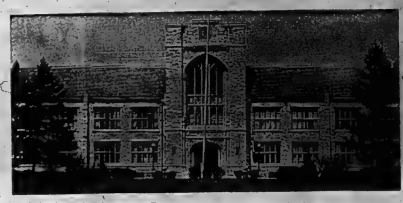
Relying heavily on player talent from the city and the Quinte area, Bobcats have had no trouble making the playoffs and both seasons advanced to the group final before losing out in seven games.

Attendance at the junior games has been very encouraging for team officials.

Hockey Booming In City

All across Canada the favorite pastime of children in sports is hockey and the children of Belleville are no different from those across the rest of the nation.

During the 1973-74 season, 1,586 children between the ages of six and 17 were registered in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.



There was a total of 88 fully sponsored house league teams in five divisions — novice, atom, peewee, bantam, and juvenile. Each of the latter four were divided into two groupings — major and minor — according to the skills of those registered in the age divisions. Children were then placed in one of the two groupings according to their individual ability.

The city was represented by nine all-star teams — none of the age divisions having a major and a minor representative team — which participated in the Lakeshore League of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Last year the registration fee for each player was $8 per individual, but this season, because of a cutback in money received from the city and an increase in ice rental fees by the arena, the fee will probably be doubled. It is still much cheaper than Toronto where registration fees climb as high as $50 per child.

This year's executive, headed by Austin Watkins, has a big job ahead of them. Other members of the immediate executive are Ed Whyte, vice president and Terry Housanlow, secretary.

Tyendinega Mohawk Reserve Swinging into Business World

TYENDINAGA — Administering this Mohawk Indian reserve should be done with as little fuss and feathers as possible.

It's a modern community with potential for economic development, and its management by its own self-government must be on as business-like basis as possible, says Chief William Brant.

"We have to operate the same as they have to do in other municipalities," says the chief, head of the reserve's elected five-man council. "We're handling a fair bit of money and you have to know what you're doing."

Current budgets for this reserve of 21,500 now run around 2500,000 — in federal funds and miscellaneous income sources.

The reserve has its own professionally-trained police, welfare department and other local government services.

But that's only the administrative tip.

Tyendinaga, one of Deseronto and fronting the Bay of Quinte, is seen as having big development potential. Its location is strategically placed between Montreal and Toronto markets. The Mohawks see it as a solid base for economic rejuvenation of an historic site that dates from 1784 when the Mohawks became the first Bay of Quinte settlers.

The Mohawks realize it and are preparing to capitalize where possible on their situation.

They have one asset that would make them the envy of most municipalities far larger in size.

It's a complete airport, a World War I Installation still intact with hangars and runways. Only this spring — after years lying inactive — they had it licensed as a private flying field. It's proven a boon to local industry, whose executives can now fly in for conferences.

The buildings are obvious facilities for industrial operations. Already the council has been negotiating with Bata Shoe for a satellite plant.

Still in the works is incorporation of a development company which would correlate all commercial and industrial ventures on the reserve.

There's an ambitious intent behind council's new approach to organizing availab'e resources for expansion, says the chief. It may be a check on population loss.

"We have a large number of people graduating from high school and university each year," says Chief Brant. "I hope that industry will bring them back.

"This has to be the future of our reserve — to retain our younger and more educated people to look after our own government."

The Chief typifies the new business-like approach to reserve administration — an area he says that considerably is growing "more complicated."

Elected chief at 31 only last November, he placed his availability as chief government spokesman and contact with the council — on a organized basis.

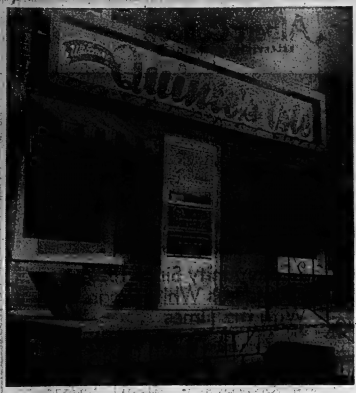
A dairy farm "operator he dismissed with the traditional contact technique of phoning the chief at home whenever a resident had a problem.

He's still available round-the-clock. But he now has set aside one day a week, when clad in crisp business suit he sits behind a desk in the reserve's administration office handling all problems on the spot, with staff within immediate reach.

"I realized I couldn't handle it all from home all the time," he said. "What I'm trying to do is to keep my business and reserve business separate as much as possible. By doing that I hope I can be more effective."

However, he phone also rings at home and much reserve work goes back to the farm with him.

Reserve residents also are involved in the business of keeping their home area space with the time.



There's a recreation committee and a school committee for Tyendinaga, now awaiting completion of a sparkling new school to house all students up to grade 8.

But the need to do business in a commercial world has not obscured the feeling of a deeply-imbedded tradition of a culture still proudly observed by its people.

Allies of the British in the American War of Independence, at its end they came north with their allies.

The British connection was a long one, acknowledged by monarchy. In the early 19th century Queen Anne presented her Mohawk subjects with a silver communion service. The treasure was buried during the migration from the U.S. After the Mohawks landed a party ventured across the hostile frontier to retrieve it. Once a year the general public can view the service, although half the silver is now with the Mohawks at Brantford.

It forms an important part of the ritual each May when the Mohawks clad in buckskins and headdresses ceremoniously restage the landing of their ancestors in an area that now appears heading into the future with the school's audiological equipment and children's hearing aids in good repair.

Y Has Day Camp

For those who are not quite old enough to camp out through the evening, the city, in conjunction with YMCA, has a day camp for children 6-12 years of age.

Each morning, Monday to Friday, 50 children are bused to and from Vandervaier Park, in conjunction with the Moira River Conservation Authority.

For $15 per person the children are placed in a mature playground setting and supervised by six members of the summer staff. In addition to the program at the park the children are returned to the YMCA and for an hour are provided with access to the Y's pool.

Youngsters Have Pools

Belleville has two supervised wading pools for the kids located at Parkdale Park and Zwick's Island. Both of these will be open to the youngsters from June 29 to September 2, seven days a week.

There are also two guarded beach areas in the city. Both will be open seven days a week from June 29 to September 2. The beaches are located at Zwick's Island and Riverside Park.

AOCO's Market World For Belleville Lenses

By JIM SHELLE
Staff Reporter

Next time you're in Hong Kong, or British Honduras or France and you find those sunglasses you brought with you need replacing, take a close look at the tag that comes with the pair you buy.

Written somewhere on it, you may find a familiar name, Belleville, or to be more exact, Made In Belleville.

But sunglasses account for only a part of the total manufacturing output by the company's approximately 270 employees.

There are also safety glasses of which AOCO produces the largest volume in Canada, says vice-president in charge of manufacturing, J. N. McKibbon.

"And we are the only company putting out a particular type of bifocals called the Executive," said Mr. McKibbon.

The lenses come to AOCO in the form of moulded glass pressings, already shaped like lenses. They come from such places as England or the United States.

From the moulded glasses, are manufactured a variety of lenses which the company turns out in excess of a million each year.

Most are opthalmic lenses which in turn are divided into single vision and bifocals. Single vision lenses in turn are divided into spheres and sphero cylindrical lenses while bifocals are divided into fused bifocals and one-piece bifocals.

And of course there are the sunglasses and safety glasses. At AOCO only the lenses are manufactured. Frames are made in the company's plant in Nicolet, Quebec.

The actual process in making the various lenses gets a bit involved and confusing to explain.

A simplification would be to say that the moulded glass pressing goes through a series of stages during which it is ground or generated using a diamond, lap, and then polished and may be edged, fused or heat treated.

Mr. McKibbon said that inspection of lenses takes up about 25 to 30 per cent of the labor at AOCO.

The actual process of making lenses from the time the moulded glass comes into the plant to the time it's ready to be shipped out may tak anywhere from a week to several weeks said Mr. McKibbon.

One particular type of bifocals is one that involves two lenses, a round segment or a shield shaped segment, fused into one.

And a complex type of sunglass uses a photochromic glass which darkens when exposed to sunlight. The principle takes into account the ultraviolet light rays in the atmosphere.

So that's what we hope is a clear view of what is done at AOCO.

"Our market?" says Mr. McKibbon. "Our market is the world," he says, looking down the names of foreign countries posted on their shipping boxes in the company's warehouse.

Worker at AOCO prepares lenses by dipping them in bath solution.

During the lens making process, ground glass is mounted on block.

School's Out!

Tuesday was the last day of School for city elementary pupils. Now comes the time for swimming, camping and just plain enjoying the summer. At Sir Winston Churchill Public School on Macdonald Avenue, pupils bid farewell to principal Donald Morton. The wet weather didn't succeed in dampening the spirits of the pupils one bit.

West Lake Petition

Ban Sought on Commercial Fishing

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

WEST LAKE — The West Lake and District Environmental Association, a newly organized group, has circulated a petition seeking a ban on commercial fishing in West Lake.

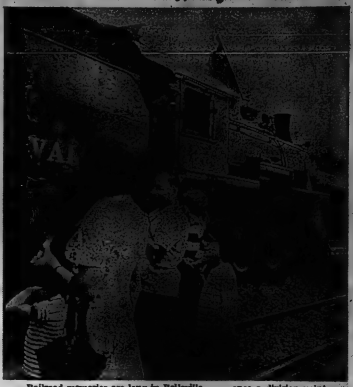
The petition says that since the tourist industry adjacent to West Lake and Lake Ontario depends on a sufficient stock of game fish, "it claims that commercial fishing jeopardizes tourism through depletion of fish."

The petition asks legislation against commercial fishing in West Lake "at any time of year."

Everett Stuart, association vice-president and operator of a Wellington sports shop and resort, says that hundreds of names have been signed already.

The group also has started a second petition to eliminate a winter dam across the channel between West Lake and Lake Ontario. Fishermen build the dam to raise the lake level. When the dam is opened the waterflow clears the channel for the coming season. This affects access to fishing boats and pleasure craft.

Resort operators say the dam raises the winter lake level to a point where ice damages lakefront property.



Mr. Stuart has discussed the conflict of tourism and commercial fishing with James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox and has suggested the provincial government buy out at least one fisherman who is offering his equipment for sale.

Mr. Taylor has said West Lake fishing industry must be reorganized to assist both tourism and commercial fishing.

The MPP has been quoted as saying the government might consider buying out some fishermen who feel they are in a losing job and glad to sell.

"But there is no question of putting them out of business," he says.

Mr. Taylor has suggested that ways must be found to permit the sport fisherman and the commercial fisherman to co-exist.

Ameliasburgh Firemen Tops

More than 60 firefighters from eight volunteer fire departments and one professional department spent their Sunday afternoon running around the Ameliasburgh Fairgrounds at Roblin Lake spraying each other with hoses this weekend.

No, there wasn't a fire at the fairgrounds and even though it looked somewhat like a Mac Sennett movie, the firefighters had a purpose behind their antics.

The wet display was part of the Hastings and Prince Edward Firefighters Mutual Aid Association's field day.

Designed to improve the firefighters skills while at the same time allowing them to indulge in some friendly competition, the field day attracted approximately 250 spectators to the fairgrounds.

The Ameliasburgh volunteers walked away with the majority of the day's prizes as they won five first place trophies for their performances in the 14-foot ladder race, the 28-foot ladder race, the hose coupling race, the hose replacement race and the hose cart race.

The Marmora fire department came in second with a first place finish in the efficiency race. They also won a second and a third place prize.

The Thurlow volunteers won third place with two second and two third place finishes.

Sidney volunteers won the equipment race, while the Frankford volunteers won the seven-man bucket race.

English Classes Valuable Service

One of the most successful services provided by Belleville's Central Volunteer Bureau is the Thursday morning English course at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The free classes are conducted in the sight course provided by the federal government. What makes them special is that they're aimed at young mothers who have little chance to learn English staying at home with their children.

A nursery is run at the same time as the classes, so that the children can come along. A spontaneous learning program takes place here as the little ones play together with the English-speaking children of the volunteers who staff the nursery.

In the five years since the course began, the number of students has risen to 25 women, and men who have not yet found jobs.

"Our turnover is high," says Ina Bellstedt, current coordinator of the project.

"Our students learn English quickly in this pleasant environment, and many women leave because they find work once they can both understand and speak the language."

The classes are small. Each one consists of not more than three students and a teacher who "spends" the morning together in concentrated study.

The teachers for this program are local women who volunteer their time to help, as do the nursery attendants and drivers. (The women and children are picked up and taken home by car, since strollers and the languages could prevent easy travel otherwise.)

The students come from many countries, and speak several languages excluding English. Consequently, they are often able to communicate with each other in mutually-known second and third languages. At the present time, there are women from Argentina, China, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Italy, Portugal, Tibet, Uganda and Yugoslavia learning English together.

Edith Hance, Immigration Officer for the St. Julien's branch of the RCMP, keeps in touch with the courts and schools and churches of the area to find prospective students. Although many are motivated to learn English so that they can become Canadian citizens, some are already Canadian — there are two women from Quebec currently becoming bilingual by taking the class.

Halfway through the morning the students and teachers take a break for refreshments provided by the St. Andrew's Missionary Society. Phyllis Barlow and Irene Brown, the two members in charge of the coffee parties, always decorate the table with flowers "to make it a social occasion."

"Very often this is the only social life a woman will have outside her home," Mrs. Bellstedt explains.

"Unless she belongs to an already - established, ethnic community in Belleville, she'll get to have no friends. Here is a perfect place for meeting other women and getting to feel comfortable making conversation in English."

These classes also give people the opportunity of getting help for personal or economic or social problems other from the volunteers themselves or from appropriate agencies to which they are directed.

The women who take the classes are unanimous in their praise for both the course and teachers who have made their life happier. No longer isolated, no longer strangers in a strange land, these students are becoming part of Belleville's main stream through the efforts of the Central Volunteer Bureau.

BOBBY POPULAR

There are 1,600 rockhound clubs in the U.S., and their membership represents only about seven per cent of all rock collectors.

Classes combine education with making friends

Extension Courses Popular

Whether you want to learn to be a blacksmith or improve your management skills, throw a pot or learn to speak French, Loyalist College of Applied Arts and Technology has something to offer in its extension courses.

More than 5,000 Quinte-area residents took advantage of credit and interest courses last year in 31 locations, including the main campus just outside the city limits. This year, there will be more than 30 locations for adults wishing to attend evening courses.

Of particular interest to businessmen are special management courses offered at the college to encourage a continuing interest in the study of management skills. A management studies certificate is awarded for the completion of one course in each of four categories of special management courses: financial resources, human resources, marketing, material resources. There's no examination but 80 per cent attendance is required.

The college also participates in co-operative courses with professional organizations to offer special courses when public interest warrants.

For example, the Ontario Real Estate Association and Loyalist co-operate to offer upgrading courses for real estate salespersons and courses for newcomers to the profession.

You can become a registered industrial accountant or certified general accountant through Loyalist courses; the Canadian Institute of Management also co-operates with the school to offer courses.

A refrigeration and air-conditioning training program is also offered in conjunction with the refrigeration service-engineers society.

For the less serious-minded, interest courses are offered annually.

Experiments in theatre, cuisine for the short order cook, Consumer Rights and Finances, purebred dogs as a hobby, landscaping, rug hooking, drawing and everyday law for women are just some of the courses offered. Other hobbyists might be interested in blacksmithing, rush weaving or practical home renovations.

Persons wishing to obtain a diploma from Loyalist, can take credit courses during the evening sessions each fall and winter.

For Loyalists' extension calendar, call or write the school after August 15.

Tourism Year-round Now

GILMOUR — Tourism does not end with the summer in Hastings County.

In fact, the countryside bustles with visitors in winter, says Vere McMurray here.

Mr. McMurray is president of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council — a recognition organization of the local tourist industry.

The Hastings council was probably the first to realize the potential of drawing people into the county in winter. Its northern townships are a succession of lakes and wilderness areas, which have attracted vacationers for years.

But, with the advent of the snowmobile, new vacation vistas opened, says Mr. McMurray. The council was quick to seize the opportunity. It formed a special organization to evolve trails specially designed for the new sport. With financial aid from involved townships, the project took five years.

The result: One of the longest, organized networks of snowmobile trails in the province.

It meanders 250 miles through more Hastings townships from Coe Hill to Deseronto. As a result, winter weekending is increasing by leaps and bounds," attracting visitors to an area that once was left to its small resident population until warm weather arrived.

"Now about 90 per cent of the cottages around here are occupied in the winter as people come up as weekend and holidays," says Mr. McMurray.

"Even hunting camps in the wintertime are occupied as much as cottages in the summer. Families and youngsters have a real ball on weekends. Many people don't realize how terrific the area is."

On big Wollenbeck Lake just out here, he's read as "high as 200 machines in on the weekend with the cottages and camps full."

"One reason is the accessibility of Hastings recreation lands. It's within easy driving distance of major urban centres.

The tourist council has been pushing winter recreation for years at outdoors shows.

"For years we were the only ones to promote it in an elaborate way and pioneered the potential of winter pastimes," says Mr. McMurray.

Now other tourist areas are following suit.

People using snowmobiles show much concern for wildlife, he's found.

- Time tested service specifications, which provide adequate results at minimum cost.
- Reliable trained service staff, best equipment and materials.
- Good administration and plant facilities for staffing, training, scheduling, supervision, inspections, customer and staff liaison, materials research and testing, purchasing and common problem solving.

●●● Hunt Bros. management and supervisory staff represent collectively more than 100 years of experience and are a recognized leader in the Contract Cleaning Industry. Hunt Bros. are member in good standing of The Building Services Contractors Association International. Each Service Program is fully supervised. Inspections of the premises, evaluating service performance, followed by liaison with the customer ensures continuing fulfillment of the contract and that our customers receive 100 cents value for their dollar. Selection of a Contractor based on price alone rather than full application of the proper Service Program, results in a cut job and a low maintenance standard. Selection, training and administration of work staff is a major task with todays labor market. Highest pay rates and benefits for the industry and well organized facilities ensure consistent performance on a continuing basis, which is otherwise out of the question. Twenty-nine successful years and over 475 satisfied customers are also factors to be considered in the selection of a Contractor to supply the Janitorial Services requirements for your building.

School for Deaf Has 400 Students

Ontario School for the Deaf opened October 30, 1870 to serve all Ontario. It had four students.

Today, the school serves eastern and northern Ontario and has 370 students. Of these, 240 are residential and 60 are day students. Ages range from five to 20 years old.

Transportation for the day students is provided by the school, a provincial ministry of education institution. Weekend and holiday transportation is provided by the school buses in the child's home area.

The school on its residence area located on a 35-acre property at the west end of Belleville. A new sports centre offers gym and a pool and the school has a track and soccer field. A full range, of normal secondary school sports is offered.

A clinical service offers consulting services to school board and medical clinics. On its staff are two audiologists, a psychologist, seven senior teachers, a preschool youngstown, two secretaries and two technicians who keep the hearing aids in order.

Total staff at OSD is 170, including 95 teachers, and a residential staff of 70.

Goal of the school, says principal Dr. J. G. Demoza, is to prepare students for further education or to go directly to employment.

George Brown College in Toronto offers the support services necessary for OSD graduates taking regular college courses. Eleven of this year's graduates are now at the college in a headstart program to prepare them for enrolment next year.

The school has special classes for the multi-handicapped and five classes for hearing children with severe speech disorders.

In collaboration with the Hastings county board of education, it runs two off-campus classes for hard of hearing children. Some are transported from the community and others are OSD students who are based in city schools. The purpose is to prepare them for integration into regular schools by equipping them to a hearing school environment.

Guild Gets Into Community

The Belleville Theatre Guild's activities are not limited amply to the boards of any stage in the city.

"There is a fair amount of give and take between the Theatre Guild and other theatre groups in the city," says Guild president Verna Patterson.

As it has done in previous years, the guild will pass on of its Pinnacle Playhouse facilities to Theatre August — a group of high school and university students who produce and direct plays during the summer months.

Throughout the year, costumes and props were lent to various secondary school drama groups to summer 1973, the Cosby Players Touring Company performed in various parts of Hastings county with material borrowed from the Guild.

The Guild's big-budgeted musical production, was cost of four Gilbert Artiest '74 events this year. It's involvement gave the annual festivities an added glitter.

Spreading the Guild work extended to two visits to Glanmore House, the Hastings County museum.

Guild members put on a series of excerpts from Victorian plays at Christmas. Prior to the opening of Diner, the musical's cast conducted an afternoon tea in the late 19th century rooms.

North East one of Belleville's two major industrial parks

Trenton Land Shortage Poses Industry Problem

TRENTON — This community's industrial future may be blind unless more land becomes available, according to Councillor John Bonn, chairman of Trenton's industrial commission.

In a brief to council-he says Trenton's land is "practically exhausted."

Only 21 acres of industrial property remain open for development and these sites "will very likely be disposed of within the next year," the of within the next year," the report says.

The only other major piece of real estate open for industrial consumption is 30 acres situated on the town's boundary, north of Highway 401.

The land is bisected by a hydro corridor and does not lend itself exactly to industrial requirements but it will be used in the near future as a release valve for the mounting pressure on the town to provide more industrial sites.

In this year's capital budget, town council has allotted funds for the development of the area and the costly threading of electrical and water services under the highway.

According to Councillor Bonn, prospective industries must be shown already serviced land that they can move right on to. Thus, the need to have the land developed even though clients have not made specific approaches about the land.

The councillor says Trenton is in a unique position for two major reasons. The town is a separated municipality (since 1851) and that municipal expansion seems to be possible only to the west.

The brief points out expansion is restricted to the east by the air base, to the north by the hilly country of Murray township and to the south by the Bay of Quinte.

The town sits astride the boundary of Sidney and Murray townships and while western expansion seems the most obvious, by leaving the relationship with Hastings County, Trenton may forsake the opportunity of expedited industrial loans through the Eastern Ontario Development Council.

The town has also looked into annexation or amalgamation in a bid to provide more industrial land.

But, if Trenton takes on land in Murray township — the direction listed in the report as the most practical — industries locating here may not be eligible for the EODC loans.

"The policies of the new development corporations as they affect municipalities will have a great bearing on the success or failure of a restructured municipality comprised of Trenton and Murray Township," said Councillor Bonn.

While the town is putting a lot of its industrial hopes in the north end development, the industrial commission has also submitted a brief to the Ontario government. The brief outlines the town's economic and political situation and asks the Cabinet to consider the problem.

Library Growing Rapidly

Since 1958 three major additions have been made to the building donated in the city by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Corby in the early years of this century. The third extension, opened in September 1973, houses the reference library, reading room, a large art gallery also used for public meetings, a Canadiana room, microfilm reading area, four offices and a workroom. A modern kitchen, for preparation of refreshments after meetings, is also part of the new addition.

A previous building program added a spacious boys and girls room on the top floor of the library. Saturday morning story hours are held there for preschool and primary school aged children.

A story hour has also been instituted for children at the East Branch of the library, located on the corner of Farley and Victoria Avenues.

Volumes in the main library totaled 16,039 at the end of 1973 and in the East Branch the total was 16,153. These figures include the 26,375 boys and girls books.

The reference department is the hub of the library's information service. It processes an average of 140 queries a month.

New books added to the reference section last year include a number of foreign language dictionaries donated by the Lake Ontario Regional Library Board. The microfilm collection, includes: The Intelligencer for the years 1889-1908, the Financial Post, 1966-71 and the Globe and Mail since 1972.

The three library circulated 8,984 films in 1972 and ran eight months out of the year, interest throughout the year.

The gallery, relocated and enlarged, presents exhibitions and shows by local art and photography and travelling exhibitions.

The library receives most of its $186,671 annual revenue from the city of Belleville, Provincial grants are $46,714. The remainder comes from desk receipts, the Corby trust, and the Jim Johnson fund.

An eight-member library board administers the operation. The mayor of the city is an ex-officio member.

Products Airborne

Operated by Wellington brewer Robert Boyce, president of the company, and his sons Daryl and Larry, Quinte Metal employs 24 persons, most of them Prince Edward County residents. The plant also has a branch located at Lynn near Brockville.

Robert Boyce speaks enthusiastically of the continuing expansion of his manufacturing plant and notes, "Business is steadily growing. We are realizing 30 per cent increase."

He commented that the volume is up in the meat business as additional lines come from 1973 and he predicts sales will soon rise to $4 million a year.

Quinte area residents "up in the air" on holiday flights to Europe frequently enjoy roast beef that is a product of Quinte Meats. The plant has a food contract with Air Canada through Cara Foods.

A prominent Prince Edward County businessman, Mr. Boyce is a native of Wellington who learned the meat sales and packaging business while employed for several years with Canada Packers. He purchased Quinte Meat Products in 1963 when it was known as Quality Meat Products. His original payroll of 16 employees has steadily expanded to its present figure of 54 workers.

Behind Mr. Boyce operated a cutting and packaging operation for fresh meats and sold to small grocery stores. He now specializes in stocking complete food and kitchen supplies for institutions. There has also been an expansion of plant lines employing local canning produce and the purchase of fresh vegetables from county growers where possible.

Hot Line Boss Good One

VANCOUVER (CP) — "I have one of the best bosses in Vancouver," said Gladys Johnson. "I'm sure that will surprise a lot of people, but that is honestly how I feel."

It will surprise a lot of people because Gladys Johnson's boss is Jack Webster, the king of Vancouver radio antitheses. To thousands of CKOR listeners he is known as an ill-tempered bad-mouth with a penchant for rudeness, but Mrs. Johnson knows that's just Webster being Webster.

"If he's being particularly vicious and nasty, it sounds terrible, but it's all a big act.

"People will phone and tell me to tell him to quit being so mean and they say: 'How can you stand that man?'

"I have a stock answer: 'Well, sometimes I wonder how he stands me.'"

Mrs. Johnson, 39, has been his secretary for three years.

"I have often tried to say what I actually do. I screen calls.

"My most important function, I suppose, is programming — finding and booking guests to come on the show. I also write cheques, do the books, open the mail and give advice to people who have all sorts of problems.

"If you phone Webster's office, the first person you will talk to is Gladys Johnson. She might be the last. There are six phone lines, almost always jammed.

"When he broadcasts from his downtown studio in Gastown, he can put callers directly on the air but when he's at the Empress Hotel in Victoria, she stays in Vancouver and has complete control over the calls.

"When her boss says scruffy, 'Next caller,' she had better have one ready — and it had better be on topic.

Mrs. Johnson said that after a few months on the job, she developed an instinct which is seldom wrong about which calls will be good.

"You get very callous about people, but, at the same time, I think I like people more as a result of doing this job.

"I have learned to be much more tolerant. I used to wonder how people could be so stupid as to get their lives in such a mess. Now I know that many people are just victims of circumstance.

"Something must be wrong with the information services that are available when so many people don't know who else to turn to for help."

Yes, she said, sometimes the pressure does get to her and she feels like quitting.

"And then I remember what it was like when I was pregnant, and had a few months off.

"I used to listen to Jack's show and the worst part was listening to it and not knowing what was going on during the commercials. That's when the best things happen.

"Jack and his guest would come back on the air laughing and Jack would say: 'Well, we can't talk about that on the air, can we?'

"And I would just sit there, fuming, thinking: 'What have they been doing without me?'"

And what does Jack Webster think of his secretary?

"It's a one-of-a-kind job, this one. Gladys is first-class. We both have a reputation for being somewhat brusque, but the ability to keep telephone calls to a minimum of three minutes is very important, because everyone wants to tell you their whole life story."

He gives her such public endorsements as: "What's the matter with you, woman? Are you sleeping this morning?"

But, he says, that's just show business.

"When you hear me saying, 'Gladys, get this' or 'Gladys get that', more often than not I've got what I want and I'm stalling for time."

Cleric Departs Congregations

CHERRY VALLEY — South Bay and Cherry Valley United Church congregations recently bade farewell to Rev. and Mrs. James MacKay who leave next week for Brantford.

Rev. MacKay has served two years on the Prince Edward South charge of the United Church.

The couple was presented with an oil painting of Milford mill pond with the former United Church in the background.

As address of appreciation and good wishes was read by Murray Head of South Bay and the gift presented by Morley Sills of Cherry Valley.

Mrs. MacKay was presented with a handbag by the Black Creek UCW.

IN KEEPING WITH ROLLINS CONSTRUCTION'S POLICY OF CONTINUED REDEVELOPMENT AND GROWTH OF THE QUINTE AREA FOR THE BETTERMENT OF ALL ITS CITIZENS, THE FORMER DOMINION STORE WAS COMPLETELY REDESIGNED TO HOUSE OUR NEW PROVINCIAL AND FAMILY COURT LAST YEAR.

Progress can be a tremendous thing, developing better living conditions and general prosperity. Rollins Construction realizes that there is more to operating a successful business than simply growth. Contributing certain intangible elements to the surrounding community is as much a part of a progressive company as the quality products and services it provides. Planning and developing by Rollins Construction's professionals have helped shape Quinte's progress in a manner which maintains the natural life-style of the area, while improving certain conditions. In 1974 our company provided direct employment to over 200 people with a payroll of over $1,000,000. In addition we generated over $2,500,000. worth of business for privately-owned sub-contractors working on our projects. Sports enthusiasts are familiar with Rollins Construction through our active support and sponsorship of local teams sch as the Rollins Construction Pee Wee Hockey Team and the Rollins Construction Commercial Softball Club. These things and many more add to the quality of life and in turn generate further progress for our community.

Many area outlets specialize in local arts and crafts

Artists, Craftsmen Respected

Among the successful artists and artisans in the Belleville area, several women are achieving recognition in field as varied as pottery and weaving.

Some, like Marion Casson, are highly professional.

Others are part of husband and wife teams. Kathryn and John Cody, and Audrey and Gord Davies produce pottery sought by local collectors of handmade ware. Interestingly, the pottery seems to reflect the sex of its maker, so that work by husbands and wives is distinguishable.

"The men tend toward more functional design, and the women are slightly more decorative in their work," says Joanne Antonucci, proprietor of The Door In The Wall, the shop on Sorbridge lane that is a showplace for the Davies, Codys and scores of other local artists.

An artist herself, Mrs. Antonucci is delighted with the improvement she sees in the work submitted for sale since the shop opened in January, 1973.

"People tried to discourage my husband Peter and me from opening The Door In The Wall," she recalls. "They said there'd be no market for art or crafts, but just the opposite is true.

"There's tremendous enthusiasm in the city for regional art."

Mrs. Antonucci shows paintings, jewelery, woven and batik hangings, pottery, leather work and children's toys made by local people.

"Women tend to dominate the yarn crafts," she says.

"Weavers like Alma Gassenbeck are widely-known, and newcomers like Linda Russell are showing excellent work here, too. Sue Wilkins brings in macrame, and just stuffed toys are made by Joan Reive and Virginia Lowe."

A number of painters showing and selling work at The Door In The Wall are women, among them Edna Henderson and Madelaine McIntosh.

"At least half the professional artists are women," says Mrs. Antonucci.

She gives credit to the Quinte Arts Council for encouraging crafts through its Visual Arts Show (during the annual Artatent), and for the frequent displays at the Belleville General Hospital and City Hall.

The Corby Public Library has a gallery where paintings, photography, pottery and papier mache work are shown throughout the year.

"There really is an increase in the number of artists — both men and women — becoming successful here," says Mrs. Antonucci. "And it's hard to say exactly why.

"It's like a cycle. As places to show work become available, more people exhibit. If it's good, recognition usually brings sale of the work. With that encouragement and reward, people do more. They buy better quality supplies to work with, produce better work, show their work more often, sell more, and on it goes!"

There are few amateur "hobbiers" making any mark on the local art scene, since only those who take their work really seriously achieve professional quality, explains Mrs. Antonucci.

"We're lucky there are so many professional artists around Belleville," she says.

New Registry Office Being Built

PICTON — A new registry office is under construction in Picton at the side of the old District Court House and jail.

The new building will blend tastefully with the commanding grey stone edifice built in 1832 on land donated by the Reverend William Macaulay.

In 1833, an Act of the Legislature of Upper Canada named Prince Edward County a judicial district. Construction of the impressive new building began in late 1833. Constructed at a cost of $12,000, the court house was opened in 1834.

Here the first courts of quarter session were held. Sir John A. Macdonald, later a father of Confederation and Canada's first prime minister, practised law in the new court room and successfully defended himself against an indictment for assault triggered by a practical joke.

The court room's most dramatic trial probably was that of Joseph Toungeet and David Lowder, two Prince Edward County men hanged back-to-back in 1854 for the murder of Peter Lester. Lowder's brother, George, implicated in the crime, was acquitted.

The men went to their deaths pleading innocence to the murder of Lester, killed by a bullet, and were buried in the unhallowed ground of the jail yard in unmarked graves. The gallows remain in the court house.

Joseph Toungeet wrote to his mother less than three weeks before he died, stating that he was not guilty.

He never knew that fatal shot was fired nor of that man was killed nor nothing of that murder nor my hosts never made them tracks but the jury says I must die to pay some mans penalty, I am ready to die but I die for something I never don."

The governor of the jail did not mail the letter written by the concerned man.

Today the courthouse is marked by an historical plaque detailing its role in early Prince Edward. Construction of the court house is mentioned and it is noted "Additions were made in 1861 but its main block is one of the province's oldest remaining public buildings."

Counties Share RC School System

Roman Catholic schools in Hastings and Prince Edward counties have a thriving separate school system to serve their children.

With the amalgamation of school boards in 1969, the two counties were joined in one jurisdiction, the Hastings-Prince Edward Roman Catholic Separate School Board.

The board has 19 elementary schools, from Whitbey near the boundary of Algonquin Park to Picton in Prince Edward county. The capital investment in schools is $5.5 million.

Unlike that of most school systems, the enrolment in the separate schools has shown an annual increase, it now stands at 4,653.

The staff includes 203 teachers and 7 others — administrators, custodians and clerics workers. The board comprises 14 trustees.

Ten per cent of the teaching staff is designated and is working in special education areas, either with the slow or the gifted.

Full kindergartens are offered in all the schools.

Transportation in the farming area, served by the board costs $175,000 a year, fully paid by provincial government grants.

The board operates 74 bus routes.

The separate school board follows an open door policy. All its schools are available at any time to any community group, and members of the public are always welcome in the schools.

Nicholson Catholic College on Church St., in Belleville, offers secondary education to Roman Catholics. Grades 9 and 10 are publicly financed and under the jurisdiction of the board. Grades 11 through 13 are a private school. Per pupil cost in the senior grades is $770 a year, a figure made possible by the priests and nuns on the teaching staff who return the major portion of their salaries to the school.

Tuition charge is $130 a year. However, the parish in which a student lives contributes $150 a year for each of its students at Nicholson. Of the 27 teachers on staff, one-third are priests or nuns.

Total enrolment in both the junior and senior schools is 600.

Community Organizations Are Active in Belleville

In the past three or four years, as if following trends in Ontario's major cities, ratepayers' groups in Belleville have merged as more active participants in the affairs of the city.

Two of the most active — Concerned Homeowners In Action and the Keep Belleville Beautiful Society—have each come to the fore around issues that they claim threaten the nature of, their respective, neighborhoods.

In late 1972, the two groups, joined by five others, formed a city-wide ratepayers' group — Confederation of Belleville Residents Association — CORRA.

CORRA would be sprung upon city council as a lobbying force for citizens, organizers intended. Any action taken by an individual association would be channelled through CORRA with that group paying any expenses incurred.

However, since its formation the group has not appeared to be an active force in municipal politics.

Most visible activity can be credited to the two earlier mentioned associations.

Concerned Homeowners In Action (CHIA) has been town before the Ontario Municipal Board in its effort to halt development of townhouses on currently vacant land east of Elizabeth Cres. in the city's east end.

CHIA, a group representing 114 residents of the Elizabeth Cres. — Bradgate Rd. area is opposed to construction of an 80-unit condominium townhouse development. The group claims it would detrimentally alter the nature of the existing single family home area.

A construction start on the Maurice H. Rollins development has been held up by two adjournments of the OMB. On both occasions, necessary approvals had not been received, although the city has already passed a rezoning bylaw covering the area.

Keep Belleville Beautiful Society was originally formed to fight the Highrise apartment building on the site of St. Agnes Manor at Asp St. and Bridge St. East.

Although it failed to stop the apartment building — now nearing completion — it was successful in urging city council to adopt a special smoke bylaw, to restrict construction of multiple dwelling units in the city's older sections.

As of February 1974, a city bylaw (known as the 5 special spot) has stopped starts on multiples over three units in number.

Recently, the society entered the public education field.

In March, the society coordinated a Community Planning Association of Canada seminar at Loyalist College.

Planners and provincial Ministry of Housing officials attended the day-long event. It's primary focus was to inform a select audience of planning procedures, alternatives to existing forms of development and possible solutions to problems encountered by ratepayers in their search for an improved city environment.

Organizers saw the event as an unqualified success.

Humane Society Serves Wide Area

Belleville is the only municipality in the Quinte area with a contract with the Humane Society for animal Control.

The society operates from the eastern Ontario headquarters Quinte Animal Shelter, five miles west of the city.

Any animal from a gerbil to a hippopotamus can be accommodated at the shelter, the largest in the province. Horses and cattle seized in Ontario are brought in the Quinte shelter. The large pens in its barns can accommodate large numbers of dogs acquired in mass seizure.

The society also operates boarding kennels and Kitty Villa, an outdoor cat house where homeless cats can be sponsored and kept alive until adopted. Candidates are quarantined before admission and checked for worms, ear mites and given distemper shots. The shelter has never lost a cat in Kitty Villa through disease.

Dog placed for adoption are twice by fire and rebuilt both now protected with distemper times.

The shelter's staff of six people enforces animal welfare legislation in eastern Ontario as well as patrolling Belleville seven days a week.

The 6% acre site at the shelter once had a petting zoo of domestic animals. Present society directors have plans to reinstitute the zoo when funds are available.

Temple Restored

NARA, Japan (AP) — A $6-million, four-year project has begun here to restore the Todaiji Buddhist temple, the world's largest wooden structure. The temple, 154 feet tall, 285 feet long and 197 feet wide, contains a 437-ton bronze statue of Buddha in its main hall. Originally built in the 8th century, the temple has been destroyed by fire and rebuilt both times.

Softball the Big Game

The Quinte area has four senior softball leagues in operation this year, as well as many more informal leagues which are formed and disbanded as the years come and go.

Included in the four senior leagues in the area are three men's and one ladies' league.

The top grouping in the area is the six-team Quinte Fastball League. Rated one of the top leagues in Ontario, the loop has produced many all-Ontario champions in the past few years.

The teams play three times weekly at their own diamond, with six games played in the form of doubleheaders.

League president George Rutledge and his executive keep things going smoothly.

The Belleville Industrial Softball League (BISL) provides a good source of recreational but competitive sport for employees of local industry. The league has run under several different names, and has 13 teams.

The teams have been split into two divisions which play an interlocking schedule five nights a week. An average week sees 14 games go into the record books in this "fun" league.

For players living outside the city area, there is the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League, which has seven teams operating this season, a hub for that league, which has been in operation for some 23 years.

Teams play doubleheaders at Ameliasburgh three times weekly, including a Sunday afternoon twin bill.

And last, but certainly not least in the line-up of senior leagues in the area, is the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League.

The league has six teams, including one from Madoc, a community about 25 miles north of Belleville.

One of the league's teams, the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund was the all-Ontario champion last year, in the Provincial Women's Softball Union Intermediate C Division.

Playing at three diamonds, the Madoc field, Centennial Park and the Alemite Park for a weekly doubleheader, the league gets in six games a week.

The loop has been operating in the area for some eight years.

Keep Belleville Beautiful

Auto Sport Revived

Earlier this year, interest was revived in the Quinte Auto Sport Club which had ceased to operate.

Enthusiasm has been growing rapidly and each of the club's monthly rallies sees the number of entries increase.

The club's first rally this year drew seven entries. Organizers were expecting about 20 for a June meet.

Some of the most sophisticated business telephone systems in the world are made at the corner of Sidney and Wilson

We're talking about systems like our Pulse* electronic Private Automatic Branch Exchange. It's one of the most advanced PABX's ever to make the jump from drawing board to assembly line. And it's been a Belleville show all the way.

Back in 1972, Belleville got the first Pulse model off the ground and shipped units to telephone companies in Canada and the U.S. where it was snapped up faster than you can say Northern Electric. Now, Belleville's turning out Pulse systems by the hundreds. Along with such other sophisticated products as digital data equipment and key telephone sets.

Which says quite a bit about how far we've come in 27 years. In July '47, when Northern Electric first started manufacturing in Belleville, we employed 59 people. Today, we have 1365 people—doing the kind of work that's made Belleville a vital part of one of the three largest telecommunications manufacturers in North America. And this year will see us breaking more new ground with production of a larger, even more impressive version of Pulse. "Made in Belleville", of course. This city has provided us with the kind of dynamic industrial potential we needed to grow. And right now, we're one of the fastest growing companies in Canada. Thanks for the part you've played.

People Urged to Use Schools

Hastings county is unique in the province for the lead its trustees have taken in encouraging people to use their schools.

The open door policy has been in effect for four years, with David Smith acting as co-ordinator of the community school program for the public board.

"Schools are thought of as community facilities for community use," he says. "The school system is now more comfortable with having people use its facilities, even during the day."

There is no limit to how a school can be used, he says. If an organization needs the use of a school it has merely to call the board office for a booking. If the organization is non-profit, there is no charge.

Mr. Smith, as co-ordinator, is available to assist any group in conducting its operation.

The result is a network of educational and recreational facilities throughout the county-being, but working together to its use almost every night of the week and frequently on the weekends.

Queen Victoria School in Belleville has run a successful community school program for people of all ages in the neighborhood. It offered craft and sports programs from 4 to 10 p.m. every weekday and outdoor sports in the summer. This year, three supervisors were hired under an LIP grant, but most of the supervision is done by volunteers from the community. On Friday evenings the school is used by the Uganda Asian community for religious services.

Every activity from Boy Scout meetings to square dancing is held in schools. Two schools open in this program are Belleville, a BCI and Centennial, have auditoriums that are rented for concerts and theatre productions.

"We have good relations with the agencies offering recreational programs," says Mr. Smith. "We are not competing, but working together to meet the needs of the people."

The city recreation commission and Loyalist College and the Quinte Arts Council are among the organizations that make extensive use of schools.

The separate school board follows a similar open door policy.

Its schools are also considered community centres. In schools built in recent years, special arrangements have been made in the placing of gyms, general purpose rooms, kitchens and libraries to make them adaptable to community needs after regular classes are over for the day.

For those over playground age a type of drop-in program is offered.

Anyone from 12-16 years old may take advantages of the recreational facilities at seven schools in the city. The schools open in this program are available from the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street.

Each school is supervised by Recreation personnel and most activities are decided upon by attending groups.

Gymnasium facilities are available to any and all of the group and excursions and special activities are planned by the group itself.

Twice a week gymnastics and archery are taught by special personnel.

Registration for this program takes place on July 2 and it is service of the community.

At Queen Victoria Public School and Quinte Secondary School people from five years of age to any age may learn different aspects of art or ceramics (pottery).

Monday to Friday, open classes are offered for those who wish to develop an artistic technique, in either of the two areas, under the guidance of seven members of the Recreation summer staff.

A minimal registration fee may be required depending on the size of enrolment and cost of supplies.

Registrations take place on July 2 at the two specified sites.

Single Government Opposed

PICTON — Prince Edward, traditionally known as "The County" has reinforced its regard for the old ways and the old boundaries by rejection of a proposal for one-tier government.

This spring Prince Edward County council passed a resolution asking the Ontario government not to implement a one-tier, reconstituted county government at this time.

The provincial government had stated that resolutions of support from county councils and a two-thirds majority of municipal councils would be needed before the proposal could receive the green light.

Under the concept of county government, Prince Edward would have forfeited her 10 autonomous councils in favor of a single tier system.

In its resolution to the government, county council requested a further study of the proposal and further information regarding the tax structure, government grants, administration costs and related information. This would permit Prince Edward residents to become better informed before making a decision regarding the proposed single-tier system.

Before county council passed its resolution, a series of public meetings was held throughout Prince Edward County. Of the 10 municipalities, five registered in favor of the local government reform and four voted against it. One township failed to pass any resolution.

Municipalities backing the one-tier system included Picton, Hillier, Hallowell, North Marysburgh and Wellington. In opposition were Ameliasburgh, Sophiasburgh, Bloomfield and South Marysburgh. Only Athol township failed to submit a resolution.

Warden of Prince Edward County, Keith MacDonald has questioned if the government will allow the county more time or whether the next step will be to incorporate the county in a larger regional area when the government is ready.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce observed, "County council only wanted to build a stronger county. I hope the ministry will allow us time before they make a decision for us. I hope they leave the door open to us."

Reeve Boyce did not feel that the majority of Prince Edward residents were opposed to the new system.

"If they had been opposed they would have been out at the meetings. Other people who did not attend had faith in county council to make the right decision."

Picton-Hungerford reeve Larry Richardson expressed disappointment in Picton residents interest in the public meeting held there. He fingered apathy as the major enemy and asked, "Where are the people who were so concerned."

Playgrounds In 27 Parks

The city has many group, recreational facilities operating throughout the municipality. Probably the most familiar one is the playground program.

The system of playgrounds has expanded over the past year from 22 to 27 different parks.

This year there will be an expected 17 areas restricted to 5-8 year-olds and 10 others for children in the 9-11 age group. The park areas are susceptible to change depending on registrations. The registration is free and takes place on July 2 at each part.

Among activities planned for the program are ten track and field competitions, theatre presentations, parents' nights—during which time parents are invited to come to their child's playground and educate themselves as to what it is all about — and on August 14 and 15 the playground major arts and crafts display and the city wide Penny Carnival will respectively occur.

The individual facilities are run Monday to Friday and are under constant supervision by the 31 summer employees of the program.

Former 'Ad' Man Becomes Big Man in Games Business

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — In 1967, when Alfons Rubbens was an advertising man in Toronto, he went out for a two-martini lunch with a friend and started talking about leaving the rat race.

He was tired of the day-to-day hassles and the games people play.

So he invented a game of his own called Ratrace. And another, one called Ulcers. When no company would buy the idea, he quit the ad game and went into the game game.

Now his House of Games in Brampton distributes more than 100 games and puzzles.

The biggest seller is Ratrace, "a madcap game of social climbing." Players start in the lower class and, with status symbols and a little cash (or credit), move to the middle and finally the upper class. Object is to get $250,000 in cash and drop out of the rat race.

Obstacles include income taxes, credit payments and the cost of living in the higher social strata.

It's a true-to-life game but Mr. Rubbens probably is wondering if he shouldn't have put the federal government into the picture somewhere.

A government regulation—Bill C-120—is creating problems for hundreds of firms that manufacture consumer goods, said Mr. Rubbens.

When the law becomes effective Sept. 1, 1972, it will require that all packages be bilingual and list contents.

Mr. Rubbens said it will cost his firm $50,000 in new packaging—money which would otherwise have gone towards product development.

Part of a $175,000 addition to his plant, which will open in July, now must be switched to printing.

Mr. Rubbens said the firm recently produced an all-French version of Ratrace. Will that have to be scrapped for a bilingual version with the French board on the reverse side of the English one?

If so, the price of the game will go from $8 to $14 and he predicts many products will be dropped by game and toy manufacturers who cannot afford the new color separations and printing required or who support their games from the U.S. or Europe.

House of Games is a subsidiary of Rubbens Industries, the English game maker and many products are imported.

The firm opened in 1970 when Mr. Rubbens went into game-making full-time. In July, 1973, it moved from Mississauga to Brandles and part of the firm was sold to Waddington.

In the present plant, 20 employees assemble and distribute games and puzzles. In the addition, another 20 workers will start House of Games manufacturing its own products, introduced at the rate of one a year.

Most are invented, at least in part, by Mr. Rubbens, who has several other puzzles and board games to his credit.

In the unlikely event that he runs dry, there is no shortage of ideas. Phone calls and letters arrive daily from inventors.

"The most important thing is the theme of the game," he said. "The complication doesn't matter so much."

He attributes part of the success of Ratrace to its early marketing. It was one of the first games aimed specifically at the adult market.

Most inventors are turned away.

"I would have to manufacture 30 games a year if I took all the ideas," he said.

Some may think of starting their own firm, as Mr. Rubbens did, but few have the marketing, graphics, and copy-writing experience he got from advertising.

House of Games has such games as Ulcers (big business); Campaign (Napoleonic wars); 4009 AD (space travel); Speculate (stock market); and sports and spy games.

A competition was held in England and the fastest time for putting that one together was 12 hours.

Fiji Adds Treasure Island To Its Tourist Attraction

SUVA, FIJI (CP) — Treasure Island has come to life in these South Pacific islands.

Treasure Island, actually the 18-acre Blunda Island, 19 miles off the main island of Viti Levu, is the latest addition to Fiji's booming tourist industry.

Prime Minister Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara recently opened this new $1.5 million resort which offers 66 cottages of a modern design.

Attractions at the resort include a fully-equipped dining and entertaining area, floodlighted, fresh-water swimming pool and more than a mile of white sandy beach.

The accommodation is designed to be attractive but practical for beachside living. Unit accommodations include double, twin, triple and family size.

All the accommodation is on the waterfront. The tariff for Treasure Island is set at $F26 for twin and $F29 for single.

The Canadian dollar is worth about 80 cents Fijian at the current rate of exchange.

The opening of Treasure Island is expected to boost further the islands' tourist industry, estimated to have brought in $46.3 million in foreign exchange last year.

The minister of communications, works and tourism, Ratu Sir Penaia Ganilau, said tourism has grown at a rate of 25 per cent a year for the last decade. Foreign exchange obtained has multiplied from $3.6 million in 1962 to about $27 million in 1972.

But room for the tourist are likely to increase in the near future. A bill to impose a turnover tax on hotels has been approved by the Fijian house of representatives.

Finance Minister C. A. Stinson said a landing tax at Nandi airport has been proposed although this has not been endorsed by the industry.

Stinson said although a hotel tax is unpalatable, it is an accepted means of raising money. It is estimated that the three per cent hotel turnover tax will raise about half a million dollars a year.

While the tourist industry continues to grow efforts are being made to make sure the way of life of this unique group of islands continues unchanged.

Ratu Sir Penaia said there are many things about Fiji's multiracial society and way of life that are unique and demand a conscious effort at protection if they are not to be lost and replaced by a less individual and self-reliant way of life.

But change is coming. Tourists who travel across the main island from Nandi airport to Suva, the capital, will be relieved to know that the twisting dirt road is to be replaced in the next three years.

The road is to be sealed at a cost of $20 million. The World Bank is lending $15 million and another $3.3 million is to be loaned by the Australian and New Zealand governments.

And although tourism has been hit by oil prices and the threat of world economic recession, Fijian authorities are convinced the investment in tourism is still a good one for the future.

Ratu Sir Penaia said that looking to the medium and long-term prospects, airlines will return to the profitable position they held in the early 1960s as a result of the economies being forced on them.

When this happened, a new surge of tourism development in the South Pacific should take place, because profitable airline operation was the key to tourism growth. One of those airlines is Canadian Pacific, which operates a twice-weekly flight from Vancouver through Hawaii and Fiji to Australia. The flights are on Thursdays and Saturdays and the most popular from Vancouver to Fiji has proved to be the 28-day excursion fare.

Information Service Lists

TORONTO (CP) — Rick Nadon, a graduate of York University, has developed a service which provides a personal contact for Toronto residents who want to find out what is happening in the city.

Information Please is a telephone service, open seven days a week, which will suggest restaurants in different price ranges, tell what is on at the theatre and advise a caller where he can rent a tuxedo.

Mr. Nadon, 25, says he started the service out of frustration.

"I became tired of having to scrabble to buy a newspaper when I left the office to find out which movie my wife and I should see. If you're not at home when you want to go out to dinner, it's not always simple to think of where to go."

The telephone installation is in co-operation with a computer.

Employees feed the information requested by a caller into the computer and read the response back from the scanner.

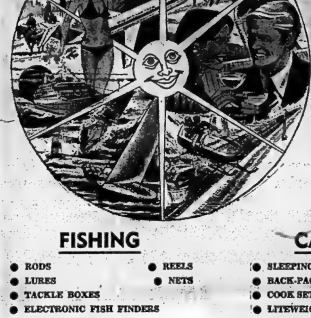
Mr. Nadon said most questions fall into 50 categories which include restaurants, hotels, general entertainment, travel agencies and out of town attractions.

Gas from Coal Is Being Studied

LONDON (CP) — A £4.17 million ($9.6 million) research program seeking a commercial process for making a natural gas substitute from coal is being launched in Scotland.

The research is being undertaken by the British Gas Corp. Its sponsors, in the United States, where demand for natural gas is outstripping supply, Britain is producing enough natural gas for its own needs from wells under the North Sea.

Similar research was started in Britain 10 years ago but was abandoned in favor of another process which achieved the same results with oil. But oil has since become scarce and expensive and coal has become the most plentiful raw material for countries with inadequate natural gas supplies.



The research will be carried out at a plant at Westfield in Fife, which has been making synthetic gas by a process of total gasification of coal but is being closed down as Britain converts progressively to natural gas from the North Sea.

The British Gas Corp. will get a share of any royalties gained by sale of the new technology.

Priest's Baseball Talents Determined His First Parish

REGINA (CP) — When Msgr. Anthony Gocki graduated from the Grand Seminary in Montreal 32 years ago, he wanted to serve in a rural parish.

But his ability to play baseball determined otherwise.

A parish priest in Moose Jaw later that the young clergyman played ball and requested he be sent to the Saskatchewan city to organize sports for the parish and for separate schools.

"When I arrived, that was his first question—'Do you play baseball?'

"They called me the baseball priest because they couldn't pronounce my name," he said.

That priest — Msgr. Gocki—pronounced Gosh—got his rural church.

He served as pastor at Candiac, about 25 miles southeast of Regina, from 1925 to 1930. He would spend two weeks in the community, then pack his pallias and travel by "horse, buggy, or jigger on the railroad.

"You couldn't depend on a car, there were no gravel roads and the trail service wasn't that good," the 71-year old retired Roman Catholic churchman said in an interview.

Missionary work is entirely different now, I came in at the end of the real missionary work. . . . It's all streamlined now."

Msgr. Gocki was born in Montana of Polish parents who later moved to Ondawa, Sask.—"the bald prairie"—in a wagon.

The priest's ability to speak Polish and other Slavic languages was a help. In Regina, he served 43 years Anthony's parish of Immaculate Conception—built in 1908 by a Polish congregation of 125 families.

"The Polish people wanted a parish of their own so they could pray and sing in their own language," Msgr. Gocki recalled. "Archbishop McGuigan asked me if I would take it."

"We had no pews, just planks to sit on and we went without radiators in the church for five years. There was a lot of sacrifice."

Volunteer labor in the congregation constructed the church and eventually a rectory.

"We didn't pay five cents on labor outside of the plumber and electrician," Msgr. Gocki said. "There's not a single shingle on the rectory roof that I didn't call myself."

Meanwhile, Msgr. Gocki's reputation as a sportsman involved him in organizing Regina's first troop of Roman Catholic boy scouts.

He took them to camp in the Qu'Appelle Valley.

"Boy the camp," Archbishop Monahan said to me when I gave him my report.

"I said: 'Your Grace I haven't got the money. I'm so broke, when I walk I rattle.'"

The archbishop donated $1,500, the 400-acre camp was bought and it was named Camp Monahan.

During the Depression, the Regina Exhibition Board decided to introduce an athletic day and called Msgr. Gocki for information about Polish athletics.

"I said: 'Gentlemen, the only thing I know about a Polish dance is that it ends about four in the morning'."

Since the Second World War, Polish dancing has become a regular part of St. Anthony's Church parish activities.

"They've done it on their own, but as part of the parish," Msgr. Gocki said.

"It's grand to have it—adds color and preserves the culture. I gave it my blessing."

Msgr. Gocki, despite his retirement, remains active, working with immigrants and serving mass when asked to do so during special religious observances.

His health suffered a setback last year, so serious that he was not expected to live, and on Dec. 3 a priest arrived to administer the last sacrament.

"I told the priest to wait until after the Grey Cup game."

Students Do Learning At Scattered Schools

TORONTO (CP) — Norman Godfrey and Ivan Hale are out to revolutionize the secondary school system in Canada.

They do not expect their plan to affect a great number of students immediately but this November, 60 students will leave their home communities' schools and attend schools anywhere from Inuvik, N.W.T., to Toronto, from British Columbia to Newfoundland.

The two men have $46,000 from the federal government and by November will have an itinerary, a reciprocal arrangement with provincial governments and school boards which will enable the students to keep their own schools and set up their own study programs across Canada.

The idea came about when Mr. Godfrey and Mr. Hale were Grade 13 students at Don Mills collegiate in 1970-71. They wanted to put the Hall-Dennis report, Living and Learning, to a practical test.

Taking the advice of one of Don Mills' teachers, the late Jean Rume, the students did on-the-spot comparisons of the education system.

They discovered that there were all kinds of people outside the classroom who were willing to share their knowledge and experiences.

"Principals opened their doors," Mr. Godfrey said. "We just wrote to principals and school boards and asked whether we could come and sit in a classroom for a month."

The two travelled in different directions with luggage consisting of 150 pounds of sound and video equipment and a suitcase of surveys.

They got no refusals from the school boards and students from Winnipeg and Gananoque, Ont., came to Don Mills.

The students had no trouble fitting into the different schools despite the difference in grades across the country. Ontario is the only province with Grade 13 and Newfoundland stops at Grade 11.

Norman and Ivan obtained funds for the initial project by approaching industry and corporations; they even got money from the teachers federation, said Norman.

Both students found their school marks improved when they returned to Don Mills. They felt they had to prove they could get academic credits while travelling.

Both attended the University of Toronto and Norman is awaiting confirmation of a BA, Ivan took off a year to work.

They operate out of an office at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education. The program is sponsored by the International Bureau for Professional Development and is being evaluated by Dr. L. D. McLean, bureau representative and department chairman at OISE.

American Protestants Ignorant of Judaism

NEW YORK (AP) — Most American Protestants do not understand either Judaism or Christianity's connections with it, an ecumenical leader says. Steps are being taken toward filling that gap.

Claire Randall, general secretary of the National Council of Churches, said the office of Jewish-Christian Relations will provide an interchange with Jewish representatives that will help overcome the problem.

She told a meeting of the American Jewish Committee that the lack of Protestant knowledge about Jews and Judaism arises partly from the fact that "across the country, most Protestants have limited contacts with the Jewish community."

Mrs. Randall, administrative head of an organization that includes most major Protestant as well as Eastern Orthodox denominations, said Protestants also lack awareness of the meaning of the state of Israel and of the Nazi slaughter of Jews.

Most Protestants "would like to forget or have forgotten what happened in Germany," she said. "Therefore, they do not realize that for Jewish people, the survival of Israel is intimately linked with the survival of the Jewish community in the world."

She said the gap between Protestants and Jews has, realized partly from the longtime Protestant emphasis on the "malignancy of the Christian faith." She added that Christians need to review their attitudes "in relation to our scriptures" in the recognition that Judaism is a living and vibrant religious faith.

"Christians and Jews have a common vision of a kingdom that is just and righteous," she said. "We must find ways, on the basis of that common concern, to work together for good in our nation and the world."

HORN HAS HIM WINDED

LONDON (AP) — Brian Walnes says he's tired of blowing the horn of Epcot, Yorkshire, without a decoy to give him a windbreak now and then, so he may quit—even though he's fond of the three-cornered hat and buff coat that go with the office. The horn has been sounded at 9 p.m. each night since the year 886 to remind Epcot citizens to extinguish their fires.

Transit HQ New

After getting along with rented accommodation for the past 14 years, Belleville Transit Commission some time in July will move into new combination-owned quarters.

The new location is on North Coleman Street (Coleman Fleta) where a new garage and office structure costing more than a half million dollars is now under construction.

Hoped for completion date for the new structure is July 15 and the commission hopes to be moved into its new home by the end of the month. An official opening for the new accommodation is planned for some time in September.

Tender price for the new garage and office accommodation was $463,878, with another $5,000 for land costs of $30,000 for architects' fees and inspections.

The new building will have accommodation for 20 to 24 buses depending on their size.

The commission owns 15 transit buses which are used regularly on city bus routes with another three school buses. Delivery is being awaited another two 45-passenger buses which were ordered this year.

The commission is receiving 75 per cent provincial subsidy on the new garage and office accommodation and the same percentage subsidy on the purchase of the two new buses.

Also it receives a 50 per cent subsidy on any commission operational loss.

Since the transit commission took over the bus line, which until 1967 was owned by Ravenon Bus Lines, passenger volume has almost doubled from 94,680 to 112,202,330 last year, in the same period the number of buses had increased from 11 to the present 15 buses — 17 with the two new vehicles.

The route mileage covered by the commission has also remained about static at about 30 miles — one way routes.

Normally the commission operates seven regular buses with this number increasing to 13 during rush hours and on weekends.

But something new has been added to the commission operation in recent weeks.

It is the appearance of two new bus shelters which are located near the corner of Bleecker and Kenny, and at the corner of West Moira and Yeomans.

Lewis McMullin, commission manager said the locations for the bus shelters were chosen as a result of a survey of major stops. The two chosen locations topped the list in their particular areas with passenger and student and other factors considered.

Another four shelters will be added later this year with still more in the years ahead if demand warrants.

Old Consecon tavern being rebuilt in Waupoos

Tavern Becoming Home

WAUPOOS — There's a tavern in the town this summer although tourists and local residents can raise no glasses behind its doors.

The Georgian style inn, built circa 1838 in Consecon, has been moved to Waupoos by craftsman Roy Stevens who is rebuilding it as a residence.

The tavern originally was built on the Danforth Road by Richard Hayes and reportedly did a booming business in early Prince Edward. The inn was constructed of white clapboard and featured a fanlight over the wide front doors.

When prohibition was voted into the community in 1888, Hayes' tavern was the scene of mass celebration. The owner declared that his customers should continue to "raise a glass" until every bottle in his stock had been emptied.

Mr. Stevens, who began restoration of the tavern in Waupoos last year, called a "bee" and neighbors assisted him in beginning his ambitious project.

One of Prince Edward's original roadhouses has been rescued from becoming merely a mention in a history book.

Small Business Help Available

Starting your own business and keeping your head financially above water is sometimes a lot easier said than done.

But where does a small businessman go for help when his business bookkeeping records take on an ominous appearance?

To help him get out of the red or even just to help him get started, the businessman can rely on two sources in the Quinte area this summer.

First, there is a summer small business consulting program being run by 14 students taking a business course at Queen's University. All students have a master of business administration degree.

The program aims to provide low cost consulting to small businesses in Eastern Ontario and is available to any manufacturing, retail or service business which is locally owned by Canadians, preferably owner-operated and located in the area between Belleville, Kingston and Brockville.

The services available include cash management and planning, costing systems and control, inventory control, marketing planning, bookkeeping systems and evaluation of computer services needs and costs.

The program began May 1 and runs till August 15 of this year. Director of the program is P. B. Buchan of Queen's University. His associate is W. R. Scott and assistant is W. C. DeLucia.

The funds received from the government cover the bulk of the program's operating costs. However, it will be necessary to charge a nominal amount to each business to cover out-of-pocket expenses incurred by its student.

The other available help a businessman can seek is through the Industrial Development Bank based in Kingston. Seminars are held at the Four Seasons Motel in Belleville, periodically and case histories are examined. Newspaper advertisements tell when the seminars are held.

This service is available to those requiring financing to start, modernize or expand their business and are having trouble obtaining it elsewhere.

The IDB makes loans available to small or medium sized Canadian businesses. A representative is made available to discuss starting or expanding a business. Often the IDB makes mortgage loans to assist a business for five, 10 or more years.

$15 Million For Expansion

PICTON — One of Prince Edward's greatest industrial strides in recent months was the announcement by Lake Ontario Cement Limited of a $15-million expansion program at its Picton plant.

Installation of an 850,000 tons-per-year kiln, scheduled for completion in late 1975 will effectively double the present kiln capacity of the plant, making it one of the largest in North America.

In 1973 LOCL began the first phase of a long-term expansion program. This involved a $6-million capital outlay to install two new mills and long-term related facilities in order to raise cement manufacturing capacity by about 20 per cent.

The $15-million program announced later in 1973 marks the second stage of expansion.

The installation of the new kiln, LOCL's fourth at Picton, will employ modern technology and includes a four-stage preheater, clinker cooler and related dust-collection, fuel preparation and materials handling equipment.

Loyalist College Has Courses for All

Loyalist College of Applied Arts and Technology brought post-secondary education to Belleville eight years ago.

Since then, it has become an integral part of the educational scene, offering full-time day instruction leading to diplomas, night-time interest and credit courses to people in the community, and a Manpower retraining division.

The college serves the four counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland-Durham and Lennox and Addington.

The college began in a metal pre-fabricated building, now called the Pioneer Building. An extensive building program is now completed and the permanent Main building with three wings is now the centre of campus activities. The retraining division uses the Pioneer Building.

The college, located on a spacious campus five miles from downtown Belleville, opened in 1967, with 157 students. It now has about 1,800 day students and about 276 faculty and administrative personnel. The course offerings have increased from 11 to 36.

The community colleges of Ontario offer "vocationally-oriented" education to students with a grade 12 diploma and to mature students whether or not they are graduates.

An innovative program is Project Loyalist, a system under which armed forces veterans can receive credit for their experience and earn a diploma in one year. The course was developed and now operates, with the cooperation of the Department of National Defence.

The college also offers classroom instruction for the apprenticeship programs of the Industrial Training Branch of the Ministry of Colleges and Universities.

The college offers one, two and three-year courses in the fields of arts, technology, business and health care.

The major growth in recent years has been in the health care field, including mental retardation counselling, registered nursing, nursing assistants and early childhood education. Enrolment in the health programs now exceeds that in each of the technology, business and applied arts faculties.

The college operates a restaurant for the training of hotel administration students and extensive photography and television studios for students in the communications studio techniques.

Journalism students produce and print their own weekly newspaper.

Loyalist offers a full extension program of credit and interest courses throughout the four counties it serves. It now operates all the night school interest courses given in secondary schools and conducts a Holiday Arts program of craft instruction in north Hastings during the summer—a program primarily directed toward summer residents.

Two members of the Belleville community are untouched by the influence of Loyalist. Most people at one time or another have taken a course offered by Loyalist, either at the college or at one of the other locations used by the extension division.

The college is now offering a television technique course for members of the community who volunteer to operate the community television Channel 4, broadcasting every evening.

Choose Safe Frames

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada advises shoppers to select eyeglass frames with a view toward safety, preferably frames which surround the lenses for greater impact resistance. Lenses for rimless eyeglasses should be made of optical plastic since the drilling of holes for the arms and nose-piece greatly weakens lenses, increasing the danger of breakage.

Fifth generation now active in Chisholm lumber business

Lumber Mill Quinte Pioneer

PLAINFIELD — Not every big business has to be a corporation.

Take Chisholm's of Roslin.

It's one of the biggest rural business operations in the southern townships of Hastings County.

It's all in the family, — all five generations.

And it's still centred on its original site which, in turn, was there even before the Chisholms settled down to do business with their neighbors.

The trade has grown — and then some — since great grandfather William Fraser Chisholm first bought the operation 117 years ago.

Today, it is one of the biggest suppliers of lumber and building materials outside Quinte country's urban belt.

It's big, with all the problems of a major business. But it retains the personality of an enterprise happily run by one big family line. And the current generation of managers wouldn't have it any other way.

"We have all the headaches of General Motors — without all their sophisticated administrative business techniques," says Don Chisholm.

"But then we're completely independent of everybody. We brought this whole business up on personalized service. And we've got to keep it that way."

With brothers Joe and Walt, he became the fourth of the family line to take over the operation. His son, Harvey, II, is the latest generation working in the business.

The family became a rural dynastic enterprise when great grandsire William moved his family from Marmora in 1857. He bought the lumber, feed and flour mill run by a Shipman family on falls in the Moira River where the Shannonville Gravel road dips toward what is Highway 7. The patriarchal Chisholm died in 1907 with the business flourishing. The Chisholms conducted the last log drive down the Moira in 1907.

The operation was rebuilt by the third generation when the original mills burned in 1944. Expansion moved on with the next line of sons. In the late 1950s, they established their retail building supply business. In 1962 the sawmill was completely rebuilt — but history repeated itself. The modernized unit burned down four years later — to be rebuilt again.

Today, the feed mill still operates, flanking its river site. The expanded retail section stocks everything from wood panel for doors to locks. There's a chip mill that supplies pulp companies in Trenton and Quebec.

Big backdrop to the family operation is the lumber yard, where production equipment is kept up-to-date with the newest equipment. From there, lumber gets cut to wholesalers for shipment anywhere, it is in demand. These days that can mean anywhere from Europe to Japan, says Don.

In 1973 the yards shipped out 4,185,000 board feet of lumber. But at any time, there's one to two million more feet on hand in various stages of drying. As it's cured, it's moved out — by "perpetual motion operation," Don calls it.

Meantime, in the countryside, the Chisholms draw their lumber from various lots in the Quinte area — the northern Hastings townships, Lennox and Addington, Brighton.

Surprisingly, Prince Edward County, long settled and farmed over, is another source, despite its general pastoral appearance. The Chisholms say soft maple is a main lumber supply drawn from across the Bay at Quinte.

New Home for Aged Due in '74

PICTON — A project initiated in 1971 Prince Edward County's new home for the aged has a target date for completion in October, 1974.

Bloomfield Reeve and chairman of county council's social services committee Allen Anderson recalls that a new home was requested three years ago and a tax mill set aside to begin the project. Total costs now are estimated at approximately $1.5 million.

When county officials met with the provincial government to discuss a modern facility for the aged already $130,000 had been served toward its construction.

Reeve Anderson county warden in 1971 commends that the government approved this initiative and approved an 84-bed home.

Today council's dream of a modern setting for Prince Edward's senior citizens has become a reality. To avoid the concept of an institution the home has been constructed as a village complex and will at completion resemble an apartment building.

There will be a limit of two patients per room and a total of 12 private rooms. Each resident in the semi-private rooms will have his own window.

The home's community centre or auditorium has been planned as a spacious area where residents can relax and socialize.

Included nearby are a beauty shop and barber shop and a tuck shop.

A chapel designed to seat approximately 25 persons also is being constructed at the new home. In addition there will be nurses' offices a doctor's office a staff lounge, pool room, arts and crafts area and a three-bed infirmary.

Residents of the home recovering from physical handicaps will be treated when required by an adjacent trained in physiotherapy.

When the new home for the aged is completed the old building at the same site will be demolished. Built in 1905 the present home has been the target of numerous grand jury reports listing it as a potential fire trap.

"The new home has been needed for many many years," says Reeve Anderson enthusiastically.

"We are fulfilling the recommendations of the grand jury. I am thrilled to see this project coming to completion."

"In six months we will be making application to the provincial government for an addition" he remarked.

"This isn't adequate to serve the needs of the county," he said, indicating the new home.

The building, constructed on a 44-acre site has been built to permit expansion readily.

Reeve Anderson pointed out that the new home for the aged hopefully can serve other senior citizens in the county who may be interested in using its auditorium facilities.

Prince Edward County councillors early this year voted unanimously to name the building the Harvey J. McFarland Memorial Home for the Aged, in tribute to Picton's late mayor. Mayor McFarland, during his 29 years in office, continually expressed great concern for Prince Edward's senior citizens and annually presented residents of the county home with Christmas gifts.

He was present at the sod-turning ceremony for the new building in September, 1973.

Squash Courts Coming

Squash anyone? For the past few months that's been the sound heard at the city's new Squash Court on Station Street.

Although the club isn't slated to be officially opened until the fall, members have been playing since April while workmen go about finishing up the building.

Construction work was started in mid-December and the first stage of the complex was finished in late April.

The attractive-looking building consists of two squash courts, a small gymnasium, a sauna, a whirlpool bath, locker facilities, a licensed lounge and an upstairs gallery where visitors may watch the players.

Later plans for the building, designed and constructed by Cornerstone Builders, call for another court, an outdoor pool, separate sections for ladies will include their own sauna, showers and other facilities.

A unique feature of the building is three separate air conditioning and heating systems ensuring that the two courts and the lounge are both heated and cooled adequately.

A constant temperature of 60 degrees will be maintained in the courts even on the hottest days.

There is room for a total of 130 members. Yearly membership fee is $180 and there is an initiation fee of $200.

Zoo in Soccer

This summer, under the guidance of new executive, the BMSA has decided to revamp its entire organization.

Registrations were closed to residents of the city and the all star teams were completely omitted.

Still, close to 200 youngsters signed up for the sport, in three divisions — atom, mosquito and peewee.

The soccer executive consists of Dr. Tom Woodley, president; Elizabeth Wilman, secretary; Tom Van Dusen, registrar; Joe DiGenova, referee-in-chief; Bruno DiGenova, public relations director, and Coffin Baillie, equipment manager.

Fees are $3 per person and $5 per family.

Many City Escapers Are Moving Into Prince Edward County

FICTION Prince Edward has long discovered by urban residents eager to beat the rat race by relocating in "the County."

The out-of-town market has come on less fond this county and this reflects on prices as well as increased building costs, says George Vincent, an agent for Walwyn Real Estate of Picton.

Mr. Vincent, a long-time resident of Prince Edward and a former native of Hallowell, notes that much more property is changing hands today than two years ago. Outside interest in this community has prompted increasing sales and higher prices.

Mr. Vincent remarks that formerly most out-of-town persons buying land fit the county were of retirement age. Today, younger city residents are purchasing property.

Although many "city slickers" desert urban life to become "country gentlemen" Mr. Vincent does not feel that the farms they buy generally are allowed to lie fallow.

He points out that these buyers usually lease the productive land to reliable sons of the carrying charges.

He comments on "a lot of fuss" surrounding German purchase of land here and in other communities.

"But to me they are the best absentee landlords," says Mr. Vincent.

He observes that in some areas Germans have bought up speculative land and in Prince Edward County several have purchased property for long range investments.

Mr. Vincent says that the majority of these buyers are eager to have the original property owner remain on the land, supervising it for them.

"These people are prepared to pay market value prices," comments the real estate agent.

Mr. Vincent, discussing the steady rise in land prices, says that real estate costs were lower in this area than in surrounding communities until recently.

The out-of-town market has changed this picture and there is now an increased trend to sell farm properties to city people.

"We've sold several farms this year for farming purposes to out-of-county people," he observes.

He remarks that real estate costs are pushed higher when newcomers have sold out in their home communities and arrive here to buy. They are prepared to pay substantial prices for the land that they want.

As an example of soaring costs, Mr. Vincent notes that two years ago building lots in Picton sold for from $3,000 to $4000. Today the price tag has been hiked to a range of from $8,000 to $10,0.

He reports the supply of in-town lots as "very limited" and adds that there are few houses on lots for sale. There is one new real estate development on Pitt Street in Picton that will involve construction of 20 houses in its initial phase.

Mr. Vincent does not feel that the value of real estate will drop in the near future.

"As long as building costs continue to rise, replacement costs will increase, so existing properties will rise correspondingly," he states.

Start Made on Arena To Replace Fire Victim

WELLINGTON — Construction started this spring on the Wellington District Community Centre, following destruction of the former arena building by fire last December.

The new centre has been the object in recent weeks of an ambitious fund drive organized by the Wellington arena management board. Contract price for the building is $264,372.

Delbert Boyle, chairman of the management board, has stated that donations toward the building project total approximately $21,304. An additional $50,000 must be raised to cover costs of engineering, fixtures and furnishings. Fire insurance covering the old arena totalled $43,000.

Prince Edward County council has granted $154,000 toward the new arena through the participating municipalities of Wellington, Hillier, Bloomfield and Hallowell. This, in turn, qualifies the project for a further estimated $73,80 in provincial grants if the applications of all municipalities are approved.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce has stated that application has been made to the Ontario government for arena and community centres grants. These would pay 25 per cent of a capital expenditure, or a maximum of $20,000 for the two grants combined for any single municipality.

Delbert Boyle has commented that he is "especially pleased" by county council's decision to grant $154,000 to the project.

"It's gratifying to know they realize the importance of two areas in the county," said the chairman.

Prince Edward's second arena, The County Centre, is located in Picton and, following the fire that destroyed Wellington arena last year, ice time was made available to hockey teams from that area.

Organizations and service clubs throughout Prince Edward County have supported the Wellington arena fund drive through their contributions.

Many Tennis Courts in City

For all you exercise bugs and those looking for a great way to lose a few quick pounds, the city is once again running a summer tennis program.

Facilities this year are available at the Dick Ellis Rink, Quinte Secondary School and Queen Victoria School. Registrations will take place at these sites on June 27, 28, and 29 respectively, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 3 to 4 p.m.

Class times and locations will depend on registrations.

Fees are $3 for children (under 18) and $7 for adults.

Registrations also take place from June 25-28 at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street.

For those who are really serious about the game or who are really interested in learning, the city also runs a program at the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club located at the corner of Dufferin and Queen Streets.

Membership are $20 per family, $8 for seniors and $15 for students. If you are enrolled in school in a grade below nine you are considered a junior and membership is $2.

The court fee at the club is $1 per afternoon or morning.

Registrations are taken through the Recreation and Arena Centre on Pinnacle Street.

Guaranty Trust SOLD

As Good As Sold

The Guaranty sign is a guaranty of fast action.

That doesn't mean our realtors will rush you into anything. Far from it. Before you put your house up for sale we'll do a free evaluation that will help you determine exactly how much you should be asking for your house. And we'll give you pointers on how to show off your house to its best advantage.

We also do more than put a FOR SALE sign outside your house. We handle all the advertising and promotion, you'll need to attract the right buyers for your house. Through our own exclusive listings or through the Multiple Listing Service.

Then we'll give you weekly reports on what we're doing to sell your house. More than anything else, we make sure that the people we bring to look at the house are serious buyers, not just sightseerers curious to see what's available.

Guaranty Trust is in the mortgage business. We can probably help your buyer get the money he needs to purchase the house, without delay. At the same time, we can probably help you by arranging a mortgage on your own new house. Which gets rid of two of the biggest headaches you have in making a move.

Ulster Clergy Facing Agonizing Situations

BELFAST (CP) — Rev. John Glynn is a young Roman Catholic priest who makes no apology for the distaste he feels for the British people in general and for their soldiers in particular.

"But my dislike has never become hatred nor my priesthood a deception because of one incident which happened to me nearly a year ago," he said.

"I was walking down a street where there was a gunfight between some soldiers and snipers when suddenly one of the troops crouched in a doorway asked if I was a Catholic priest.

"My first instinct was to ignore him but then I said: 'Yeah. What's it to you?' He asked would I hear his confession.

"So there we knelt in the dust and dirt and bullets and I heard the confession of a fellow, frightened Christian."

To Father Glynn, this experience highlighted the immense and deadly tragic dilemma facing clergy of all denominations: How to preach and to practise the Christian ideal of love for all men in the midst of one of the most-bitterly divided communities in the world.

The churches, both Catholic and Protestant, have been severely criticized from many sides since the current violence began in 1969 for not doing more to stop it.

"But most of those who harp at us," said Rev. Sidney Callaghan, a Methodist minister, "don't know a damn thing about us.

"You can't lead people who don't want to be led and if you take too strong a stand on too many occasions, your congregation will dismiss you out of hand. You'll have to remain one of them, share their likes and dislikes."

Mr. Callaghan blames "Calvinistic puritanism" for creating many of the characteristics in Northern Ireland that make the role of the churches so limited.

He said this type of dogmatic religion was brought by Scottish settlers in the 18th century and while it stressed the virtues of hard work, honesty and sobriety it also taught people to compartmentalize the various aspects of their lives.

"The result," he said, "is that people of all religions see no contradiction between worshipping God and accepting his teachings at church on Sunday and bowling up a house or being unscrupulous in business on Monday."

For Rev. Francis Taggert, rector of St. Peter's pro-cathedral in the Catholic Falls Road, the problems are even more intractable.

"The saddest thing of all," he said, surveying the bombed-out wreckage around his church, "is that a Catholic British soldier can no longer come to mass here without being ridiculed, stoned or shot by the congregation.

But Father Taggert, like Mr. Callaghan and Father Glynn, stressed the importance of historical factors in explaining the relative impotence of the church.

During and after the French Revolution many royalist emigre priests fled to Ireland and dominated Catholic seminaries with their monarchist, anti-republican ideals.

"Since then, the republicans, especially the IRA, have always just assumed the church would be against them and most times they were right.

A pattern has developed, Father Taggert said, where IRA members simply stay away from church during a period of violence and return when it's all over. Attendance at St. Peter's has dropped to 10,000 from 18,000 in 1969.

"The other thing is that the IRA now feels it has to undermine the authority of both the church and parents, either of which might discourage young people from carrying out acts of terrorism."

The result, he said, is a quickening erosion in the respect which young people have for most forms of organized authority.

"There have also been grave contradictions within the church itself. In the last war we made the great mistake of accepting the morality of the saturation bombing of German cities.

"Well, I ask you what's the difference between a bombing—usually with a warning—by an IRA man who believes he has a mandate from the Irish nation to fight and an RAF or Luftwaffe pilot bombing the civilians of a city without warning?"

Rev. Brian Brady, a lecturer in moral theology at a Catholic teachers' college in Belfast, also stressed that because of the French royalist influence, Ireland has developed into one of the "most anti-clerical societies in the world" making the position of a priest even more tenuous.

"When a man comes to me in confession and says he belongs to the IRA or has blown up a building and caused millions of pounds of damage, I can't brand him a sinner. It depends on his state of mind at the moment he did what he did. There is always a great division between a sin and a sinner.

"Thus, we can only preach what Christ has taught us and what revelation teaches about such things as self-defence and just wars and leave it to the individual to decide for himself how these apply to his particular situation."

Like Father Glynn, he shares many of the sympathies of his congregation while deploring their methods of violence. But too strong a denunciation of those methods would likely lose him his audience entirely.

Kissinger Plans Visit

PARIS (AP) — The Elysee Palace has announced that U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger will stop in Paris in July to see President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. Specific dates were not mentioned.

Laymen Can Try Monastic Life

SUBIACO, Italy (AP) — To get away from urban stress, there are weknds for baking under "the sun, skiing down the slopes or just lounging around in the country. And to get away from it all, there is a sojourn into monasticism.

In this sixth-century, hilltrop monastery 50 miles out of Rome, Benedictine monks offer a taste of their cenobitic living and contemplative solitude for those who have had enough of television, telephones, cars and bright lights.

You can unwind back to the Dark Ages—to "ora et labora," pray and work, in that order. The ritual can bring you a bit of what Tommaso More, a monk, terms "pax," or peace.

"To God and peace," Tommaso More, Italian for Thomas Moore, says to the urbanite, ushering him into the Monastery of St. Scholastica for a trip into a life and world as different as it is austere.

A layman can stay up to a month but it's up at 5 a.m., mass three times a day, pasta and wine and to bed at 9 p.m.

In between, as you meander through serene gardens and the apse and pillars of the chapel, the monks will let you think to your heart's content. There's all the time in the world to contemplate Plato, memories Kant and learn Gregorian chants.

Father Leo, in charge of laymen's retreat into monasticism, sees an increase in the number of applicants for St. Scholastica's 8 rooms, all reserved only for men.

"We get all types," he said, "people who like to read, who want to learn or who are fed up with the world they live in."

The price: up to you.

But the Benedictine monks expect a donation of no less than $10 per person a day for room and board, not including the Rome-and-back transportation.

The monks prefer that a layman be recommended by his parish priest, although even non-Christians are accepted.

At St. Scholastica few things are compulsory, but it is expected that everyone live up to the principles of St. Benedict, who became a hermit in a Subiaco grotto before moving on to Montecassino, between Rome and Naples, and establishing other monasteries.

The order of the day, besides praying and reading, is work. Benedictine monks have set up workshops, particularly in printing, which they introduced into Italy in the 15th century. Or one can try one's hand at bookbinding, carpentry, a day's guess at the weather observatory or looking after cows and fowl.

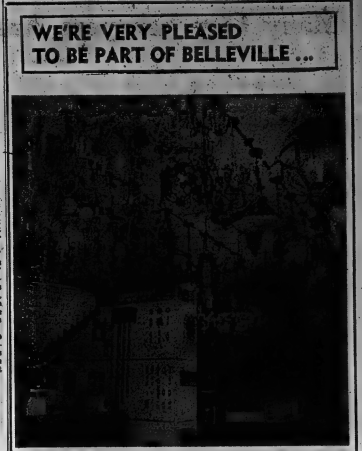
"There is one restriction," Father Mauro observed. "You can't talk during mealtimes." Actually, as you dine communally, you listen to what is called a lectura—a reading, usually passages from the Bible but which may also be ordinary newspaper articles or an opera libretto.

And in those who go back to their real world and are disappointed again, the adage is "porta patet, cor magis"—the door is open but the heart more so. One can return.

Real Estate Booming

Hastings County is one of the fastest growing real estate markets in North America. "Real Estate Sales and construction are booming, particularly in Belleville and Trenton, and the Township of Tudor," according to E. Marguerite Cooke, Vice-President of A. E. Le Page Limited, a local Realtor.

"Property transactions in Hastings County will total a record of $37 million dollars for 1,500 deals this year," Mrs. Cooke predicted. This 1974 total could compare with 1,921 sales for $77,535,792.00 in 1973. This is a increase of $19.4 million or 25 per cent.



In the first four months of this year, 1,322 properties were sold for $26,093,808.00 compared to 805 transactions for $22,286,968.00 in the similar January - April period of the previous year.

There is a trend toward home ownership in the Belleville area because there is an availability of semi-serviced and rural lots.

A. E. Le Page Limited is exclusive agents for Stanley-park Developments Limited, which is developing the Whites Road and Country Club Village subdivisions in Hastings County. Sales activity is brisk, particularly in Whites Road where single family detached homes on one-third acre lots are selling at the $30,000.00 range - about half the cost.

Industry and commerce have expressed great interest in expanding here but the current activity is in residential building. Although housing costs in Ontario are expected to drop substantially - about 20 per cent - this year in the wake of tight credit, gage rates, the Belleville area should experience a good year of house production.

Shortage of Workers Is Critical in North

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The shortage of people willing to work in the northern wilderness for oil and gas companies is reaching crisis proportions, says Bill Knutson, president of Precambrian Mining Services.

Working conditions are far from ideal, with swarms of mosquitoes and blackflies in summer and sub-zero temperatures in winter.

But there are attractions for those who can work as labourers or skilled hand-claim stakers, said Mr. Knutson.

Wages in the bush brings the advantages of getting away from it all without having to shake a year-round withdrawal from civilization.

Those who can supplement their income by hunting or trapping can support themselves by working six months a year.

Daily pay for bush work runs about $46, which includes transportation, tent accommodation, food and all other expenses, even cigarettes.

Employment goes on all year, except during breakup and freeze-up when only many things can go wrong, said Mr. Knutson.

"There's nothing wrong with January and February. We do a lot of staking in winter. That's what keeps us going at that time of year."

Precambrian recently received a request from a junior mining company to do some staking and "we had a hell of a time finding staking here."

There's quite a bit of activity now and there is a shortage of people to work. If the temps picks up, men still have to be brought in from the outside."

Much of the current activity results fro misinformation released by the Geological Survey of Canada about possible uranium deposits north of Yellowknife.

Mr. Knutson said there probably are about a dozen good stakers in the Yellowknife area. Some stakers have become prospectors and made tens or hundreds of thousands of dollars. But most bush work now is being done by older people and they are becoming fewer.

"There's no doubt Indian people are better in the bush than white people," he said. "Always were and always will be."

But the young Indian today is no different from the white man. You still have to teach him how to survive in the bush along with everything else he has to learn about the job."

Trying to discuss with government officials the possibility of government assistance in training young people for jobs in the bush.

"The industry should not be expected to employ people at top wages and train them at its own expense entirely when training is paid for - everything else these days.

Despite the large number of unemployed in the Northwest Territories Canada Manpower provides no help in finding stakers. "They don't even attempt to fill the bill — although we do go there for labourers," said Mr. Knutson.

He added that many available labourers are alcoholics and are not sober enough to work until three days after they are hired.

Many times he paid a worker $1,000 in the morning and found him looking for $20 the same evening. "It all goes to taxi drivers and bootleggers."

Trapper's Income $67,000

SACHES HARBOUR, N.W.T. (CP) — David Nasogaluak is becoming a legend in his own time.

This year he has bagged more than 1,300 white fox. At about $45 a pelt, that's worth $67,000 for six months trapping.

But "trapping is not too easy a life," said Mr. Nasogaluak with a smile.

"Especially in 40 below and a 35-mile-an-hour wind. There's no daylight before Christmas. You pretty well have to know where your traps are."

It takes a week to make the 150-mile inspection of his trapliner. Another problem is the cannibalistic nature of the white fox, which will eat its own kind when they are caught in the traps.

Finally, the fur must be handled many times: "You have to set the trap, catch the fox, take it out, skin it, flesh it, thaw it, stretch it, clean it with corn meal and flour and sack it."

So he figures the income is well earned. "If I made under $6,000, I won't live a good life."

He said his four snowmobiles and truck are worth $9,000 and it costs $7,000 a year to feed his wife and four children.

The Los Angeles Herald-Examiner once called Mr. Nasogaluak "the greatest hunter in the North, possibly anywhere."

But there is something happening in the fur industry this season which is almost as remarkable as the harvest being reaped by the grandson of a Portuguese whaler and an Eskimo woman.

While fox, lynx and other furbearers are bringing record prices, thanks to European fashion demands.

There are reports of prime white fox pelts bringing more than $80. The average at a Winnipeg auction in April was just under $50, giving $45 as an average return to trappers after auction commissions were subtracted.

The game management branch in Yellowknife says that last year the minimum income for a full-time trapper was $400.

There were 800 trappers in the territories who made $400 or more and only 97 earned more than $2,000.

This year the average should be more than $30,000 for the 11 full-time trappers who live in the small Banks Island community of Sachs Harbour.

Stop The Slaughter

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Audubon Society has asked its 300,000 members and the general public to boycott goods from Japan and the Soviet Union until those countries "stop their needless slaughtering of whales." The society said appeals to Soviet, Japanese and U.S. governments for a ban on whale slaughter have proved fruitless.

Plant Pathologist Serves Peace Area

BEAVERLODGE, Alta. (CP) — Dr. John Davidson won't make house calls to farms in this Peace River district but will come running to a farmer's field if he's told a new crop disease has been discovered.

Dr. Davidson is a plant doctor or, rather, a plant pathologist at the federal agriculture research station—the first since the station was founded in 1949.

Prior to his arrival in 1972, plant diseases were studied by visiting pathologists and samples were sent to laboratories elsewhere for study.

But the emergence of a disease that was causing major problems in one of the region's most important crops resulted in his appointment.

The disease that "made it essential that a full-time pathologist be located here" was ahot-spot in creeping red fescue, a grass.

The disease has become important only during the last seven or eight years and was detected on a field scale in 1967 and since then has been expanding rapidly," Dr. Davidson said.

"It is important because 95 per cent of the creeping red fescue seed grown in Canada is produced in the Peace River region."

He said the disease can result in as much as 80 per cent of the seed production being lost.

His research has a huge impact on the economic wellbeing of this huge area covering northwestern Alberta and the northeastern British Columbia region.

He also is studying a root rot problem in the oilseed crop, solin, a high linseed oilcher - for Peace country farmers.

Well-known in other crops, flax is not well-known in rapeseed and Dr. Davidson is working to provide the first complete description of the disease.

"It first came to our attention when a local farmer, Ken Lock, saw his rape plants were lifted out of the ground by strong winds.

"When he examined them he found only one inch or less left of the taproots. The root had disintegrated and root rot was the culprit."

Dr. Davidson said it has not yet been determined which of the organisms he has isolated caused the disease.

"But this is our top priority and will be the key to tackling the disease in the field."

After conducting his own survey of rapeseed fields in the Peace, River region, Dr. Davidson found only one field not infected.

"Unlike most root rots which tend to be confined in severity with successive cropping, this one can be bad where the rapeseed was never grower previously," he said.

Authority Hires Full-time Manager

The Moira River Conservation Authority is to have a full-time resources manager, rather than sharing a man with another authority.

John Johnston, Management Forester with the Tweed office of the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources, will become resources manager for the Moira authority as of July 2.

Before coming to Tweed, three years ago, Mr. Johnston spent a year in the Lake Simcoe and Parry Sound area.

Present resources manager with the Moira authority is Bryan Boyce, who has spent part of his time with the Lower Trent Authority. Mr. Boyce now becomes resources manager for the Lower Trent and the Crowe River authorities.

Mace Use Supported

James Driscoll, the chairman of Belleville's police commission, yesterday told 171 high ranking Ontario police officers that the provincial government should give serious consideration to allowing the province's police departments to use the chemical mace.

Speaking at the opening session of the annual conference of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police, Mr. Driscoll, a Belleville businessman who served with the Ontario Provincial Police for 13 years, told the policemen that mace is more effective than a nightstick or a gun.

He stated figures from a police suppliers catalogue that reports that 4,000 police forces in North America use mace with more than 250,00 occurrences involving the chemical — and not one injury was reported.

"I've tried it myself," Mr. Driscoll said, "and 15 minutes later I was fine."

Referring to the recent decision of the New York City police department to equip all of its members with .44 magnum pistols, Mr. Driscoll said he though the use of such powerful pistols would only give "the Linda Lovelace see-through look" to anyone shot with them.

"I think the mere effectiveness of mace poses a question of its use," Mr. Driscoll said. "Do you want to see the "see through look' in a smashed skull?"

Vitamin Folly

Mothers who purchase fruit flavored or animal shaped vitamin supplements for children are buying expensive nutrition, says Consumers' Association of Canada. These tablets cost two to three cents more per tablet than ordinary shaped, plain flavoured supplements that contain the same nutrients. Barrels Still Distillery Essential

Two Workers at Corby's Roll a Barrel Onto Truck Headed for Montreal

An Important Part of the Whiskey Making Process Is Tapping the Barrel

When they talk about rolling out the barrel at Corby Distilleries in Corbyville, sometimes it's the average man on the street who can benefit.

That is if he is in the market for a barrel, empty of course, after they have used up their 25 or so years usefulness. A person may purchase a 45-gallon wooden barrel from Corby's for $5 plus tax. If a larger size is needed, there's a 52-gallon barrel available for $6, plus tax.

Jim Dunlop, assistant personnel manager at Corby's, said the company sold a total of 625 barrels last year.

And the reasons people buy them are as diverse as the Corby products.

At Carlette, a foreman at Corby's who handles the selling of them as part of his job, said the strangest request a buyer had was to use it for a wooden planter for roses . . . inside her apartment. "She had holes drilled in the sides and planted rose bushes in each of the holes," said Mr. Carlette.

Another buyer comes down regularly from Peterborough to buy about 20 or 25 barrels a year. He uses them to raise dewworms in. "Apparently," said Mr. Carlette, "the worms seem to be attracted by the wooden barrels, maybe it has something to do with the odor. Anyway, he heads up the barrels in a bus and takes them home. He feeds the worms leaves and corn meal."

"But as a rule most people buy them to use them as planters," said Mr. Carlette. "They cut them in half and plant flowers in them. At one time, they were bought mostly for making wine in. Now it's for flowers," said Mr. Carlette, who himself has some at his residence for this purpose.

Other uses that barrel customers have mentioned have included one of having seven barrels serve as living room furniture.

"We had a school teacher come in once," said Mr. Carlette, "and she bought seven large barrels and made them into four chairs, two end tables and a coffee table."

"One man came in and bought a barrel to make into a bar while another man turned a barrel he bought into a doghouse," added Mr. Carlette. "Another person turned a barrel into a stereo cenire, complete with AM-FM radio, speakers and a tape deck," he said.

While some of the barrels come from a factory that manufactures them out of oak in Waterloo, the ones that need repair and reconditioning are sent to Minnesota. The majority of barrels are used ones which come from the United States.

Some repairs can be made at the plant in Corbyville and there is a cooper there to handle this part of the job. He has an assistant and sometime is employed as a driver or one who tightens the hoops on the barrels.

Altogether, Mr. Dunlop estimated that there would be about 19,000 empty barrels at Corbys. An empty 45-gallon barrel would weigh about 180 pounds while the larger 52-gallon barrels weigh about 150 to 160 pounds.

The average lifespan of a barrel can be quite a long one, Mr. Carlette, to illustrate this point, scraped away some peeling paint from the top of an older barrel to reveal a date of 1942, the year it was manufactured.

"Yes, I'd have to say that the woman wanting to use the barrel as an indoor rose planter had to be my strangest request," said Mr. Carlette when asked the question, "It's good that they have the double doors to get into apartment buildings or I don't know how she would have got it in," he said.

Lesser Leagues Active in Area

As well as Senior 'A' and Junior B calibre hockey in Belleville, the area also boasts three leagues operating in the city and surrounding territory for men. There is also a ladies hockey league operating in the area with one Belleville representative.

The Quinte Hockey League, which has operated for many years, is regarded as the top men's league in the city, with many former senior and Junior B calibre players in action.

The league generally operates with four teams in its fold, although it has gone as high as seven in former years.

The Gas House Hockey League is generally regarded as a recreational league, although competition is kept in mind for all of the play.

Eleven teams saw play in the league last season, with Mead Johnson, league and playoff champions defeating Rath's Dairy, Quinte Leage Champs, in an exhibition game for the "Championship of the City".

The South Hastings Hockey League, which plays out of Trenton, has six teams, operating on a basis such as the Gas House League. The two leagues met in a mid-season exhibition all-star game, with the Belleville boys coming out on top.

The Quinte Ladies Hockey League operates with six teams from surrounding communities, including Trenton, Picton, Shirley, Kingston, Brighton, and Belleville.

Picton Library Serves the Area

PICTON — Prince Edward County bookworms visiting Picton public library discover that at least, some of the best things in life are free.

For would-be book borrowers the library charges no membership fees. Residents from the county can browse at their leisure and borrow the books of their choice without charge.

Harness Track Well Attended

The Quinte Area boasts one of the smallest, but most successful class B harness racing tracks in Ontario in the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway.

The track is located at the fairgrounds, and has facilities for pari-mutuel wagering, liquor serving and grandstand which seats some 1,500 racing fans.

The Raceway offers fans an exciting card each Friday night, filling in between nights at Kingston's Frontenac Downs and Peterborough's Kawartha Downs.

Purses for races range from around $250 for lesser condition heats, to $800 for featured and invitation races.

As well for the first time this year, the Ontario Breeders' sires Stakes makes its appearance at the Belleville track, with four of the races going for $9,500 purses.

Several feature races, including the Calgary-O'Keefe Pace, the Bud Zebedee — R. Yankee Wann Memorial Pace and the Richard Ellis Memorial Pace and Trot are held annually, drawing horses from across Ontario to the local oval.

Manager of the track is Ev Gowsell.

Library worker Mrs. Ken Smith, explains that this free system is possible because of the library board grants given to the Picton library by several outside townships. This transference of grants permits residents of those municipalities to enjoy the facilities of the town library.

Mrs. Smith reports that the library has more than 30,000 books on hand for circulation, including reading material for youngsters and adults. There are also 52 periodicals available in addition to 150 films, more than 100 film strips, four 16 mm projectors and one combination film strip and slide projector. There is also a micro-film reader and 23 micro-films.

Residents outside the town of Picton may find it more convenient to borrow from the excellent selection of books at Wellington public library or Bloomfield public library.

Downtown Businesses Offer Complete Variety

While the emphasis of this edition has been mostly on the industrial role of Belleville, the commercial core of the city is just as important.

Shoppers have a choice of buying whatever they need or want at the Quinte Mall, the Belleville Plaza and downtown.

The downtown area itself has taken on a new look in the past year. The Bank of Nova Scotia officially opened its new quarters on the corner of Front and Victoria, moving from its previous location on Front Street.

Another store that moved to new quarters in the past year is the Red Shark, a store dealing in men's apparel. And while Loblaws moved out of its downtown location, Murray's Foodmaster came in to fill the need for a grocery store in a central location.

Also moved downtown is Shane's Boutique, which shifted from its Belleville Plaza location to one on Front Street.

Other changes downtown included licensing of the Belmont Restaurant and the modern renovations made to the Crystal Hotel.

New members of the downtown family within the past year included Tropical Gardens, the Esquire Men's Shop and the Photo Chalet.

A sidewalk sale was held in July and will be held again this year.

Working for improvements in the downtown core is the Downtown Businessmen's Association, headed by Bruce Lynch of Ed Logan Jewellers, who themselves moved in the past year from a Bridge Street East location to one downtown.

Tops Drug Mart also moved to a new location in 1973.

All in all a busy year for downtown, Bruce Lynch says he foresees a busy summer ahead for all merchants downtown.

Vacation Business Expects Big Year

This could be the biggest summer for vacation business in years for Hastings County.

"Last year our resorts were 90 per cent full in July and August," says Vera McMurray, Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council President.

"This summer I think most of our resorts are going to have all they can handle," he says. "This year they could be even turning people away."

Reason for the optimism is the big response at tourist promotion shows. Both at the Toronto Sportsmen's Show and a similar event in Columbus, Ohio, response to be Hastings pitch was "tremendous — more so than we ever had before.

"People kept us on the bounce asking for information about the area," said Mr. McMurray.

The district has been increasingly opening up to tourism and vacationers in recent years — much of it caused by better roads through the back country, once the retreats of only the most ardent fishermen.

The Hastings area should reap the benefits as people, with more vacation than ever, desert the big cities "in droves" said Mr. McMurray.

The provincial highways ministry has been active in improving road communications, said Mr. McMurray.

However, as president of an private tourist enterprises, he has no beef against provincial authorities.

On busy weekends when provincial park camping areas are full, the government cautious the public accordingly. Yet, it never emphasizes that many private camping grounds are available near the parks, complains Mr. McMurray.

This means many people may remain home in the urban centres, however, there are outdoor facilities available, he says.

Preliminaries Said Essential

The newly elected president of the Crown Attorney Association for Ontario yesterday told the province's leading policemen that he disagreed with a recent suggestion by the Law Reform Commission that preliminary hearing be done away with.

Speaking to a panel discussion at the opening session of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police annual conference in the Four Seasons Hotel, Hugh Ward, the Crown Attorney for Kent County, told the conference's 171 delegates that he "was very much against" any suggestion to do away with preliminary hearings and felt that "any such recommendation should be discouraged."

"I am very much against that suggestion myself," Mr. Ward told the policemen. "I feel that we have to consolidate the evidence of a witness by a preliminary hearing."

Mr. Ward noted that in cases where a witness was out of the country, was too ill to attend a trial or had died, his evidence could be read into a trial, provided it had been taken at a preliminary hearing in the presence of the accused person.

Mr. Ward made his remarks in answer to a question from Chief Albert Sherman of the Niagara Regional Police.

Chief Sherman had asked Mr. Ward what the Crown Attorney Association was doing to prevent defence counsel from turning preliminary hearings into "full dress rehearsals for the defence."

He suggested that defence counsel in Ontario were "turning preliminary hearings into examinations of discovery" and were, thereby, making them costly.

Standard Uniform Urged by Police

All of Ontario's policemen may soon be dressed in uniforms of a standard style, color and design, if the provincial solicitor general's department decides to act upon recommendations made by the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police.

Police Chief C. R. Johnston, president of the Association, said yesterday that standardization of police uniforms and vehicles throughout Ontario is necessary to distinguish policemen from security guards, investigators, and "even truck drivers."

The Police Chiefs' Association has recommended that the government introduce a uniform style, color and design for all of the province's police forces, with a distinguishing red hat band for identification.

Chief Johnston also said he would like to see all police cars in the province painted blue, white or yellow.

"We feel the yellow cruiser is easily recognized, especially in traffic detail," Chief Johnston said.

Last week the uniform rank standardization committee of the association met in Toronto with members of the Ontario Police Commission, the Police Association of Ontario and advertisers.

The police commission is preparing a brief based on the group's discussions to present to the solicitor general's office.

Chief Johnston said that he is "hopeful and optimistic" that the recommendations made by the association will be implemented by the government.

Regional Government Not Automatic: Rollins

The proposed study dealing with possible municipal restructuring in the Belleville, Trenton, Hastings area would not bring on regional government.

This was the assurance given Tuesday to Hastings county councillors by Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins who said the right of veto was to be forced on local municipalities.

As an example, Mr. Rollins cited the case of Prince Edward County where a one-tier government had been proposed but was now being delayed in the face of local objection.

At the same time, the Hastings riding member said he was opposed to regional government and suggested that restructuring was a form of regional government.

The member had no comment on the proposed study for municipal restructuring. Belleville and Trenton are asking for such a study but the county will not make a final decision until its September meeting.

Speaking on another matter, Mr. Rollins said he did not agree with a government department statement that there were no general deficiencies in the design of 37 Highway on which there appeared to be more than the normal number of accidents.

Referring to the recent traffic death of a young school boy north of Corbyville, near the 5th concession of Thurlow, Mr. Rollins claimed deceleration lanes were required at this point.

Municipal Reshuffle Decision Is Deferred

Hastings county council will make a decision at its September session whether to join with Belleville and Trenton in a request for a provincial study on municipal reform for this area.

The study, already requested by Belleville and Trenton, would take in the two urban municipalities and all of the county.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen, chairman of the county council municipal reform committee told council Tuesday morning that her committee had met with Belleville and Trenton representatives to discuss the possible study.

Under guidelines for the proposed study, there could be recommendations either to add or delete an administrative area. Both Belleville and Trenton were said co-operative in that no splitting or boundary boundaries is suggested.

Personally, Reeve Allen said, she did not feel a study on reorganization was needed at this time although both Belleville and Trenton representatives felt there was some urgency.

In other business, council went along with the request of Belleville General Hospital for permission to purchase more than 20 residences in the Bayview Heights area east of the hospital.

A letter from hospital executive director Phillip Rickard said the properties were needed for future hospital expansion. The properties would be purchased as they came on the market with funds from the Sills estate and at no cost to the county.

Council concurred in a Pittsburgh township resolution asking a change in provincial regulations to allow municipalities to charge up to one per cent per month penalty for non-payment of taxes.

Marmora township Reeve Granam Bell moved concurrence, stating that in his municipality officials sometimes had difficulty in locating non-resident taxpayers who moved without leaving a forwarding address. Increased penalties for non-payment of taxes might encourage more co-operation, he said.

Council concurred in a resolution from the Municipal Engineers Association seeking provincial legislation to require industrial and commercial businesses to seek approval of design and fabrication of equipment from the Ministry of the Environment in cases where receiving waters would be affected by the resultant discharge from such equipment.

The resolution also thanked that approval be obtained from municipalities where municipal sewage systems would be affected.

Council took no action on a resolution from the Municipality of Peel protesting to the Ontario Hockey Association the apparent lack of control and physical violence allowed at a Junior B final game between Bramalea and Hamilton.

All Right Here

Last week a French-speaking Belleville resident quarrelled with the local practice of unilingual election forms, saying more than five per cent of Hastings riding is French speaking.

Andre Mercier, responsible for the inquiry, said: "I wouldn't have raised all the fuss if I could have gotten the correct information locally."

The Hastings Returning Officer couldn't give me the right information so I went right to the top," Mr. Hamel's office, he said.

Mr. Hamel, drawing information from the 1971 census (the most recent) said there was not sufficient French-speaking people in the area to make necessary bilingual forms.

"I am satisfied, said Mr. Mercier. "The law is the law and I am willing to abide by it".

Oldest Industry Thrives

TWEED, — Canada's oldest industries didn't do so badly themselves this year, forestry officials here report.

The fur trade — which helped open Canada's wilderness — is still an active business in Quinte country's northern townships.

Latest ministry of natural resources statistics show fur trappers harvested close to 10,000 beaver pelts this past year in the Tweed forestry district.

Ministry officials say the total is satisfactory, although statistical comparisons are difficult.

An "administrative reorganization broke down the number — and size — of ministry forestry districts more than a year ago. The current tabulations are the first ever for the new Tweed area which covers townships in centre Hastings and Lennox and Addington.

Nonetheless, officials are favorably with other years.

For one thing, the immediate townships breakouts have high beaver populations, in fact, neighboring Elzevir and Grimsborough is believed to have the highest concentration of beaver anywhere in the world, says conservation officials.

During the winter — when the trapping season ends at its peak, trappers reported another record year for prices. At that time, one buyer said good quality pelts could fetch up to $40.00.

The reason has been booming world demand. In the forefront was Europe where, ironically, the need for furs 300 years ago helped lead to the Canadian wilderness and created the country's first export trade.

Ranking next to beaver on the trapline was the common muskrat. Some 3,200 of the small, furry rodents were trapped, along with 186 otter and 900 mink.

Long-range Plan

Centralized Garbage Disposal Recommended

Formation of a single county-wide agency for the administration and operation of a waste management system is proposed for Hastings, Belleville and Trenton.

This is the recommendation of Gore and Storrie Ltd., Toronto consulting engineers, who Tuesday evening presented the report of their $32,000 waste management study to a joint meeting of county councillors and representatives from Belleville and Trenton.

Formation of the county waste management organization is recommended as soon as possible, along with the obtaining of options on new disposal site properties within two years, setting up of a rural collection system and the phasing out of existing small disposal sites throughout the county.

Report recommendations include the consolidation of present waste disposal areas from the current 40 sites, and the establishment of a rural container system for the collection of rural refuse in conjunction with a partial rural collection system to replace the phased out small rural disposal sites.

Sanitary land fill would continue to be the most economical method of disposal but the system would be so designed as to be able to accommodate recycling or reclamation plants at some time in the future.

The county wide waste management study was authorized by the three major municipalities — the county of Hastings, Belleville and Trenton, on the recommendation of a joint committee set up to consider ways and means of effectively dealing with the mounting problem of waste disposal.

Committee chairman, Alderman Jean Smith of Belleville, told Tuesday night's meeting that while there was no problem in the county area at the present, it will be in the future unless proper plans were made now.

She said the disposal site now being used by Belleville and Trenton and a few other municipalities had a life of only seven years.

Prompt action on the study recommendations was necessary to avoid future problems.

"This is only the first step," Alderman Smith said, referring to the waste management study and the report recommendations.

She urged councillors to talk the matter over at the local level.

"We do have to have some kind of an organized program," she said.

G.M. Wood, supervisor of the Ministry of the Environment waste management branch, told councillors that all that had been done to date was to place a document before them with recommendations.

If councils did not like the target areas for recommended disposal sites, they could be moved 40 miles if it was so wished.

"But it would cost you more money," he warned.

He said the study was merely a step toward a final solution of the garbage disposal problem. Sanitary land fill was not necessarily the final answer. Re-use, reclamation and recondition were goals to be strived for if economically feasible.

The study report and recommendations were presented by Ron A. G. Simmons, Gore and Storrie engineer, who said the conclusion reached by the consultants was that the most efficient and economical method of handling, transporting, treating and disposing of solid waste from the study area was with centralization of facilities and operation on an area basis.

In the 20-year study period, the total of household, commercial and industrial refuse generated in the county area is expected to grow from the present 80,000 tons a year to 220,000 tons by 1993.

Future development of the study area is expected to remain mainly concentrated in the southern part of the county and no drastic changes in development characteristics are expected in the next 20 years.

Disposal of solid wastes on land was considered to be the most economical for some time in the future. Mr. Simmons said total refuse generated in the county field well below the economic limits of central reclamation and other disposal methods.

Centralization of disposal sites would see the gradual phasing out of the present 40 and the use of only four major areas — one in the north of the county in the Bancroft area, two in the Belleville, Trenton area and a third in the Moira area.

Mr. Simmons estimated that 900 acres would be required to handle county garbage for the 20-year period.

But apportionment of costs for the program is likely to result in some serious discussions at the local government level.

Estimated capital costs for establishment of container centres, phasing out and landscaping of disposal sites, and establishment of new sites is estimated at more than $3 million, with annual costs, not including urban collection, ranging from $204,000 in 1975 to $1,134 by 1983.

For the second 10-year period — ending in 1993 — operational costs would remain fairly static with a figure of $1,158,250 given for 1984 and just over $1 million for 1993.

On a household basis, total system costs for all Hastings for the 20-year period would range from $24 in 1976 to $53 in 1983.

In Belleville and Trenton total system costs per household would range from $28 in 1976 to $51 in 1983.

It was these household cost figures that brought a comment from one northern reeve.

"For some properties, that would be more than the total present tax bill," he objected.

Campaign to Curb Thefts

Starting in October, the people of Ontario will be bombarded with messages that tell them to "lock their car" and "take their keys".

The publicity campaign, which will utilize the facilities of radio, television and the press, will be sponsored jointly by the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police and the Ontario Motor League in an effort to cut down on the number of auto thefts in the province.

Deputy Police Chief B. Simmonds, of Metro Toronto, unveiled the campaign at the Four Seasons Hotel here yesterday afternoon while delivering the annual auto theft committee report at the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police conference.

"The auto theft committee members felt that if the habit of locking your car and taking your key is accepted by only a percentage of the drivers, the opportunity of those interested in auto theft is reduced considerably," Deputy Chief Simmonds said.

Referring to a study conducted in Toronto several years ago by the Ontario Motor League, Deputy Simmonds said that it was reported that 80 per cent of the cars stolen in Toronto had been left unlocked and 40 per cent of these stolen had been being left in the ignition.

Last year, in Metro Toronto alone, there was a total of 6,714 cars reported stolen. Police recovered 6,326 of those for a recovery percentage of 92.27 per cent.

Motorcyclists weren't quite so lucky, however, since police were able to recover only 41.98 per cent of the 343 motorcycles that were reported stolen in that city.

Deputy Chief Fred Oliver, of the Halton Regional Police, submitted a resolution to the auto theft committee recommending that the Ontario Police Association request that the provincial government asks in the police sponsoring a billboard publicity campaign.

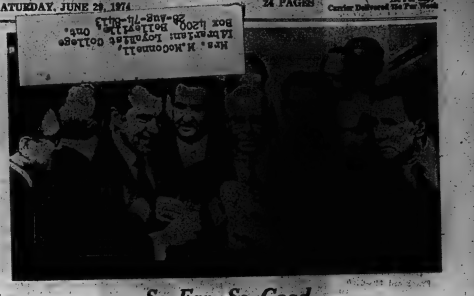
Ethiopian Army Seems in Charge

ADDIS ABABA (Reuter) — The Ethiopian armed forces seized control of radio stations and some other key points in land-locked Addis Ababa Friday night and early today but a ministry of information spokesman denied claims that cabinet ministers were being rounded up.

The spokesman said the cabinet was meeting with Prime Minister Endalkachew Makonnen, and denied reports by army sources that the armed forces had taken control of the country.

Government sources said the only person so far detained by the military was Minasse H. Aile, foreign minister in a previous government.



The information ministry spokesman said the armed forces were occupying government and private radio stations, checking passengers at the airport and guarding the telecommunications centre.

Apart from armed soldiers patrolling in jeeps, however, the capital appeared calm.

The armed forces, meanwhile, said no statements should be believed except those broadcast by the army.

The Ethiopian cabinet, after a three hour emergency meeting this morning, set up a special ministerial committee to talk with the armed forces, the government-owned Ethiopian news agency said.

The four-man committee was instructed to discuss the "latest developments in the country" and report back.

So Far, So Good

After signing of agreements on housing, energy and heart research between the United States and the Soviet Union Friday in Moscow, glasses are touched for a toast. From left are Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev, President Nixon, President Nikolai Podgorny, Premier Alexei Kosygin, and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Underground Test Ban Next on Summit Agenda

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon and Leonid Brezhnev took off for Yalta today after resuming arms talks and taking time out to sign a new agreement for exchanging economic information to facilitate trade between their two countries.

With further curbs on missile defence systems all but settled, they concentrated on prospects for an underground nuclear test ban. Experts were assigned to keep plugging away while Nixon and Brezhnev flew to the Black Sea resort for further discussions.

The new, 10-year economic pact—which does not need congressional approval—calls for an exchange of "relevant information" to promote business deals.

Key provisions of the new agreement include annual exchanges, of information and forecasts of basic economic, industrial and commercial trends, as well as help in the leasing of offices and homes for American and Soviet businessmen.

It was the fourth pact to result from the summit talks, but the first signed by Brezhnev. He had left the other signings to Podgorny.

President Nikolai Podgorny, Premier Alexei Kosygin and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko also signed accords concerned health, housing and energy questions.

Ronald Ziegler, White House spokesman, told reporters the trade pact was "an executive agreement, not a treaty."

BGH Nurses Can Strike

Nurses at Belleville General Hospital have joined with other nurses in Ontario to support a proposed province-wide withdrawal of services on July 22.

Donna Flanagan, BGH nurses' association president said the vote was taken Friday. There are 230 nurses on staff.

Similar support for strike action came in North Bay and Oshawa. The action follow a warning this week during negotiations between the Ontario Nursing Association and hospitals in the province.

Legislature Adjourned

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature finished more than 19 hours of debate in an unusually long Friday session and then adjourned for the summer.

Members, tired after extended sessions all week, stomped at their desks during a short ceremony giving royal assent to 25 bills, but applauded loudly as the speaker adjourned the house.

The house is adjourned "until a date to be named by the lieutenant-governor," but likely will be back in session early in October following Premier William Davis's scheduled visit to Italy.

Friday, the legislature spent 19 hours debating amendments increasing benefits under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Price Easing Predicted

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board cautiously predicted Friday food price increases could ease this summer.

"Last summer the prospect for food prices was generally gloomy," the board says in its fourth quarterly report.

"But this summer there is justification for a degree of optimism about an era of relative stability in food prices at hand, although one must always temper any such optimism with the qualification—'weather permitting.'"

The board, set up in May, 1973, also confirms what consumers already know—food prices are rising faster than their incomes.

Figures in his report show food prices in the first three months of 1974 up 11.3 per cent over the same quarter last year.

At the same time, personal after-tax income per person rose only 13.5 per cent.

If you deduct inflation from the rise in the average after-tax income, it boils down to only 3.5 per cent—less than a third the increase in food prices.

But the board concludes in its 43-page report that supply and demand are coming into better balance.

The report records "substantial increases" this spring in the prices of dairy products, beef, fresh fruit and vegetables and milk.

Helping to increase beef prices was the government blockade of U.S. beef imports; ostensibly to guard against meat treated with the growth hormone DES.

The ban on U.S. beef has caused the price of top-grade slaughter steers to jump from about $43.50 a hundredweight in March—before the ban—to about $47 in May.

Domestic beef production "is adequate to meet current Canadian demand but at a higher price than that which prevails in the United States' market."

The report says increases in fruit and vegetable prices have been largely seasonal because much produce is imported at this time of year.

"In large measure," says the board, "grain and field crop producers are the ones deriving the benefit from the current high food prices."

But it adds that in past years farm incomes have lagged behind other sectors, and an adequate return to producers is necessary to maintain supply.

It also says a higher income for farmers leads to more investment in buildings and machinery, which in turn helps manufacturing industries.

The board says it got just over 7,200 complaints or questions from consumers in the first five months of the year, the largest part dealing with the prices of sugar and milk and margarine, which consume only about one and two per cent of the average food budget.

Trudeau, Lewis Exchange Shots

The CANADIAN PRESS

Their campaign gun-barrels glowing hotly in the dying days of the battle for the July 8 vote, Prime Minister Trudeau and New Democrat Leader David Lewis exchanged long-range barrages Friday.

Mr. Trudeau hissed his attack in Ontario, using his opponent's own words for ammunition.

"Mr. Lewis is telling us not to put him into any position where he'll have to exercise the balance of power, because after 18 months, he'll just collapse," he told a rally in Sault Ste. Marie.

"He won't be able to stand the heat and the responsibilities, so he's telling you don't elect too many NDP candidates.

"The way to make sure you don't elect too many NDP candidates is to elect none!"

Mr. Lewis, 1,800 miles away in Grande Prairie, Alta., attacked Liberal campaign financing practices and took a potshot at the Conservatives as well.

He based his scathing assault on a published report, which stated the Liberals rely mainly on contributions from 75 major corporations whose annual profits exceed $5 million each.

These corporations "expect and receive huge favors in return," Mr. Lewis charged, adding that the campaign donation is proportionate to their profits.

"Is there any wonder that the Liberals and the Tories defend high profits."

The leaders' statements were indicative of the way the campaign, relatively sedate so far when compared with other years, has begun to heat up with only nine days left until election day.

Robert Stanfield, the Progressive Conservative leader, had a relatively peaceful day, travelling in British Columbia through the lush rich Okanagan Valley and the ruggedly handsome Kootenay Mountains before flying to Regina.

Bugs Out

OTTAWA (CP) — Nobody's admitting anything, but it is a good guess bugs are disappearing from the woodwork and telephone lines of a fair number of persons across Canada.

The hasty removal of the equipment probably is in preparation for Sunday—the day Canada's protection of privacy legislation goes into effect.

The legislation will be illegal for anybody to intercept the conversation of anybody else or make use of the information so gained.

The exception is the policeman or security official who has received permission from a judge.

It will also be illegal to possess bugging equipment and those who manufacture it and sell it to the police must be registered and have a licence.

Even the police will not be able to bug a telephone on the off-chance a criminal will use it.

There will be no bugging of unions by management, companies by competitors or lawyers by police—as happened not long ago in Quebec.

Private detectives, seeking the goods for the suspicious spouse or suspecting store owner, must detect without the bug. Nor can a government office be bugged—it happened in Saskatchewan recently—or a political party caucus—it happened in the New Democrats in the last Parliament.

The legislation provides for heavy penalties for violation of its provisions, either fines or sentences, and an abused party can seek damages in a civil court.

Rail Passes For Husbands

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian transport commission order published in the Canada Gazette this week authorizes railways to issue free rail passes covering husbands of female employees as well as wives of male employees. A long-standing commission order has prohibited railways to hand out free rail passes to employees' wives, husbands and dependent children.

But some female employees of the Canadian National Railways complained some months ago about what they considered discrimination against women employees.

So the commission has assisted the word "spouses" for "wives" in the order.

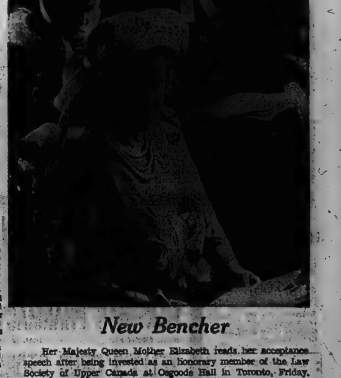
News Briefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Four major auto-makers have left this week facing the possible recall of up to 2.4 million of their 1972 models. The U.S. Environment Protection Agency said General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and Volkswagen that tests indicated the cars might be violating air pollution standards. The agency said, however, that no final recall will be ordered until the manufacturers have had a chance to reply.

Deficit Increases



The comments department said this week that the U.S. suffered its second biggest monthly trade deficit in May, when imports exceeded exports by $784.8 million. The deficit was the biggest since October, 1971, when a U.S. dock strike contributed to a gap of $815 million.

Paper Price Up

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit News, largest evening newspaper in the United States raised its price on daily editions Friday to 15 from 10 cents. The increase, effective Monday, is attributed to higher newsprint and labor costs. A spokesman for the newspaper said the Sunday edition will remain at 40 cents. Weekly costs of home delivery will be $1.30 in the Detroit area and $1.20 outside.

Blown to Safety

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A night-seeing helicopter used the wind from its rotor Friday to move a man on a rubber dinghy out of a whirlpool in the Niagara River. Edward Priestland, 36, of Welland, Ont., was pushed close enough to shore by the helicopters down-draft to enable a rescue team to reach the craft and tow it in. Mr. Priestland spent three hours spinning around in the whirlpool before he was rescued.

Opportunities For Youth Project

Five Students Take the Pulse of a City

The probing of Belleville continues as five students working under a federal Opportunities for Youth grant carry on their work.

The five are spending the summer finding out what the priorities of people are in the Belleville area.

The survey follows flexible guidelines but will deal largely with 18 priorities. These range from services for senior citizens, to Belleville's over-all appearance to civic protection.

Other areas to deal with d'ownetowr residentpeol, public tansportation, industrial and commercial planning.

This week and next week will be spent conducting the surveys. About 1,000 names have already been collected and represent all walks of life in Belleville. The 10-week project began June 17.

A person chosen for the survey is asked what, he or she considers to be the priorities of Belleville and how they should be dealt with as well as any problems which that exist in the city.

The person contacted is told about the project and then asked to complete a survey form which is later picked up by one of the students or may be completed on the spot.

The five students involved are all graduates from Centennial Secondary School. They are Mark Steward, Malcolm Cole, Drew Cousins, Randy Whitemen and Doug Preston.

The five carrying out the project would like to get as much community support as possible. They can be reached at the Chamber of Commerce offices on 162 Front Street or by calling 962-4568.

Scouts Presented With Canoes

The Boy Scouts at Camp Saganaska, in Thomasburg are the proud owners of three new fiberglass canoes thanks to the generosity of the members of the Order of Alhambra. The club members donated the three canoes to the Boy Scout Association during the weekend as the scouts prepared for their summer camping season. Here, Grand Jon Genereaux, the Grand Commander of the order, presented a cheque covering the cost of the canoes to camp chairman Doug Bicrat. Bill Williams, the past president of the Boy Scouts Association, Frank Domenico, Andre Mercier and Michael Naphon all look on.

In a Good Cause

Scott Martin, Trenton, and Marie Coyes, Belleville both 10, this week received their reward for helping boost dental care in Ontario. In province-wide poster contest, Scott won first-prize trophy, Marie, honorable mention. Awards were presented by Dr. Dennis Warwick, director, Hastings and Prince Edward public health dental program.

Scott's Poster Best in Province

Scott Martin has good reason for letting his teeth show in a big, wide smile.

Teeth have made him an all Ontario champ.

The 10-year-old grade 5 student of St. Mary's separate school, Trenton, is the winner of a poster contest sponsored by the Ontario Dental Association.

Reproductions of his poster will be distributed in schools across the province as part of Dental Health Week 1975.

His art entry deals with dental hygiene with the slogan "Brush Right and Smile Bright."

Meantime, Marie Coyes, also 10, and a student at St. Joseph's separate school, Belleville, was one of those chosen for honorable mention.

The prizes were presented by Dr. Dennis Warwick, director of the health unit's dental program and Dr. D.S. Smith, of the local dental association.

Both youngsters were among district winners chosen last February during Dental Health Week from across Ontario for entry in the contest finals.

The contest has been held for the past three years.

Glass Damage Totals $160.

The cost of replacing 17 panes of glass and a broken bus window came to run over $160 a spokesman for McGinnis Coach Lines said today.

Ten Dundas St. West firm was victim of vandals Thursday. Seventeen windows on the east side of the building were broken.

City police continue their investigation today.

Name Omitted

The name of Mrs. Patrick Bennett was inadvertently omitted from the list of retiring teachers honored by Hastings county board of education Wednesday night.

Mrs. Bennett taught a total of 22 year in Hastings county including two years in Tyendinaga, five years in Frankford and 15 years at Moira Secondary School. She was appointed head of the commercial department at Moira in 1964.

Mrs. Anne Hobbs taught for 31 years, not 21 years as previously noted.

AN OPEN LETTER TO ROBERT STANFIELD

For nearly 40 years I voted Liberal, but at the last election I voted Conservative only because of you, Mr. Stanfield. But in a sense I am still a Liberal even though I intend to vote specifically for you in the next election.

Why?

Because basically you are not a politician as we the public define them. Oh, you are trying hard to be a typical politician in order to survive, but still you are not a real circus-performing politician.

And what you are, Mr. Stanfield, is what Canada needs as never before!

I recall reading one time a definition of politicians. They defined politicians as unbelievable bunglers and/or horrendous liars and/or disgusting patronage seekers and/or supreme grafters and/or outrageous thieves — and to add insult to injury, before elections with vote-catching schemes politicians astutely bribe the public with our own money from the political (pardon me) public pot.

So you see, Mr. Stanfield, you do not qualify as a real politician as defined above. That's why, even though basically I consider myself Liberal, I will vote for you in the next election.

You are not good looking, nor do you have charisma. But since we are not bedding down with you, therefore you still deserve our votes even without good looks and charisma. Nor are you a superb orator, Mr. Stanfield. But very few of our top-notch executives are superb orators. You belong to this executive-type group, Mr. Stanfield, and this is what we need more than ever before in the history of our democratic system.

Why do we vote for politicians who are good looking and/or who have charisma and/or who are big patronage spenders? Because we know just what all political groups really are, no matter which one we vote for, determined to get their own political party into power 'by hook or by crook', and so what we do psychologically is to stupidly console ourselves by voting for politicians who are good looking and/or have charisma and/or mesmerize us with hypocritical oratory, hopefully to drown away our frustrations.

I once figured out, Mr. Stanfield, that we would not have any national debt if all the money was recovered that has been wasted by politicians as a result of their unbelievable bungling, patronage, grafting. Politicians are the curse of our democratic system, yes of all other systems too since recorded time. The name of the game, politically, has been particularly of recent years to drastically increase the size of the public pot, because the larger the pot then the more there is to skim off with greedy political hands. We were really outrageously conned with Benson's White Paper in the revamping of our tax system, when the Liberals politically true to style horrendously lied to us that it definitely would not increase the tax bite out of the public hide, because now the politicians are allowing us our hard earned money to waste with abandon from the drastically increased 'take' that now comes out of our pockets.

So all you have to do, Mr. Stanfield is to make one single fulfillable promise, and everything else desirable will in due course fall into line — to drastically remedy our soaring inflation rate within our own Canadian borders — to noticeably remedy our unemployment rate — to chop back drastically on the monstrously increased number of bureaucrats in Ottawa — to drastically reduce our taxes: etc., etc.

Just promise us, Mr. Stanfield, that you will, as our next Prime Minister, set up the machinery to wipe out our national debt within 25 years, and the only way you can do this is to include in that promise of yours to stop unbelievable bungling, patronage, graft in politics — at least to the extent that the money saved will wipe out our national debt within 25 years. Give our Auditor-General unlimited powers to enable him to ferret out and stop the raping of the public (not political) pot. If Maxwell Henderson, our former Auditor-General, is available he could from what he knows provide superb assistance as a consultant to now go all out.

You, Mr. Stanfield, are looking for a solid, sensible and above all honest platform. Here it is! You are looking for a way to capture our imagination (without good looks, without charisma, without orstory). Here it is!

Besides, from the total cash flow of earned incomes from all corporations and from all individuals, of this the total cash spending of all levels of government (federal, provincial, municipal) has soared to an unbelievable and horrendous 50 per cent plus (including the bungling, the patronage, the graft). As Prime Minister, Mr. Stanfield, it is imperative that you not only stop but reverse this horrible trend, if allowed to continue on its present upward bulldozing trend, will unquestionably wipe out the freedom of the people, leaving an iron-fisted central control through the complete direction of our finances in the hands of a small absolute ruling group, or even one individual.

You do this, Mr. Stanfield, and you will go down in history, in the nick of time for us, as the saviour of our democratic system, wiping out the political cancer that has started to and will unquestionably destroy this democratic system of ours. You can make Canada the envy of the entire world, and this could be a long time repeatable job for you, Mr. Stanfield.

TO EVERY CONCERNED CITIZEN: IF YOU REALLY WANT TO BUILD-UP A GROUND SWELL BY THE RE-PRINTING OF THIS LETTER IN ONE NEWSPAPER AFTER ANOTHER, THEN YOUR CONTRIBUTIONS ARE A VITAL NECESSITY. I HAVE SPENT FAR MORE MONEY THAN I EVER INTENDED ($2210.00). STANFIELD IS OUR ONLY HOPE, THE OTHER TWO ARE WORSE THAN USELESS. BY CASTING ASIDE ALL POLITICAL AFFILIATIONS (AS I HAVE DONE), WE CAN RISE UP AND SHOW REAL 'PEOPLE-POWER' BY CREATING A LANDSLIDE WIN AND THEREBY DRAFTING STANFIELD TO ENABLE HIM TO ACT (ON OUR TERMS) FOR THRIFT & HONESTY & EFFICIENCY, TO BE ESTABLISHED AT ALL GOVERNMENT LEVELS ACROSS THE LAND — TO EFFECTIVELY SOLVE OUR PROBLEMS! THE ALTERNATIVE IS DISASTER! THE STAKES ARE HIGH! WE MUST ACT TO FORCE THE POLITICIANS TO SERVE US!

THE PEOPLE SPEAK OUT

SAMPLE COMMENTS RECEIVED IN RESPONSE TO THE ABOVE LONG LOG AD.

This is a perfectly marvelous and timely article. The most accurate assessment I've seen.

I agree with the above. It is big government spending and big government waste that causes inflation.

If only Mr. Stanfield would adopt such a policy — he would win in the forthcoming election.

Trudeau will go down in history as the all time ruthless spender of the taxpayers' money.

As a federal civil servant I am only too familiar with the colossal waste, bungling and abuse of privilege which permeates the civil service, and I support your letter to Stanfield.

To win, one must find a man who will put people and country miles ahead of his party.

It spades!

You have "stifled the wheat from the chaff" Mr. Stanfield is all wheat.

Hope that excerpts from above are pushed down people's throats from time to time. Highly concerned citizen.

We agree 100 per cent—we admire your spirit and wish you luck!!

We thought that we were the only ones who thought like this. Maybe there is a chance!

I couldn't agree more. Mr. Stanfield IS the man we need.

We agree wholeheartedly with what you say in your "ad" "This present Liberal Gov't. is without a doubt the worst gov't. we could ever have. Gutless, stupid and do-nothing.

Feeling Forgotten

"Out of sight out of mind" could be an appropriate term for some members of the electorate.

For instance, the interests of Canadian Indians have received little or no mention in the current election campaign. Indeed an Ottawa report in recent days noted that Indian leaders are growing impatient waiting for the various parties to outline their policies on Indian rights; there is talk of them considering a challenge to party leaders to state their views on the issue.

Again, some of the men of the armed forces overseas, for whom voting day has come and gone, have been complaining they received no election literature or information from candidats.

In fairness, one wonders how candidates can cover every nook and cranny. It could be simply an oversight, although a costly one at that. We recall how the service vote in Hastings county a few years ago played an important role in one party's eventual victory.

A good party organization can obviate this kind of mental block where important segments of the electorate are concerned.

No To Smoking

Shame on those doctors at the Canadian Medical Association meeting in Toronto who as much as admitted they were overweight and smoked and drank more than they should and wanted the No Smoking signs taken down.

"It's hypocritical," they say of the smoking ban. Why so? Don't they agree doctors should set an example and, most important, ensure an extended life expectancy for themselves by not smoking and promoting fitness.

Besides, there is nothing worse than a roomful of conference delegates immersed in a haze of tobacco smoke.

Certainly a majority of the CMA people must have thought so, for they decided by a vote of two to one of the 200 or so members of the CMA's general council that the signs stay up.

They went a step further with a resolution prohibiting smoking during the meeting because "physicians should set examples of lifestyles promoting good health."

Car Mad

The old joke about the Arab sheiks in their big cars is less of a joke these days. They and even the less exalted among the Middle East Arab population are among the dwindling numbers who go for the big ones these days.

Joseph Fitchett describes the auto scene in an article in The Christian Science Monitor datelined Beirut. The Arab appetite for big cars, he says, is likely to last and for a variety of reasons, including that the vast distances. The big cars, and they include American and British, are better air-conditioned, and besides there is nothing much else to do. Driving 30 miles for a meal is routine for people in Saudi Arabia or Kuwait. And for bored Arab males in cities offering few modern amusements, "cruising is a consuming passion."

Fitchett says large Arab families, "obsessively given to 'togetherness' on car outings, like to bus everyone from granny to babies in the same roomy vehicle." Likewise, rich Muslims bumble all their wives into the Cadillac or Jaguar.

Pictured with the article is a smiling 29-year-old Lebanese dealer, a handsome man, with the look of a Joe Namath. Reclining comfortably in an easy chair with his feet on the bumper of a Cadillac, he says he is on the way to the million dollar mark in sales this year.

And, just to show that people are not much different wherever they live, he says Lebanese "have gone off Cadillacs," which they associate with "nouveau riche people from Saudi Arabia." Now they prefer Buicks — "usually the long, gaudier models."

We can see from this too that not everyone is at war, or engaged in acts of terrorism in that fascinating part of the world.

While MPs Play It Safe

Veteran Senators Lash Out at Government Extravagance

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — If you want to hear it the way it really is, you have got to keep a sharp ear out for the Senate.

These seem to be unusually political, squeamish days for so many (of the candidates running for the Commons.

When they are not running from confrontation with controversial issues, they are qualifying everthing left, right and centre.

Must not mention bilingualism and the language question — no touchy; you want to be a racist!

Hoist high on the unemployment insurance scandal — too reactionary; so you are anti-welfare, eh?

Take it easy on that federal payroll overloaded with 500,000 public servants busy discovering new ways for the government to spend those $27 billion in taxes — too dangerous civil servants vote too, don't they?

Lay off anything the Commons might be doing in the house things up even more noncontiguously — too, well, provincial let us say; and who needs a premier for an enemy?

So a lot of the fun running for re-election and the other candidates trying to squeeze their way in play it safe — take to hard stand without, a softening qualification — and deal in easy generalities.

But not the Honorable Members of the Senate.

Maybe it is because those campaigning for membership in the Commons' wing of Parliament have got to win to make it. So carefree is the word.

The Senators long since have won their seats in Parliament's other wing, that great club for retired politicians and party bagmen in the plush Red Chamber. So they do not have to give a damn.

And maybe the fact that with age and experience comes political wisdom — and the courage to speak up.

Lend an ear to the Lakehead's great elder statesman, Senator Norman Paterson:—

He is 91, and is such solid shape — the Senate does that for you, providing just enough, but not too much work to bore you interested and active — that he checks into his office every morning just as he has done for the last 34 senatorial years.

It must have been Prime Minister Trudeau's reprimand to cabinet of fi...ter Manpower Minister Bryce MacKasey who ran up that $3 billion unemployment insurance bill that inspired the good Senator.

For not he has come with the public accountement — the is a life-long Liberal, too — that his gas go empty.

He diagnoses our economic troubles this way:

"We have run out of workers and I have run out of sympathy for those who will not work.

"And we can not continue this nonsense of subsidizing idlers."

Bryce MacKasey will not like that, although his successor as Manpower Minister, Robert Andras, probably not-so-secretly agrees.

Now about that fat federal payroll with its close to 500,000 drawing government and crown corporation cheques.

Not a word from the Prime Minister.

A qualified "they will be gone (he has not) said how many or who) changes at the top," from Conservative Leader Stanfield.

Silence, naturally, from New Democratic Leader David Lewis.

But from Senator Gratian O'Leary, respected elder parliamentary statesman who says he is 85 and acts like 40, a thundering warning that public service heads will roll in profusion.

He is convinced from decades of observation, that they are Liberal heads, and so the Conservative guillotine will roll "a devil of a lot of them".

Good.

"We'll find ways. Just replace them. Then all, Kaput."

And sidekick stick, says Senator O'Leary, "it we get in... the knife will fall on others."

If overstating is waste and extravagance, then Senator O'Leary has the distinguished seconder of the motion to economize.

Senator Arthur Laing, a Wiarton Liberal and former member of both the Pearson/ parliamentary governments — he has been privy to inside information — has declared that if the taxpayers knew even a small part of what goes on with the big federal spenders in Ottawa:

"There would be a hanging on Parliament Hill."

"...BUT WHAT POSSIBLE RETALIATORY MEASURES COULD THE AMERICANS TAKE?"

A Span Of 40 Years In Life Of A Queen And In A Nation's History

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The present visit of the Queen Mother Elizabeth to Canada suggests to us how close and yet how very distant was that late spring of 1939 when she as a young Queen and the late George VI spent several months among us crossing Canada by train.

The renewed proximity of that happy event in spite of the gathering storm of the Nazi war, has been the proximity again in Canada of the gracious lady the British now call "The Queen Mum."

When living figures from the recent past come back in vivid memories are revived, long forgotten recollections come to mind. I recall from my boyhood it was one of those glorious sunny springs. Days of late spring and summers were sunny when you were a boy), and that George VI had red hair, a surprise for the North Toronto lad sitting in the five bleachers built in front of our church on Toronto's Avenue Road for the fleeting glimpse at royalty.

I think it is true to say that any Canadian alive in both 1919 and 1939 would have seen little change of any great substance in the intervening 20 years.

Our cities were still small, isolated from each other and still slumbering in their Anglican or French-Canadian civic sleep. The great urban rejuvenation by the post-war immigrants and the innovation of external ideas moulding new city architecture and lifestyles were still a long way off.

The Canadian rural world would still have been familiar to the great Sir John A. Macdonald, especially so the cities where he held the famous political picnics which brought him in power so long.

Our shadow of Canada in 1939 was in no way alleviated by the depression then mercifully on the wane. Yet soon it would be swept away with the first great wave of industrialization to meet the war's pressing need and from which would emerge the Canada familiar to us and our children, of affluence, growth and social change.

But that spring of 1939 is a very, very long time ago in terms of the immense events which since have taken place in the world.

The worlds of politics, chronic wars, invention, social upheaval, outer space have moved us with unbroken speed far past that spring of '39.

The changes by comparison between the Canada of 1939 and of 1974 are staggering, reflecting the haste with which we have tried to remake our world.

A futurian supposing us which we have portrayed for ourselves in the movie Space Oydssey. The unknown of 2001 is closer to our thought processes, our expectation than the known and half-forgotten thirties.

And yet the young royal couple who waved to us across those fields and even have wanted by the depression must more than the lies of blood and the old empire, but a technological event that still would be well again some day.

Elizabeth and George among those British and Dominions spellbound through between years on our screens. Nor did the grim war already on our threshold ever tarnish those visions.

The years for some of them today, 2001 notwithstanding.

Borrowing Is Increasingly Costly

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The latest increase in the chartered banks' prime lending rate has confirmed the recent prediction of still higher borrowing cost in Canada.

The new prime rate of 11.5 per cent (up from 11 per cent) is the highest in history. Until 1967, Canadian banks could charge no more than six per cent nominal interest — although they managed to bypass that ceiling through some financial sleight-of-hand.

The new prime rate means that the most credit-worthy corporations will pay 11.5 per cent on bank loans — but that other corporations and individuals (apart from those who qualify for the special terms) extended to small businessmen and fishermen could pay much more.

Not only that. The banks contend that they don't have much money to lend, and that many would-be borrowers cannot be accommodated at all.

The Bank of Montreal, first to adopt the new prime rate, has said the increase "has been necessitated by a continuing strong demand for loans, and is in line with recent increases in the United States and other parts of the world."

The Canadian money market has been balancing precariously between upward and downward pressures.

Early in June, when the government of Canada brought forth its $600-million, two-part bond issue at par, the consensus was that the interest peak had been reached and that lower rates were ahead.

But by mid-June the mood of the market was pessimistic. The 9¼-per-cent 20-year Canada bonds dated June 15, 1974 — which had been issued at a modest premium before the issue date — were trading at a discount.

And by late June, they had fallen to 97.25 bid, at which price the yield was up to 9.79 per cent.

Here are the possible ramifications of this latest advance in the trend-setting prime rate:

— For the government, a continued drain on its already severely depleted cash position. As Canada Savings Bonds are redeemed by holders attracted by steadily rising returns on other investments.

— For corporations, still higher costs of doing business (especially for public utilities, which will be forced to pay interest of 10.5 per cent or more on the new bond issues that they must undertake from time to time ...

— For consumers who buy on credit, higher borrowing costs. Even the pull in housing, while the banks' prime rate has been rising to 11.5 per cent from six per cent, the interest on consumer loans at the banks has increased to only 13.5 per cent from 12 per cent. A further rise is overdue.

— For savers with money to invest, the highest yield in history. You can obtain a return of 10 per cent or more on highest-quality provincial bonds, for which there is always a ready market. If you are prepared to sacrifice some liquidity, your money can earn even more in a variety of bank and trust-company debt instruments.

LETTERS

Hastings MP Clarifies Views on UIC And Answers Critics of PC Chief

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Perhaps you will permit me to answer both Mr. Charles T. Hart and the letter from the Non-P.C. in the same issue. I have the feeling that Mr. Hart misunderstood my statements which I felt were quite clear. Having studied the UIC in great detail over the past 18 months and worked with them in many areas I am, I feel, more cognizant letter written to you pass on to Mr. Chatterton. I support a policy I support and a gentleman whom I respect and have known for a considerable period. How the Non-P.C. can be "fed up" with a person who has not yet been implemented is beyond me.

My policy is not radical, not particularly new and is not too difficult to understand for those who want to try.

Firstly, with regard to income, when wages have fallen behind prices for some years. No one has anything to worry about a frozen wage level, unless their income increase is by any substantial amount per year.

— In the purchase of goods and services they pay the share established in the economy that must necessarily add it on to the goods and services they buy.

They pay a large share of the income tax which provides the portion of the program paid for by the government.

While space does not permit a full review of the policies proposed by me and my colleagues, I would point out that without drawing benefits for a period of time (perhaps 10 years) he would no longer have to pay premiums. He could draw benefits if he became unemployed and would have to begin paying premiums only when he obtained work again.

This would benefit the many who work standard, 40-hour lives without obtaining benefits from the program.

Contrary to Mr. Hart, I am sure the public are aware that the UIC is identified by Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Mackasey, it is a major social welfare program. I felt it should be returned to a true insurance program for workers.

Before I leave this point I want to again repeat that the criticism I direct is towards the senior administrators, the cabinet and the act and not the employees of either the Regional UIC Office or the Hastings Office. They are conscientious, hard-working employees who labor under an extremely difficult situation.

It is not only been with their complete co-operation that my staff and I have been able to settle over the one thousand complaints brought to me and I am very grateful to them.

While I would not normally answer anonymous letters, as one by one who has not the guts or is too ashamed to sign their name I make this one exception letter written to you pass on to Mr. Chatterton. I support a policy I support and a gentleman whom I respect and have known for a considerable period. How the Non-P.C. can be "fed up" with a person who has not yet been implemented is beyond me.

My policy is not radical, not particularly new and is not too difficult to understand for those who want to try.

Firstly, with regard to income, when wages have fallen behind prices for some years. No one has anything to worry about a frozen wage level, unless their income increase is by any substantial amount per year.

— In the purchase of goods and services they pay the share established in the economy that must necessarily add it on to the goods and services they buy.

They pay a large share of the income tax which provides the portion of the program paid for by the government.

While space does not permit a full review of the policies proposed by me and my colleagues, I would point out that without drawing benefits for a period of time (perhaps 10 years) he would no longer have to pay premiums. He could draw benefits if he became unemployed and would have to begin paying premiums only when he obtained work again.

This would benefit the many who work standard, 40-hour lives without obtaining benefits from the program.

Contrary to Mr. Hart, I am sure the public are aware that the UIC is identified by Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Mackasey, it is a major social welfare program. I felt it should be returned to a true insurance program for workers.

Before I leave this point I want to again repeat that the criticism I direct is towards the senior administrators, the cabinet and the act and not the employees of either the Regional UIC Office or the Hastings Office. They are conscientious, hard-working employees who tinued drain on its already severely depleted cash position. As Canada Savings Bonds are redeemed by holders attracted by steadily rising returns on other investments.

— For corporations, still higher costs of doing business (especially for public utilities, which will be forced to pay interest of 10.5 per cent or more on the new bond issues that they must undertake from time to time ...

— For consumers who buy on credit, higher borrowing costs. Even the pull in housing, while the banks' prime rate has been rising to 11.5 per cent from six per cent, the interest on consumer loans at the banks has increased to only 13.5 per cent from 12 per cent. A further rise is overdue.

— For savers with money to invest, the highest yield in history. You can obtain a return of 10 per cent or more on highest-quality provincial bonds, for which there is always a ready market. If you are prepared to sacrifice some liquidity, your money can earn even more in a variety of bank and trust-company debt instruments.

"A devil of a lot of them".

Good.

"We'll find ways. Just replace them. Then all, Kaput."

And sidekick stick, says Senator O'Leary, "if we get in... the knife will fall on others."

If overstating is waste and extravagance, then Senator O'Leary has the distinguished seconder of the motion to economize.

Senator Arthur Laing, a Wiarton Liberal and former member of both the Pearson/ parliamentary governments — he has been privy to inside information — has declared that if the taxpayers knew even a small part of what goes on with the big federal spenders in Ottawa:

"There would be a hanging on Parliament Hill."

"...BUT WHAT POSSIBLE RETALIATORY MEASURES COULD THE AMERICANS TAKE?"

A Span Of 40 Years In Life Of A Queen And In A Nation's History

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Thomson News Service

The present visit of the Queen Mother Elizabeth to Canada suggests to us how close and yet how very distant was that late spring of 1939 when she as a young Queen and the late George VI spent several months among us crossing Canada by train.

The renewed proximity of that happy event in spite of the gathering storm of the Nazi war, has been the proximity again in Canada of the gracious lady the British now call "The Queen Mum."

When living figures from the recent past come back in vivid, memories are revived, long forgotten recollections come to mind. I recall from my boyhood it was one of those glorious sunny springs. (were all late springs and summers were sunny when you were a boy), and that George VI had red hair, a surprise for the North Toronto lad sitting in the five bleachers built in front of our church on Toronto's Avenue Road for the fleeting glimpse at royalty.

I think it is true to say that any Canadian alive in both 1919 and 1939 would have seen little change of any great substance in the intervening 20 years.

Our cities were still small, isolated from each other and still slumbering in their Anglican or French-Canadian civic sleep. The great urban rejuvenation by the post-war immigrants and the innovation of external ideas moulding new city architecture and lifestyles were still a long way off.

The Canadian rural world would still have been familiar to the great Sir John A. Macdonald, especially so the cities where he held the famous political picnics which brought him in power so long.

Our shadow of Canada in 1939 was in no way alleviated by the depression then mercifully on the wane. Yet soon it would be swept away with the first great wave of industrialization to meet the war's pressing need and from which would emerge the Canada familiar to us and our children, of affluence, growth and social change.

But that spring of 1939 is a very, very long time ago in terms of the immense events which since have taken place in the world.

The worlds of politics, chronic wars, invention, social upheaval, outer space have moved us with unbroken speed far past that spring of '39.

The changes by comparison between the Canada of 1939 and of 1974 are staggering, reflecting the haste with which we have tried to remake our world.

A futurian supposing us which we have portrayed for ourselves in the movie Space Oydssey. The unknown of 2001 is closer to our thought processes, our expectation than the known and half-forgotten thirties.

And yet the young royal couple who waved to us across those fields and even have wanted by the depression must more than the lies of blood and the old empire, but a technological event that still would be well again some day.

Elizabeth and George among those British and Dominions spellbound through between years on our screens. Nor did the grim war already on our threshold ever tarnish those visions.

The years for some of them today, 2001 notwithstanding.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

Vincount Lascelles, son of the Princess Mary and nephew of King George VI, is killed in action in Italy. He adds another instance to the services which the House of Windsor has been rendering Britain in this war. Their Majesties the King and Queen have been very close to the heart of the people by their devotion and spirit of sacrifice and by the confidential which the royal line has given.

During the months of July and August the congregations of Bridge St. United Church and the Tabernacle United Church will join in services. The Rev. Dr. James Semple will be in charge of both congregations during July.

50 YEARS AGO

The congregations of John St. Methodist and Church and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will unite in services during the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hader and daughter are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen License, Albert Street.

Borrowing Is Increasingly Costly

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The latest increase in the chartered banks' prime lending rate has confirmed the recent prediction of still higher borrowing cost in Canada.

The new prime rate of 11.5 per cent (up from 11 per cent) is the highest in history. Until 1967, Canadian banks could charge no more than six per cent nominal interest — although they managed to bypass that ceiling through some financial sleight-of-hand.

The new prime rate means that the most credit-worthy corporations will pay 11.5 per cent on bank loans — but that other corporations and individuals (apart from those who qualify for the special terms) extended to small businessmen and fishermen could pay much more.

Not only that. The banks contend that they don't have much money to lend, and that many would-be borrowers cannot be accommodated at all.

The Bank of Montreal, first to adopt the new prime rate, has said the increase "has been necessitated by a continuing strong demand for loans, and is in line with recent increases in the United States and other parts of the world."

The Canadian money market has been balancing precariously between upward and downward pressures.

Early in June, when the government of Canada brought forth its $600-million, two-part bond issue at par, the consensus was that the interest peak had been reached and that lower rates were ahead.

But by mid-June the mood of the market was pessimistic. The 9¼-per-cent 20-year Canada bonds dated June 15, 1974 — which had been issued at a modest premium before the issue date — were trading at a discount.

And by late June, they had fallen to 97.25 bid, at which price the yield was up to 9.79 per cent.

Here are the possible ramifications of this latest advance in the trend-setting prime rate:

— For the government, a continued drain on its already severely depleted cash position. As Canada Savings Bonds are redeemed by holders attracted by steadily rising returns on other investments.

— For corporations, still higher costs of doing business (especially for public utilities, which will be forced to pay interest of 10.5 per cent or more on the new bond issues that they must undertake from time to time ...

— For consumers who buy on credit, higher borrowing costs. Even the pull in housing, while the banks' prime rate has been rising to 11.5 per cent from six per cent, the interest on consumer loans at the banks has increased to only 13.5 per cent from 12 per cent. A further rise is overdue.

— For savers with money to invest, the highest yield in history. You can obtain a return of 10 per cent or more on highest-quality provincial bonds, for which there is always a ready market. If you are prepared to sacrifice some liquidity, your money can earn even more in a variety of bank and trust-company debt instruments.

Hastings MP Clarifies Views on UIC And Answers Critics of PC Chief

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Perhaps you will permit me to answer both Mr. Charles T. Hart and the letter from the Non-P.C. in the same issue. I have the feeling that Mr. Hart misunderstood my statements which I felt were quite clear. Having studied the UIC in great detail over the past 18 months and worked with them in many areas I am, I feel, more cognizant letter written to you pass on to Mr. Chatterton. I support a policy I support and a gentleman whom I respect and have known for a considerable period. How the Non-P.C. can be "fed up" with a person who has not yet been implemented is beyond me.

My policy is not radical, not particularly new and is not too difficult to understand for those who want to try.

Firstly, with regard to income, when wages have fallen behind prices for some years. No one has anything to worry about a frozen wage level, unless their income increase is by any substantial amount per year.

Contrary to Mr. Hart, I am sure the public are aware that the UIC is identified by Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Mackasey, it is a major social welfare program. I felt it should be returned to a true insurance program for workers.

Before I leave this point I want to again repeat that the criticism I direct is towards the senior administrators, the cabinet and the act and not the employees of either the Regional UIC Office or the Hastings Office. They are conscientious, hard-working employees who labor under an extremely difficult situation.

It is not only been with their complete co-operation that my staff and I have been able to settle over the one thousand complaints brought to me and I am very grateful to them.

While I would not normally answer anonymous letters, as one by one who has not the guts or is too ashamed to sign their name I make this one exception letter written to you pass on to Mr. Chatterton. The measures taken to bring about stability will result from Import-export controls to support for Canadian producers and policies to increase farm production. All of these can and will be implemented through existing government departments and using existing staff.

As the anti-inflation measures will be taken to reduce government spending and balance the budget, increases in main programs such as expanding buildings, etc., are only helping to fuel the fires of inflation.

Canada worked in the early stages kept the rate of inflations to 3.2 per cent. These are the words of Mr. Chatterton, Ways and Means Committee of the U.S. Congress, Wilbur Mills.

"To cope with modern inflation, traditional methods of financial restraint will not be enough and something else is required, labelled variously as wages and incomes policy." This from Aubrey Jones, former head of Harold's National Board of Prices and Incomes.

The policy has worked cheap and effectively in the past. We must if we are to have a sound economy. If you are curious as to my commitment to free government waste spending, prices and incomes commissioner to pay, housing that is beyond the reach of most average wage-earners, interest rates that drain your resources then by all means leave things as they are and subject our children to grow up in a country where a dollar will buy something of value.

The main reason for my writing is the letter from Mr. Stanfield personal abuse of Mr. Stanfield; a man whose integrity and ability as a leader of a political loyalty are remains unquestioned. What I cannot tolerate is the stand condemning the language bill in Quebec? What do you expect Mr. Stanfield to tackle the problems of our Country rather than to be sure he gets elected?

Some feel that Mr. Stanfield's television personality leaves a lot to be desired. Maybe so, but I know him as a firm, honest, personable leader dedicated to a sound, humane administration in which people are important.

Again, if you like the television style personality, the down, the lover who gave the country legislation to prohibit football, a party founded on a growing wheat, to stop trains from carrying passengers, a party of Ontario, to allow increasing interest rates and prices, then by all means vote for Mr. Lo. your choice. Even so, I would never think on a personal basis any one of the leaders.

Personally, I have never been a Progressive Conservative.

Beef Mess Blamed On Ottawa

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Canadian beef situation is a good example of the mess that well-meaning politicians and bureaucrats can create.

Before the mess is cleared up, both consumption of beef and the price of the meat will probably be lower than before it began.

The beginnings were a combination of a U.S. price freeze on meat and a sharp rise in the uncontrolled price of feed-grain and protein supplements for cattle (a result of an ill-considered U.S. decision to sell excessive quantities of wheat to the Soviet Union).

Cattlemen in the U.S. held supplies off the market until price ceilings were lifted, and put large numbers of cattle out of feed lots, to be range-fed instead—a slower process.

With the end of the U.S. price freeze, fourth-quarter 1973 brought to the market an overwhelming of range-fed beef. By that time, housewives were substituting other meats for high-priced beef, and beef consumption failed to recover completely.

As always, the Canadian market has been closely affected by U.S. trends—even without a price ceiling here.

There have been differences of degree: Canadian beef prices did not weaken to the extent that U.S. prices did in late 1973, because our surtax on beef imports tended to screen out any bargains. And our per-capita beef consumption fell less than the six per cent U.S. decline.

Both U.S. and Canadian markets might have stabilized this year, since slaughterings have been running three per cent higher than in 1973, and average market weights are greater as well.

But on April 9 the Canadian market was closed to U.S. live and dressed meat, pending some U.S. assurance that American cattle shipped to Canada has not been treated with a growth-stimulating hormone called DES, which has been linked to cancer in animals and humans.

The U.S. reaction has been to ignore the DES problem, and to complain that the Canadian embargo was designed simply to maintain a tight market and high prices in Canada at the expense of U.S. cattle exporters.

The Berries: Big Find for Sharon Wright, 12, Ameliasburgh

Strawberry Crop Slow This Year

Cool weather has slowed strawberry output in the Quinte district.

In fact, says one major Belleville-area grower, the crop may not prove as plentiful as it might have been when its short season runs out.

As a result, demand is exceeding supply and this is reflected in higher prices.

Lyle Vanclief, of Willowlee Farm in Ameliasburgh township, supplies about 25 stores from Trenton to Belleville with groceries — in the district. He also ships the fruit out of the area.

But, he's been turning down orders since picking began in earnest this week.

Prices in stores he sells to have been ranging around 69 cents a quart — compared to 89 cents last year. The big brokers believe prices may have firmed, says the grower.

Rain has been no problem in a month that's seen plenty of precipitation. In fact, next week he may start irrigating. But more rain could also pose a problem of fruit and foliage rot.

The strawberry season is brief, lasting little more than three weeks.

So far, about 75 pickers have been kept busy at Willowlee. But if warmer weather brings the crop on faster in coming days, the workforce needed could increase to about 125.

Farm Income Up 72 per cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers harvested $3.22 billion for their products during the first four months this year, an increase of more than 72 per cent from the same 1973 period.

Statistics Canada reported Tuesday that total cash receipts to farmers rose in all provinces during the January - April 11 period this year. Last year, cash receipts during the four months totalled $1.87 million.

No deduction has been made for production costs, which also have risen sharply for the country's 360,000 farmers this year.

Cash receipts by province with last year's four-month figures in brackets: Prince Edward Island, $43 million ($28.6 million); Nova Scotia $31.5 million ($17.6 million); New Brunswick, $63.5 million ($33.4 million); Quebec, $295.8 million ($241.4 million); Ontario $779.7 million ($527.7 million); Manitoba, $345 million ($157.1 million); Saskatchewan, $982.3 million ($383.1 million); Alberta $584.9 million ($340.2 million); British Columbia, $97.8 million (?73.6 million).

2 THE TELEGRAM, Toronto, Sat., Mar. 2, 1968

OUR GIRL REUNITES FATHER, 'LOST' SON

After seventeen years Walter French, of Willowdale, meets his son, Wayne, at Toronto International Airport — thanks to Action Line.

When my son was four, my wife and I parted. I have not seen my son since she took him back to England. He joined the navy some time ago and I think he is on the H.M.S. Juno which will be docking in Jacksonville, Fl., this weekend.

I know what I ask is impossible, But I want you to find out where he is; get him a leave; and arrange him transportation to Canada. I will pay the fare. I just don't know how to go about it. Please, see what you can do. I haven't seen my son since he was four. I may never have the chance to see him again. Mr. W. F., Thornhill.

Well, now, things weren't very good in Jacksonville yesterday, the temperature was 52 degrees. But you know us, and especially our Miss Morgan. She worries about things like this. So she phoned to find out when H.M.S. Juno was to dock. And, she phoned H.M.S. Juno and got your son.

Then she went to the commanding officer, A leave was O-kay with him if she could guarantee your son back aboard by Sunday night. Without blinking an eyelash, she said she and the Government of Canada would make the guarantee. But then we got down to all those day-to day things that thwart all of us.

The big airline out of Jacksonville didn't have a seat. What to do? Well, there are other airlines. So she started phoning. Where? What do you do in difficulty? Rely on good old Air Canada. They came up with a flight plan, National Airlines out of Jacksonville to New York and Air Canada to Toronto.

But there was another problem. The father wanted to wire the son enough money to pay for the plane. Not enough time.

So Miss Morgan really got on the phones. It was okay if Air Canada wired National down there in Florida. Great.

Except there wasn't time to wire.

So she just got on the phone and got right through, eight minutes before flight time. National wasn't entirety convinced but they finally agreed.

Four minutes to flight time. The sailor finally got aboard with the engines turning over.

Meanwhile, two collect phone calls to the father.

Anyway, sometime last night Miss Morgan breathed a sigh of relief. Nothing more can happen. Then with only the composure of success, she presented the bills for all the phone calls.

It was a great ending at 10:40 p.m. at Malton last night. A once in a lifetime meeting of father and son was worth it.

Keep a Watchful Eye on Kids in the Pool

By ISABEL HUGGAN

And Lesley Ingraham

Having a pool in the backyard — be it a heart-shaped chaunty or a little plastic wader — involves a lot more than filling it with water.

People who own pools of any description have a moral and legal responsibility to keep their backyards safe.

Dreadful accidents can happen in the twinkling of an eye — but can be prevented just as easily.

To keep your backyard a safe and happy place to swim this summer, observe the following precautions and, pessimistic though it seems, always be prepared for the worst.

* * *

Keep a list of Emergency phone numbers by the phone and by the back door. These numbers should include your own doctor's number, the hospital, and the information that an ambulance can be contacted by asking the operator for Zenith 90000.

* * *

If you have a pool large enough for actual swimming, some kind of insulated resuscitator should be kept in the back yard at all times. The pole must be long enough to stretch at least half way across the pool.

* * *

Even if all you have is a shallow play pool for the children, never leave them alone in the water for a moment. A toddler can lose her balance, fall and drown in mere inches of water.

Inflatable rings in regular pools should always be removed, even if they're "good" swimmers.

MORE

Backyard Pools Take 2

Experts or not, adults should not leave children in that help is available if needed. A moment's lapse or a bumped head from a too-deep dive may require another person's assistance.

* * *

High sturdy fences around pool areas, are required through city bylaws. Although there are no laws which compel owners to be trained in first aid, knowledge like this is essential and easily obtained.

There are local courses in life-saving, and the St. John Ambulance courses give emergency care training too.

If you want information about taking a course in Belleville contact Lesley Ingraham, the Red Cross Water Safety Chairwoman for this area, at 477-3041.

* * *

Know the danger areas around your pool — corners, steps, and drop-off levels in deep pools — and makes rules regarding pool behavior. No running, no pushing, the usual sort of sensible regulations that public pools have.

* * *

Expect your children and their friends to abide by your rules. Just as important, make sure your children's friends are able to swim as well as they say they can. See for yourself that they can manage before you let them play in the "deep end."

* * *

Keep some sort of first-aid kit near the pool for the scrapes, insect bites and bruises that befall youngsters. Antiseptic and large band-aids that won't come off in the water are two necessities.

Teach your children water safety, and enroll them in a swimming program this summer so that they can feel confident in the water. Use the "buddy system" at your pool if there are more than four youngsters in the pool.

(Each person has a "buddy," for whom he is responsible, and who he must contact in the pool if a whistle is blown. A simple and game-like way of keeping track of a number of swimmers.)

* * *

The old scare stories we all grew up with about "getting fatal cramps if you swim after a meal" have been proven false. Nevertheless, it makes good sense to wait about half an hour after eating before swimming, just to let your meal digest and your body relax. You could choke or vomit on undigested food, and vomiting sputtering could cause intake of water.

* * *

Every person old enough to administer R should be familiar with mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration. Following are the steps for rescue breathing. simple, effective, and able to be used in any emergency situation, in the water or out.

1) Open airway by lifting neck with one hand and tilting the head back with the other hand.

2) Pinch nostrils to prevent air leakage. Maintain open airway by keeping the neck elevated.

3) Seal your mouth tightly around the victim's mouth and blow in. The victim's chest should rise.

4) Remove mouth. Release nostrils. Listen for air escaping from lungs. Watch for chest to fall.

REPEAT the last three steps 12 to 15 times per minute. Continue until medical help arrives or breathing is restored.

* * *

Knowing a procedure like rescue breathing could mean the difference between life and death for you and your family this summer. For further advice, obtain Red Cross booklet "Lifesaving and Water Safety" or contact Lesley Ingraham who will send it to you.

Bored as Receptionist She Becomes Broker

TORONTO (CP) — At 23, Louise Chervesky is one of the few people in Ontario to pass the real estate brokers' course and set up her own business.

Miss Chervesky operates two branches of Major Realty Ltd., one in the Borough of Etobicoke, one in nearby Mississauga.

"I've got lots of enthusiasm," says the woman who started business as a receptionist-typist at 18 when she became bored with school. She started as a $54-a-week receptionist, decided there was no future in being a clerk or secretary and returned to school, working part-time as a receptionist in a real estate firm.

* * *

"It didn't take me long to see that there was more money to be made as a salesperson and that they kept their own hours," said Miss Chervesky.

"The salesperson in the office were all men and they laughed at me when I said I wanted to sell."

* * *

At 20, Miss Chervesky received her licence to sell real estate, and sold a house the first day on the job.

She next qualified for her broker's licence, borrowed money from her mother and got a Canadian Credit Union and bought Major Realty Ltd.

Miss Chervesky also owns a condominium apartment and a house on the lake in nearby Port Credit.

If you're in the market for baby furniture, take a ruler when you buy. For more than six months, the federal government has made it mandatory that the only have 3½ inches of open space between the bars. That, of course, is that a wriggly little body slips out, leaving the baby strangling by the neck.

I'm all for used baby furniture — it seems such a waste to buy new, sometimes — except in the case of old-fashioned cribs. If you're buying a used one or borrowing your aunt's, museum is for safety.

Magical polyurethane insulation — it's so easy to install — may add to your family's danger if a fire occurs. The stuff burns more easily than wood and gives off toxic gases to boot. A recent CBC radio show outlined the dangers of the plastic including the fact that it's now used in the manufacture of mattresses. Some experts believe that its use is one reason why fires in bedroom fires have increased although fires themselves have not. If you're going to insulate — a basement for example — try rock wool. It's not flammable.

Too much too soon isn't good for you, especially when it comes to exercise.

Many unfit find the first days of summer invites them to "get into shape". A short, abrupt program of exercise is probably the worst way to try to get in shape and some experts even claim that too vigorous exercise at the outset of a get-fit program can harm you physically or even bring on depression! Health and Welfare Canada suggests that before embarking on a fitness program talk to your doctor. If you're considering joining a health studio, talk to people who have already signed up, look over contracts carefully that don't be pressured into a program you don't want or need.

For information on fitness recreation and sports and their activities, write Recreation Canada, Journal Tower Building, 365 Laurier Avenue West, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A OX4. That's the address for The Fitness and Amateur Sport section of Health and Welfare Canada.

Women in Federal Politics

Aggie Macphail to Flora MacDonald

OTTAWA (CP) — At the opening session of the 14th Parliament 23 years ago, a 31-year-old schoolteacher brought a startling new look to the House of Commons.

The teacher was one of 64 Progressives, a group of third-party dissidents elected from rural areas of Ontario and the West.

But it was not party affiliation which made the teacher, Agnes Macphail, stand out. As the MP from South-East Grey in Ontario, she was the first woman to take a place in the House.

Since then, 11 other women have won Commons seats, but the representation of females in Parliament has had its ups and downs.

The largest number of women ever to sit in the Commons at one time has been six, following the 1963 election. The Parliament that ended last month had five women.

With a record number of 135 women standing as candidates in the July 8 federal election, that total may be increased even though Grace Hartman, the New Democratic Party veteran from Vancouver-Kingsway, is retiring.

But if a substantial number of women win, it will be a dramatic shift away from the pattern in the last 50 years.

When Miss Macphail won her riding in the 1921 election, women had been allowed to vote federally for three years. She was the only winner among four females who stood as candidates in 1921.

Still to come was the fascinating debate over whether women were "persons" under the British North America Act—a controversy that arose when a group of women decided to test whether females could be appointed to the Senate.

The Supreme Court of Canada said "no," but the Privy Council in England over-ruled that decision in 1929. The council was then the final court of appeal for Canadians.

A vocal MP and outspoken advocate of prison reform and other social issues, Miss Macphail made a significant impression on the country, But although several other women were elected to the Commons it was not until 1957 that a female was invited to join the cabinet.

In that year, Ellen Fairclough from Hamilton joined the Diefenbaker cabinet first as secretary of state, then as citizenship and immigration minister and postmaster-general.

It was largely through her efforts as an opposition member that a federal law providing for equal pay for equal work by women was passed.

When Mr. Pearson government took power in 1963, Judy LaMarsh, a Niagara Falls lawyer, was appointed health and welfare minister. As such, she helped to lay groundwork for social legislation such as the Canada Pension Plan and medical care—that was introduced later in the 1960s.

Later as secretary of state she was in charge of the Centennial Year celebrations.

Of a controversial Miss LaMarsh left politics when Prime Minister Trudeau was elected head of the Liberal Party. She had backed Paul Hellyer for the leadership and openly stated his allegiance to the Progressive Conservatives.

After the 1963 election, when Miss LaMarsh and then-Liberal Pauline Jewett were among the six women elected, the fortunes of females in federal politics suffered a decline that counbered trends toward greater women's participation in society.

Five years later, after the 1968 election, Mrs. MacInnis, a booster for women's equality and consumer advocate, was the only female in the 264-seat Commons. In 1972, she was joined by Liberal newcomer Jean Macdonald (Kingston and the Islands) and Liberals Jeanne Sauve, now science minister; Monique Begin (Montreal-St. Michel) and Albanie Morin (Louis-Hebert).

All have been active members since 1972. Miss MacDonald as the Conservative critic for consumer and corporate affairs; Miss Begin on Commons committees and Mrs. Sauve in the cabinet.

During the capital punishment debate Mrs. Morin proposed an amendment that would have provided the death penalty for rapists who murder their victims. That proposal was defeated.

The total of 135 female candidates is nearly double the previous record of 71 set in 1972. Of the women, 42 are running for the NDP, 39 for the Liberals, 11 for the Conservatives and eight for Social Credit. The other 35 are standing for the Communists and Marxist-Leninists or running as independents.

Many of the women candidates still are likely to be regarded by feminists as sacrificial lambs, running in ridings where safe bets for male politicians of other parties.

Ann Landers

Mother Angered by Letter

Dear Ann Landers: As the mother of two adopted children, I want to say I was angry and upset by the letter from the young woman who wanted to know about artificial insemination. She said she and her husband (who was sterile) would never consider adoption because genes are such a strong factor in the behavioral patterns and characteristics of children. (There had been some unfortunate "surprises" of adopted children in both their families.)

I wonder if the genes in her family, or her husband's, are flawless. What guarantees does she have that if she and her husband had had their own children, they would have been physically and mentally perfect?

Parents who adopt children take a chance, but isn't everything in life a gamble? It burned me up when I read that a woman's letter because the two children my husband and I selected for adoption were both born with birth defects. That's why we took them. We knew that most people would not.

I can't describe the joy and pleasure we have had from our two handicapped youngsters. Such courage and spirit! They are an inspiration for all of us. We thank God for them every day of our lives.—No Name Or City Please

Dear Friends: What beautiful people you are! God knows where to send those two little ones. How wonderful for all of you.

Dear Ann Landers: Like everyone else, I never thought I'd be writing to you—but here I am.

I've been married four years to a decent man. (I'm 28, he is 27.) So far we haven't had any major problems. Robert gets along well with my family—maybe too well, because this is where the trouble comes in.

Last night we returned home about 10 p.m. We had been at my folks' place since 4 p.m., had a few drinks, watched a little TV, ate supper and talked and talked and talked. That's the problem. Robert loves to talk and he wears everybody out. He doesn't get loud or argumentative. He just doesn't shut his mouth.

My mother likes Rob, but she is not the most patient person in the world. I can tell when she's had it. She never said anything to either Mother or Rob. The question: Should I try to justify his talkativeness to her, or should I be frank with Rob?—His Wife

Dear Wife: Perhaps those "few drinks" have something to do with Rob's non-stop monologue.

Suggest that he start with gender bender. Then, if that doesn't work, try a different approach. Rob should be told gently. And then explain the situation to your mother.

Successful Living

Teen Mothers Increase

Most girls who have just finished high school are still attending school and their greatest concerns are things like clothes, appearance, and dating. Debbie isn't like other girls because at 18, she's living alone with her three-month-old baby as a single parent. Her concerns are not simply how to manage financially on welfare, how to hold on to a job that wells up when the baby won't stop crying, and how to combat the ever present loneliness she feels.

Debbie is not the only girl in this situation. The increase in number of single parents receiving Family Benefits and the figures for illegitimacy rates indicate the current trend in towards unmarried mothers keeping their babies. At the same time, there are fewer and fewer unmarried mothers approaching the Children's Aid Society for service, and of those who do, more than half are keeping their babies.

These figures are of great concern to Children's Aid Societies because very often the decision to keep their child is made by girls who have not realistically looked at what will be involved, and do not know what community resources are being created to help the single parent. Here at our agency for instance, there are several groups of girls who meet regularly for recreational and self-help type programs.

It is our hope to implement a new public relations program in the coming year designed to publicize the types of service available to the girl who may be keeping her child, and aimed at younger girls. Newsletter, The Child-rin's Aid Society of Hamilton-Wentworth.

What worries me most are those girls "who have not realistically looked at what will be involved", in keeping their babies. In a moment of emotion and brave sentiment the youngster sees herself as self-sacrificing and noble. Often she also knows she is defying convention.

What she does not know is the cheating she is doing; she is cheating her baby of a family home, complete with father, mother and other children. She is cheating herself of the carefree years which should be with late teens. She also cheats herself of the friendships and activities which could help her later to make the choice of a life who would be her ideal partner for life.

Certainly we need services to help the girl who keeps her child, but more of our young people need to think through the trials that irresponsible activities can bring in their wake.

(Doris keeps in contact with knowledgeable consultants in many fields medicine, law, religion, home economics, to name a few. Write to her, care of this newspaper, for the kind of help you think enclosing an eight-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

A Personal Message To You From The Traffic Safety Division Of The Belleville Police Department

A Child In Shining Armor

If children were shining armor they might have greater protection in today's death-dealing traffic.

But the only armor we have is which to cloth our children today are the rules of traffic safety that we teach in the home and at school.

Parents must assume the prime responsibility for training their child. Parents must insist that we teach traffic safety and that we insist on proper use of road, during formative years.

Child safety constitution of persons is example. It is of basic value to tell a child that he must obey a red light, even several cars have passed, and Dad thoughtlessly ran a red light. Many of these accidents were caused by a study of school that the majority of these accidents were caused Safety Lesson hazards; and from these stem the basic pedestrian rules that children should follow:

1. Go with the grown-ups before you cross the street and walk (don't run) when you have the curb.
2. Look both ways before you cross the street and walk (don't run) when you have the curb.
3. Keep out from between parked cars.
4. Keep out from between parked cars.
5. Play your bike safely and obey all signs and signals. (Small children must have their bikes registered and licensed.)
6. Ride your bike wagons, bikes and scooters on the sidewalk.
7. Play your games in a safe place away from the street.
8. Where there are no sidewalks walk on the left side facing traffic.

Wear or carry something bright at night.

To those who have never spilled blood on the roads, it comes as a terrible shock to find that tragedy strikes without warning. Sometimes there is practically no chance to avoid disaster, a second chance never comes.

Thousands of children are out of school, so watch for them playing near the street and slow down so that these children can live.

SGT. ROBERT HALL, Safety Officer
Belleville City Police Department

Pudgy Korean Evangelist Hottest Religious Cultist

NEW YORK (AP) — A pudgy Korean evangelist named Sun Myung Moon has become the hottest new item on the religious cult scene.

In three years, the 54-year-old Moon and his Unification Church have drawn 10,000 American followers, amassed millions of dollars and even won the favor of Premier Nixon.

Moonism, more than any other recent American religious movement, has allied itself with the government, and the mainstream of Christianity in the United States has been critical of what it considers an unholy alliance.

"Moon is a misguided religious populist," said Jorge Lara-Braud, a theologian with the National Council of Churches. "He is preying on the fears and disillusions of disaffected Americans."

Signs emblazoned "God loves Nixon" popped up in front of the White House late last year as Moon rallied his faithful in support of Nixon in the face of the Watergate scandals. In newspaper ads, he exhorted Americans to forgive and forget.

In February, Moon got the president's personal thanks at a White House meeting. Moon embraced the president and prayed in Korean and urged him not to give in.

The Unification Church's religious-political creed combines off-beat Christianity with staunch anticommunism. Some followers believe the evangelist is the Messiah. He leaves the possibility open.

Moon proclaims that he first conversed with Christ as a 16-year-old in Korea and was told the Messiah was to be born in his homeland in our time.

"I was instructed by God to go to America—the second Israel—and lay a foundation for the Second Coming," said Moon.

Moon says his advocacy of Nixon is another directive from God.

Moon's church disperses itself from other cults by laying aside abstract and otherworldly retreats in favor of a practical view of trying to improve the world and change it.

All this revolves around the Moon dogma that heaven will be established on earth.

The movement is in the midst of a Maine-to-Hawaii crusade. Christianity in Crisis is the topic and college youths are the main target.

Area Health Service Criticized by CWL

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. (CP) — The Ontario Catholic Women's League, at its annual convention here, was told a recommendation by a government committee to establish area health service management boards was called a disaster for privately - owned health care institutions in Ontario.

Sister Ann Marshall, a spokesman for the Sisters of St. Joseph who operate St. Joseph's Hospital in Hamilton, said the greatest danger of the proposed boards is that they would set policy for other institutions in Ontario.

This might mean a hospital, a couple of nursing homes and a home for the aged would all be subject to the same policies dictated by the board, she said.

This would make these institutions subject, to the same policies regardless of the moral code previously adhered to, she said.

She urged the delegates to contact hospital health-co-ordinators in their areas stating disapproval of the recommendation.

Devotion Without Emotion Is Drab and Dull Business

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

When we see clear evidence of the love of God for one another, we are inclined to say, "He certainly is devoted to her." The interesting thing about this statement is that love is never mentioned. It is expressed.

Here we have the connection between devotion and emotion. Devotion is the fact of love. Emotion is the feeling in the expression of that fact. Sometimes devotion is hypocrisy. Devotion without emotion is drab and dull, even questionable as devotion at all.

He this point let me distinguish between emotion and emotionalism. Jesus had no time for the kind of emotion that was for the sake of being emotional. You may remember a certain woman who had been caught in a crowd listening to him as he taught.

Suddenly, she appeared to be worked up emotionally, she exclaimed, "Blessed is the woman that bore you, Jesus viewed the situation and apparently questioned the genuineness of the emotional statement. So, with a gentle but positive rebuke, he responded, "Blessed, rather, are those who hear the word of God and keep it."

Our expressions of devotion to God or our fellow men are here for what they are to the degree to which we back them up with positive action. Christian love is expressed through our emotions and through our deeds. It is possible for people to become so emotional about their religion that they forget to do anything constructive about the thing that has so excited them.

However, it seems to me that our present problem is that we have gone to the other extreme. We are more prone to be afraid of any emotion in religion than we are to be excessively emotional. We run the risk of falling into a category that St. Augustine originated when he spoke of "Treat-bound Christians".

On numerous occasions Jesus spoke words of praise for certain well-founded expressions of emotion. For instance, he was deeply moved by the woman who anointed him with costly perfume. He said, "Wherever this gospel is preached in the whole world what she has done will be told in memory of her."

The late Nikita Khrushchev predicted that our grandchildren will be Communists. This remains to be seen. Meanwhile, what of the children of many of us? If they are indifferent to public worship or bold in their rejection of the moral standards that we consider to be vital, it is because many parents are not living up to their own commitment. It is because they are apologetic, if not afraid to express God in ways that show they really care.

It was said of John Wesley that "he set himself on fire and the people came to watch him burn." Any generation is attracted to an enthusiastic faith. It is contagious. But we cannot move others until we ourselves have been inwardly moved. Yes, we need deep devotion and sincere emotion, perhaps in prayer before.

Advance Voting Is Under Way

Advance voting in the July 8 general election began this morning.

Such balloting has extra significance this election, which falls when many Canadians take holidays. Summer jobs have taken students, part of the younger vote, away from home.

To compound the problem the advance vote this time comes on a holiday weekend.

That's why returning officer, Miss Reg Dunham in Hastings, is so anxious that all those eligible to vote at the polls this weekend should do so.

"It's important that anyone having reasons to be away from home election day should vote at the advance polls," he says. "And if they're going away for this weekend they could be home before closing time that Monday night."

There are polls in all main communities in the riding, including Deseronto, Tweed Marmora, Madoc and Stirling.

In Belleville, there are three advance polls, open today and Monday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

They are located at both city fire halls and at Victoria public school, Pine St.

Destination Is Music

Belleville Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps left Friday night for eight-day music tour of United States and Canada. Brad Ross played the gentleman on departure as he helped Linda Hedges and Tricia Smith with travelling gear.

Young Vote Draws Attention

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Staff Reporter

A growing concern during election campaigns is how each party is going to be able to attract the young vote.

Bill Kurchak, Liberal campaign manager for his wife, Marie, claims that in a private poll taken in Hastings riding, approximately 22 per cent of voters between 18-25 years of age did not vote in the last federal election.

"We're not doing anything specific to attract the young vote," said Kurchak. "I think the problem was that this age group had no candidates to which they could relate and therefore just didn't vote for anyone."

"We're not offering any age group anything special," says Kurchak. "We're just playing it straight. That's what the young voters like and what their elders respect."

However, the Kurchak camp does boast something organizationally special. Bob Dundas, 21-year head of the Young Liberals national executive, is leading his talents to Hastings Liberals for the current campaign.

The Dundas committee room is overflowing with young people working for the Kurchak cause. "Most of our workers are in the young voters' age group," says Bill Kurchak. "They help us canvas, answer phones and generally work their butts off.

"They just come in off the street. I feel guilty that they work so hard, but I'm overwhelmed by the fact that they're volunteering in such time and sincerely enjoying it."

Meanwhile, down Front Street in the Progressive Conservative Headquarters, Gerry Brennan, campaign manager for Jack Ellis, is leading the youth factor alive in his party through the Young Progressive Conservatives (YPC).

"The YPC is something that goes year-round in our party," he says. "It's not just something we pick up at election time.

"The young people and young voters are part of the Big Blue Machine. They've been just as much say in what the party does as the next person.

The local YPC is active not only in the constituency, but also in PC rallies throughout the riding.

"We don't have to go after the young vote on election time," said the Tory campaign manager. "They know we are interested in them year-round so it isn't necessary to weve best under their noses."

Rick Williams, New Democratic Party campaign manager, is shedding the young vote situation through the party's platform.

"It isn't necessary to make anything special out of the problems that youth have just to entice their votes. Their problems are basically the same as everyone else's, so why confuse them out?"

Williams feels that by making recommendations specifically aimed at apartment dwellers and low income wage earners one is dealing with the majority of the young voters.

He says that his party gets

Director Lindsey Hallam leads actors

Theatre August

Rehearsals in July

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Young blood laced with experience indicates a sparkling season for the 1974 edition of Theatre Belleville's only youth summer theatre troupe.

From the mix of people and ideas, departure from the usual stage fare, ranging from three one-act plays has evolved.

Four one-actors will be run together during the last full week in July.

Perhaps most significant is the first production of a play conceived, and primarily written, by a Belleville - area artist, turned journalist, Lindsey Hallam.

The Smokey the Bear fable is now surviving in rehearsal under its playwright-director.

However, Miss Hallam disclaimed the title playwright. "We're building the comedy before coming out with the form," she said.

"As far as the characters and actors go, they are evolving from their perception and their role in the story."

The moral comedy has its roots character, Prophet, portrayed by Brian Duffy, and seven young actors in roles which the Erectus' calls Growing Things.

The story revolves around the Sun Buddha's return to earth to precipitate a renewal of natural consciousness. Comically, but austerely, Buddha returns as Smokey the Bear.

Movement and comic flare characters during attempts to attain a state of grace, of inocence, 130,000,000 years ago.

What does it mean.

"Everything has a right to live to the full limits. If they don't die, we wouldn't be in the mess we're in now," says Miss Hallam.

Rounding out the one-act evenings are three other plays. The longest, Canadian Chris Johnson's Sex, Cold Cuts and Coffins, presents two senile men itching to break out of an old folks home. Director is Debbie Anderson.

Anton Chekhov's Jubilee, is directed by Michael Handley.

Comedian Woody Allen's two character piece, Death Knocks, is directed by Brian Duffy.

Cost of the Prince Edward Yacht Club sailing college is $15 for young people and $15 for adults. The first club program ended Friday.

Wage Hikes Big Factor As BGH Costs Climb

Wage settlements have emerged as a major bugaboo of Belleville General Hospital operating expenses for the year.

BGH board at governors Friday was told that supplementary estimates added on to the hospital's 1974 $13.3 million operating budget — now total another $989,288.

Alderman Ben Corke, the board's finance chairman said wage settlements will account for about 75 per cent of the increase.

The estimate does not entirely allow for current demands of nursing staff. These have been part of contractual negotiations in Toronto in the past week between the Ontario Nurses Association and hospitals in the province.

Salary increases for nurses were built into the year's original operating budget, said BGH officials. But the trend of negotiations up to Friday could add close to another $500,000 to operating costs, they estimated.

Meantime, BGH governors Friday approved memorandum of agreement negotiated with two union locals representing more than 400 service, technical and clerical staff.

The agreement involved wage increases averaging about $288 a month increase in various stages over two years.

Result of the curves settlement — whenever it's concluded — could push the supplementary estimates close to $1.5 million, about 10 per cent above original budget figures, said officials.

One effect of the new calculations would be to increase the hospital's per diem rate — the daily cost for patients — by about $6, estimated Philip Rickard, executive director.

Present per diem rate is $73.

The supplementary estimates must be submitted to the health ministry for approval.

The agreement memoranda approved by the board involves Locals 241 and 663, Service Employees International Union.

Local 183 representing housekeeping and general service workers, involved reopening of an agreement by the board for wage adjustments, said hospital officials, in four stages ending September 1975, the increases averages about $288 a month. Average-pay range now is $340-$760.

The agreement with Local 663, aged for technical and clerical staff, provides for increases in four stages up to December 1975. These total about $288 a month over two years. Average wage range for the group now is $359-$759 a month.

An arbitrator's award for nurses at Ottawa Civic Hospital was seen late this week as setting the pattern for a settlement in the Toronto negotiations.

It sets minimum starting salaries this year of $820 a month and $945 by April 1975.

Maximum for a nurse with seven years' experience would be $1,020 this year and $1,145 by April 1975.

Per BGH — with about 280 nurses — such a settlement could cost $467,000 to a year, administrative officials estimated.

This would mean a graduate in 1975 could be earning about $13,000 a year, more than some nursing instructors may now be earning. Mr. Rickard commented to the board.

Problem Defies Solution

Demand Still 'Acute' For Beds at Hospital

Demand for beds at Belleville General Hospital continues heavy despite efforts to ease the situation, an administrative report shows.

Meantime, the average patient length of stay has also increased, BGH board of governors was told Friday.

Pressure on acute and chronic care beds remains "acute," Dr. Reg Anderson, medical director reported to the board.

Ongoing measures to ease the pressure have not been successful, he said.

The situation was recently reviewed by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons hospital utilization committee. Of 254 cases scrutinized, the committee found only eight patients who could have been referred to the home's self-care unit or sent home, said Dr. Anderson.

"Disconcertingly," he added, the average length of say has increased to 8.4 days per patient from 8.9 days for the same time last year.

We have not managed to identify a specific reasons for this setback," said the medical director.

Meantime, the period for elective surgery — as distinct from emergency operations now is eight weeks at BGH, Dr. Anderson said later. At the end of May there were 1,200 people on the waiting list for elective surgery.

The Campaigners

Sanders Main Concern Incomes

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Crisp country air still greets Bob Sanders mornings when he steps outdoors to tend the few animals he keeps on his 2¼-acre piece of land on the Salmon River.

But part of his daily routine hasn't changed since his nomination as the New Democratic Party candidate in Hastings.

Animals must be fed in Shannonville. Mail must be done at the hospital in Belleville.

But between the time breakfast is finished and work is begun, his days have changed.

Mr. Sanders pumps hands, meeting employees at the area's industrial plants at the gates. Pamphlets are handed out.

Calling himself a strong believer in the Protestant work ethic, he explains his candidacy.

Of the four candidates in Hastings, all counting down to the July 8 federal election night, he is the only one tied down to a daily job.

He shaves a half-hour off here and there, morning and night, filing his campaigning around his duties as a medical social worker.

Mr. Sanders admits it's an uphill climb in a riding that has traditionally voted Tory, with the Liberals in the runner-up spot.

"I will not admit defeat no matter who gets in. It's just a start," he says. "This is the beginning of NDP representation in this area."

He admits to two strikes: "No money and a low profile. But since the Conservatives have such a poor pitcher, we may get to first base by walking.

Part of his game plan is talking to employees at large plants — morning and afternoon. Campaigning at the plant gate is followed by speeches and question and answer periods during lunch hours.

Brooke Bond Foods, Ltd., Wilson's Concrete Products Ltd., and Union Carbide Canada Ltd. employees have all received visits from the 37-year-old Dutch-Canadian. People in Tweed, Madoc spoke to him.

"I prefer to meet groups of people at the main line," he says. "The larger the group, the more I can make myself heard."

Lack of money and the small number of workers in Hastings forces him to utilize his time in such a manner.

At last count, he said his campaign coffers has amassed approximately $1,000, most of which was spent in printing campaign literature. Extensive radio and newspaper advertising is not a thought of.

Throughout the riding, he estimates his campaign organization is run by some 90 workers. Like himself, they canvass homes door-to-door, handing out literature and outlining NDP policy.

"And that does not mean a city block, but also visiting the farms," he emphasizes.

What does he expect from the central issue? What is Mr. Sanders NDP membership attempting to get across to voters?

Hastings riding is at the bottom of the scale as far as the average wage earner in of Ontario workers goes, he says.

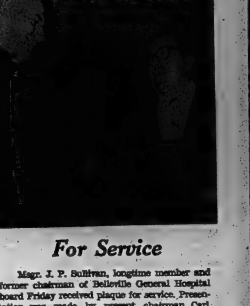
"It's not so much a question of how to get at the farmer, but how they (workers) get there, and what kind of representation they have in Parliament," Mr. Sanders said.

"That's the whole of my campaign. I consider that to be the issue.



"The money and the glory of going to Ottawa is of no concern to me. What I want is to retire my wife.

"The money will be brought back into Belleville to buy people false teeth, glasses, and artificial limbs.

"In other words, I'm happy with Bobo and Merle, my calves."

Magr. J. P. Sullivan, longtime member and former chairman of Belleville General Hospital board Friday received praise when a plaque was made by present chairman Carl Bateman.

Doctors Endorse and Caution

Belleville General Hospital's medical staff has approved the principle of a university connection, but cautioned that physicians as teachers of family medicine.

But the doctors cautioned against the hospital getting prematurely involved with any building project to house such a program.

The physicians' collective response to a Queen's University proposal for extending family medicine teaching to the Belleville area was given BGH board of governors Friday.

The extended campus concept — aimed at giving undergraduate and post-graduates exposure to community medicine — has been under discussion with Queen's for some time. Suggestion from the university have included building an academic centre and using family doctors as preceptors, or teachers.

Dr. R. E. Morgan, medical staff president, said BGH physicians endorsed the principle of preceptorship. But they also are reserved on the need for any new building. The former Edith Cavell nursing school on hospital grounds could be an alternative site for educational seminars and conferences.

Dr. Jack Wallace, city councillor and board member, said the staff was concerned that "large, expensive" facilities might not be needed for students in the field.

A similar centre at Michigan University in Hamilton now operates 30 per cent below budget, he said. Mr. Wallace also questioned Queen's for some time. Suggestions from the university have included building an academic centre and using family doctors as preceptors, or teachers.

He said it was strange funds are available to build a new $3 Mahak across Ontario when they're of no present use.

Dr. Morgan said later the preceptorship principle had been successfully used by the medical staff. "We feel, in a nutshell like this, we have to consider service to the community as well as teaching capacity. There must be a balance that's best for everyone," he added.

People Give A Hoot

PETON — People using Bonnet Park have not been entertained — and concerned — by days by a family of tiny Screech Owls.

Only about eight inches high, the owls apparently nested in a nearby hollow tree.

Some residents of the area have expressed concern over the family as some fledglings appear to have left the nest prematurely and are unable to take care of themselves.

Busy Schedule For Billie Jean

LONDON (AP) — Billie Jean King has seven days to emulate Suzanne Lenglen, the French star who glittered over Wimbledon in the early 20's and three times won all three Wimbledon titles: The women's singles and doubles and the mixed doubles.

Suzanne Lenglen did it three times between 1920 and 1925, when the international tennis scene was a goodie one. Mrs. King, already five times a single winner, will be going for crown in 1967 and again last year. She is trying to do it again this year—but she'll have to pack 16 matches into the remaining seven days of the tournament.

So far, Mrs. King has played only once. That was Tuesday, before rain made a shambles of referee Miss Gibson's carefully planned program.

After five days, only 16 men and six women were through to the last 32 and the card was running 136 matches behind schedule.

Jimmy Connors, 21, seeded third, defeated Australian Phil Dent 5-7, 6-3, 8-6, 6-3, 10-8.

Arthur Ashe was another seed who came through to the third round, together with Manuel Orantes of Spain and Tom Okker of The Netherlands. Ashe, seeded eighth, beat Hiroki Teimuras Kakulia 6-1, 6-4, 6-3; Okker, seeded seventh, beat Balazs Taroczy of Hungary 6-2, 6-2, 6-4; Orantes, 12th, beat Rosenia Koch of Brazil 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

They joked top-seeded John Newcombe of Australia, second-seed Ilie Nastase of Romania, veteran Ken Rosewall, youngster Bjorn Borg, Stan Smith, Tom Gorman and Jan Kodes among the others in the last 32.

The women's singles are in worse shape. Rosemary Casals of San Francisco and Evonne Goolagong of Australia, among the seeds, played and won. Miss Casals had a tough match against Pam Teegarden of Los Angeles but eventually was on a tie-breaker 6-2, 9-8, and Miss Goolagong ran through Dina Klein of South Africa 6-2, 6-4.

4-1 Shot Begins To Concentrate

TORONTO (CP) — Amber Herod had a reputation for gone watching as a two-year-old.

He has discarded that image and consequently might romp home today ahead of 14 other entries in Canada's richest horse race, the $148,325 Queen's Plate.

Amber Herod's trainer, Gil Rowntree, won't predict an outright victory in the 115th running of the the Plate, North America's oldest continually run stakes race.

"It's a race of being lucky," he said of Jack Stafford's horse. "Too many things can happen, but I'm hoping for a win."

Amber Herod will leave gate No. 3 at odds of around 4 to 1, but they could be lower on the three-y ear-old son of Amber Morn-Royal Herod before the 4:43 EDT p.m. post time for today's seventh race at Woodbine track.

The colt ignored all efforts last year to get him concentrating on the business at hand. He preferred to look at the grass in the infield pond or greet at the grandstand during a stretch run.

Royal Chocolate carried the colors to victory in last year's test of the 1¼-mile course, and a repeat for Stafford will mark the first time a stable has scored successive wins since Northern Dancer completed a three-race sweep for E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm in 1964.

But with world champion rider Sandy Hawley on Native Ad, who starts from No. 4 position, the George C. Hendrie entry could become the perverse favorite.

The Ted Mann-trained colt was the first division of the Plate Trial Stakes last Sunday for 1½ lengths over Nobbi Answer and Doctor McKay. two other Queen's Plate hopefuls.

The Queen Mother will present the trophy and traditional 50 gold sovereigns that have gone to the winner since the first race in 1860.

While much of the early publicity has been focused on Police Car and Native Ad, Amber Herod continues to justify Rowntree's decision to qualify him for Canada's prestige race for three-year-old colts and fillies.

Chicago Wins in 18

Expos, Cubs Hook Up In Marathon Match

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

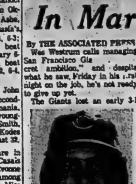
Wes Westrum calls managing San Francisco Giants "a great ambition," and despite what he saw Friday in his rival night on the job, he's not ready to give up yet.

The Giants lost an early 3-1 lead, allowed 10 runs over the last four innings and bowed to Los Angeles Dodgers 11-3.

Five errors by the Giants, three of them in one inning, didn't help their cause-to-be. Wilmer (Vida) Blue, a 31-year-old skipper, who took over for Charlie Fox earlier Friday remained unflustered.

"You don't expect me to panic after one game, do you?" he said. "You just have to forget about the game and think about next two we have with them."

Elsewhere, Chicago Cubs and Montreal Expos split a twi-night doubleheader, Chicago winning the opener 5-7 in 18 innin—the longest game of the season—and Montreal romping in a 15-4 win in the nightcap.



Cincinnati Reds and Atlanta Braves also split a double header, Cincinnati taking the first game 6-5 and Atlanta coming back to win the second 1-0 in 10 innings. San Diego Padres nipped Houston Astros 5-4, while S. Louis Cardinals at New York Mets and Philadelphia Phillies at Pittsburgh Pirates were rained out.

Johnny Bench capped a five-run second inning with a two-run single and Tony Perez belted a solo homer in the fifth to carry Cincinnati past Atlanta in the opener. Ron Reed, 10-game doubleheader, but the Braves gained a split by winning the nightcap on Dave Baker's 10th inning home run.

Jerry Morales tripled home Expos manager with the winning run in the 18th inning of the first game at Montreal, breaking up the longest major league game of the year and the longest ever played at Jarry Park.

The Expos had sent the game into extra innings with a run in the ninth on a single by Ron Fairly, two passed balls by Cubs' catcher Steve Swisher and a wild pitch by Burt Hooton.

In the second game, Dennis Blair, just recalled from the minors, blanked the Cubs on two hits while Ron Hunt drove in five runs and Tim Foli and Jim Fox delivered three RBIs apiece. The Expos broke the game open with six runs in the third inning.

DENNIS BLAIR

San Diego's Enzo Hernandez singled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning against the Astros and the scored what proved to be the game-winner on Nate Colbert's sacrifice fly.

SIGNS WITH STARS

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Stars of the World Football League announced Thursday the signing of running back Jim Mankins, a veteran of four years in the Canadian Football League. Mankins, a six-foot 215-pounder, played for Ottawa Rough Riders and Edmonton Eskimos in the CFL.

Charlie Resigns

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charlie Fox resigned Friday as manager of San Francisco Giants, a spokesman for the National League baseball team said.

Fox, who was named manager in 1970, will become major league scout for the team, spokesman Mike Beacon said.

He said Wes Westrum, the current major league scout, was named manager.

"Fox said with the club losing out of the cellar.

Gaylord Perry—14 Straight

Neither Rain Nor Sox Can Stop Indians' Ace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy rains held up the start of the game between Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox for an hour Friday night, but they didn't bother Gaylord Perry.

The Cleveland pitcher went out and stopped Boston 3-1 on three singles for his—14th consecutive triumph, just two short of the American League record.

Not only did the Red Sox suffer their third loss in a row when Dick Drago walked Leron Lee with two out in the ninth inning and George Hendrick doubled him home, but they may have lost all-star catcher Carlton Fisk for the season.

In scoring the winning run, Lee slid into Fisk, who was blocking the plate, and the catcher suffered ligament damage to his left knee which probably will require surgery.

Elsewhere, Oakland A's trounced Kansas City Royals 7-1, Minnesota Twins flattened Chicago White Sox 10-3, Detroit Tigers clobbered Milwaukee Brewers 9-7 and Texas Rangers downed California Angels 5-4. In New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles were rained out.

Bert Campaneris of Oakland collected a triple, double and two singles, drove in two runs and scored twice while rookie Ray Fosse hit a two-run homer and Blue Moon Odom stopped Kansas City on six hits.

Minnesota's Tony Oliva and Rod Carew each had a big night against the White Sox. Oliva collected four hits, including a pair of home runs, and Killebrew bit his 532nd career homer. The triumph was the third in a row and fifth in six games for the Twins.

Mickey Stanley and rookie Marvin Lane threw in two runs apiece for Detroit against the Brewers. Lane gave the Tigers a 2-0 lead with a two-run homer base-loaded single in Dagwitch increased the lead to 4-1.

SPRINT MARK SET ...?

ROME (AP) — Peder Pedersen, a 28-year-old Copenhagen policeman and a pro for only a month, established a world cycling record in the 1,000-metre standing-start at Rome's Velodrome Thursday night. The Dane sprinted the distance in one minute, 7.5 seconds, clipping more than a second from the previous mark of 1:08.6 set by Tom Harris of England more than a decade ago.

Intell Loses 16-2 To Independents

Independents rained 17 hits around the landscape at Al-a-mule Park on Friday night, plastering a 16-2 Belleville Intermidial Softball League loss on the Intelligencer.

Seven Intell arrays added to the woes of pitchers Ron Gilfillan and John Edwards who split the chore.

Earl Osborne and Jim Norcey shared the Independents' first four hankies, Norcey's two runs off five hits Northey finished up with three hittings of, strikout relief. He was touched for three hits.

Ken Bertrand and Gary Sarvis each slammed a home run and added another safety for the winners. Dave Skelly and Ron Fuller supplied three singles apiece.

Sharing the losers bits were Eric Williams, John Edwards, Rick Hay, Randy Edwards, Calhoun, Glynn Reynolds, Fred Stickle and Maurice Switzer.

Four of the best of the week were assembled to collect their winnings at Thursday night's Quinte Fastball League doubleheader at the Alemite. John Gossen, representative of Labbatt's Breweries, made awards to John Rozanne of the Ellis Juniors, Larry Mavety, of Auger Men's Wear, Wayne McTaggart, of Rollins Construction, and Dave Skelton, of Howard and Bullert Printing. All were Players of the Week in the QFL, the first four of the season. Ted Waite of Rollins Construction was also chosen as a winner, but went not at Thursday's games to receive his award.

Eight Get Job Done For Reserve Squad

Playing the game one man short didn't mean a thing for Reserve on Thursday night's Prince Edward North Shore Softball League play. The team came up with a 6-3 win over Bayview Orchards, in the other game. Consecon widened its first place margin in the league win to 6-1 drubbing of O'Brien's Tree Service.

Reserve was forced to play the game with only eight players when they started the game with that number. Gary Meisinger filled the win for Reserve, allowing eight hits. He threw three strikes past six batters and issued only one base on balls.

Don Bonter and Dwayne Dunster shared the loss. Bonter touched for seven hits. They struck out two and walked two.

Carman Selman had a home run and two doubles to pace the Reserve, with Murray Marcelle contributing a triple and single. Pat Maracle Jr. had a double, with Pat Maracle Sr. stroking a single.

Steve Donstor had a pair of hits including a triple for the losers, with George Daniels collecting two singles. Other hits and singles went to Doug Mason, Mitch Yott, Don Hosier, Royce Donstor, and Mason.

In the second game of the twin bill, Gary Earle allowed only four hits in pitching Consecon to the win over O'Brien's. He whiffed four and walked one.

Peter Scott gave up eight hits in taking the loss, striking out four and walking the same total.

Larry Herrington connected for a double and single to lead the losers' attack. George Phillips stroking a double. Other hits went to Art Kellar, Dave Hollingsworth, Lionel Adair, and Eardley.

Consecon's hits, all singles, went to Ed Calkow, Tom Young, Pete Young, and Russ Morgan.

Golden Bat Tournament

Is Windsor Overrated?

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

The Toronto teams say: "Watch out for the Windsor representatives." The Windsor representatives says: "Watch out for the Toronto teams" in the Belleville Bandana Baseball Golden Bat Tournament July 5, 6 and 7.

"It's nice to be respected," says South Windsor coach, Ross Ridling, "but that kind of extra respect just isn't warranted of us this season."

The coach further explained: "Last year we had a hot baseball team but this season we're coupled right in the middle of rebuilding."

Windsor only has two players returning from the 1973 club. One of those is their top pitcher Mike Kaminski. Even at that the Windsor squad may be even weaker at the Golden Bat since Kaminski will be unable to come down to the tournament.

The coach also gives Windsor far in regular season play. Basically, Ridling feels his success so far is due to the fact that the club prevents the opposition from scoring very many runs.

"We lack balance because of the number of rookies on the team," observes Ridling. "We're still grasping for our number one starting line-up."

The rookies are really starting to get," said Peterborough coach Pat Morrow. "we've just started putting things together in the last couple of weeks."

During the past two weeks the Peterborough club has won six consecutive games, boosting its season's record to 9-5.

Kevin LeFaivre, a second-year right-handed pitcher, has been the key to the recent success of his club. He now has a 4-1, won-lost record and has a stat outing recorded 16 strikeouts.

Peterborough also has two other second-year hurlers who are coming on as strong as LeFaivre. Mark Collins - a right - hander, is ready to the clutch and Terry Lillico is a smart left-hander. Collins throws hard and fast and Lillico throws everything but a fast pitch and cut-thinks the batters he faces.

Along with some strong pitching the Peterborough club also has one of the league's top hitters. Howie Morrow is a consistent and very hard hitting batter who usually plugs doubles and triples at all the right times.

Along with Babcocke, Rob Cahain, Wayne Maloney and Ross McCollum are also rounding after ball.

Peterborough's defensive record speaks for itself. In 14 games the club has only allowed 20 runs against while scoring 97 on the opposition.

The Littlock City crew has to be one of the favourite teams in the tourney since all but two of their 15 players are second year.

Coach Morrow suggests, "I don't know how far we're going to get, but I know we won't be too far out of the running."

In the immediate Belleville area, Trenton is still looking to get it together before the Golden Bat starting date arrives.

The coach added that he feels the biggest problem was mental errors.

"We don't make mistakes that shouldn't happen," he said, "and we seem to have them all in one or two innings so that the opposition piles up a lot of runs in a short time and we're sunk."

The bright spots on the club are Dave Chisholm, a fine relief average and the pitching of Randy Adams, Chisholm and Steve Bent.

"If we shape up in time for the Golden Bat," said Casselman, "we'll be in the running."

Ron Feagan Heads List Of Drivers in Stakes

Monday will see, for the second time this season, the running of a division of the Ontario Jockey Stakes at the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway.

This one, for two year old pacing fillies will be divided into two races of seven horses each. The heats will be worth $5,025.66 each, with the winners to take home $2,013.33.

The featured races will be held as the 7th and 8th races of the ten race card, which includes five quaddies and five exactors.

Among horses coming in for the two races are Kinsey Jane, Bay Comet, and Lynden Lori, who have none of the best blood-lines in fillies in the country.

Ron Feagan, one of the top drivers in North America, will be in town to guide Lynden Lori, going in the eighth race.

The regular pre-race race of the night, the tenth, shapes up to be quite a battle in itself to rate top local honors.

Guy Lariviere will guide Our Will Valley out of the rail position. Rosie's Sister, with John Adams driving will occupy one out of the two hole, while Rusty Pete, with John Murphy in the lake will leave the third position.

Victor Hal Direct, with Wilson Inwood the driver will fill the four hole, with Canal View Way, who packed to a 1977.2 win two seasons back at the Belleville oval, will come out of the fifth position with Junior West driving.

Yette's Tuxedo will have Tom Riley leaving the inside spot in the second row, with Hugh Wemp guiding Stan Khemenko's Green Gretton from the seventh and last post position.

Post time for Monday's holiday card is 8 pm.

No. 11 for Purinaettes

Broadloom was the victim last night as the Purinaettes recorded their 11th win in 12 tries in Belleville and District Ladies Softball League, falling to the Madoc team 21-2 in a five inning contest.

Sandra Fleming once again fired the win, allowing only two hits. She struck out two batters and walked one.

Helen Sills and Norma Fuller worked the Broadloom rubber, striking out two and walking 14.

Sue Wright had a pair of home runs and two doubles for the winners, with Fleming contributing a four bagger and single. Judy McCracken had three singles, while Karen Bailey connected for two.

INTRODUCING TEXACO'S NEW BOOK.
Now you can understand your car and your mechanic.

How to get along with your car
How it runs and how to keep it running with valuable information concerning safe, economical and trouble-free driving.

If there ever was a time when you should understand more about the operation of your car, it's right now. Especially when you consider that both repair and operating costs are rising. So, you owe it to yourself to know as much as possible about your car. That's why we have published a new illustrated book with over 64 pages dedicated to helping you understand your car and its operation. If you own or drive a car, our new book is "must" reading.

Before you say, "I don't want to tinker with my car," let us explain. "How to get along with your car" is not a do-it-yourself book. There's nothing that is frighteningly technical about it. In fact, even if you've never lifted your car's hood, with the help of our book you'll be able to identify most parts of your car from radiator to rear brakes. And you'll understand the basic function of each part. All explained in simple, easy-to-understand language with colour illustrations and diagrams. So, when it comes right down to it, what our new book will do is make you a more knowledgeable, confident driver, able to communicate on more equal terms with your mechanic.

Our new book also tells you the basic car maintenance that should be performed, when it should be done (depending on your type of driving) and what to look and listen for in order to avoid costly repair bills. Understanding what those 'clicks', 'pings', 'knocks', 'rattles' and 'squeals' are can alert you to take the appropriate action. And that may save you money.

'How to get along with your car' also gives you tips on automobile warranties, car insurance and grooming your car so it will be worth more when you do trade it. Most importantly it deals with driving safely and what to do when you find yourself in a difficult situation. There's even a section where you can relax yourself as a driver.

Last, but by no means least, we discuss gasoline mileage and how it can be improved seventeen ways. Even if you read this one chapter, you'll be happy you picked up your copy of our new book.

To get your copy of 'How to get along with your car' simply drive into any participating Texaco Service Station and ask for one! There is a small charge but we're sure you'll think it well worth the price. And we think if we can bring a little more understanding and pleasure into your driving, that's worth it too.

OHA Eases Off

TORONTO, (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association has eased off on its stiff pun'shment against the Bramalea Junior B club and lawyer William McMurtry now is free to generate his report on violence in hockey.

The inquiry was called by Rene Brunelle, provincial minister of community and social service, following a penalty-marred contest last April between Bramalea and Hamilton in the opening game of the OHA Junior B finals.

Bramalea won the game 2-1 in overtime but 10 penalties were called and several players injured. Bramalea coach Richard Hay received game misconduct penalties and club president Gerry Henderson pulled the team out of the series.

Hay Henderson, team manager Gerry Orfidani and the team were subsequently suspended by the OHA and the club's $250 performance bond forfeited.

McMurtry told a news conference Friday that, following a meeting Wednesday between the OHA executive committee and spokesman for the Bramalea Blues—owner president Lloyd Dagan and solicitor William Cooke—all the suspensions with the exception of Henderson's have been lifted.

"The OHA, in its own legislative . . . and acting pursuant to the rules, was able to make the difference between the two teams."

OHA president Cliffe Phillips of Newmarket confirmed satisfactory financial arrangements have been negotiated and that, while the suspensions have been "suspended," the participants will remain on probation conditions as stated, exactly, for at least 14 times in a round of golf.

So, you can relax at the tee, plan the exact shot you want to make, and hit away with confidence.

The only adjustment you will have to make is to allow for wind, or is inside the "dead side" of a fairway. A wind from left to right will carry your ball toward the right side of the fairway, it's correct for this simply tan the ball up on the right side of the ter and hit away from the right side of the fairway. The same applies to a fairway with a trouble spot (trees, water) on the right side.

POSITIVE KEY — Relax. Plan your shot. Hit with confidence

TIP NO. 9 TEE SHOTS

Now that you have mastered make, and hit away with the basic elements of the swing, confidence.

hitting from the tee is simply the application of what you have learned.

The tee shot should be the easiest shot of all to play. You hit from the same circumstances (flat surface, no obstructions) with the ball teed up, clear of ground conditions. And these conditions are repeated exactly, at least 14 times in a round of golf.

Raynor Predicts Winger Will Click

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — George Raynor, one of the most successful coaches in World Soccer Cup history, predicts the 1974 tournament will be won by a winger.

"Wizard Johnny Rep of Holland and Gregorys Lato of Poland," he said. "They could be the key men in this World Cup."

Raynor, an Englishman who has never coached in his native country, scored an amazing success as coach of the all-time Swedish team when the World Cup was held in Sweden

Holland; new favorite at odds of 13-8 say London bookies; faces East Germany in Group A Sunday, and Brazil plays Argentina in the same group.

In Group B Sunday, West Germany opposes Sweden, and Poland, the only team with an unbeaten record in the tournament, meets Yugoslavia.

Griffins, Wings Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Griffins and Philadelphia Wings triumped Friday night in National Lacrosse League action.

The league-leading Griffins defeated the last-place Syracuse Stingers 15-11 before 18,769 fans, while at Montreal, Philadelphia spoiled Quebecois an 8-4 lead then rallied to win 18-17.

Captain Brian Keegan led the Griffins to victory, scoring four goals. Kevin Parsons, Rick Bilsan, Charlie Henderson and Joe Thinnon each had two. Other marksmen were Jan McGee, Bill Hoolihs and Brian Bowman.

Bob Panasiuk Is Confident

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Bob Panasiuk didn't seem concerned.

The Windsor, Ont., golfer, who won last week's Quebec Open, overcame some frustrating difficulties and shot a 31 coming home for a three-under-par 66 after the opening round of the Alemite open golf tournament.

He trails the leader, Florentino Molina of Buenos Aires, by three strokes. Molina turned in a 63 in his first Canadian competition.

But Panasiuk, who claims he is going to win the title, said: "It's nobody's business more days to play."

Jay Delair of Leicester, Mass., was second with a 64.

Bob Cox of Richmond, B.C., who won the Alemite Open in 1969 en route to Canadian Professional Golf Association crown. Dan Halldorson of Brandon, Man., and Dan Talbot of Beloeil, Que., were tied with 65s.

Also at 66 with Panasiuk were Ed Byrnam of Denver, Colo., and Eugene Mimo of Antioch, Calif.

Ontario believes that residents 65 or over, the blind and the disabled should have an income of at least $2600 a year.

In July, Ontario will introduce a Special Benefits program. It will place extra funds on top of federal Guaranteed Income Supplements — enough to guarantee the elderly who are qualified residents of Ontario an income of $2600 a year. Blind and disabled people who qualify for Family Benefits will also be entitled to these special benefits.

Beginning September 1, approved drugs prescribed by a doctor or dentist will be available, free of charge, to those qualifying for the special benefits outlined above, Family Benefits or the federal Guaranteed Income Supplement. Drug cards will be mailed automatically. You don't have to apply for them.

Who will receive these special benefits?

If you are 65 or over (with an annual income of less than $2600)...and you now receive both Old Age Security and the Guaranteed Income Supplement... you will receive your benefits cheque each month, automatically. You do not have to apply for it.

If you are 65 or over (with an annual income of less than $2600)...and you do not receive any federal income supplement... please give us a call. Our telephone number is shown below.

If you are blind or disabled... and you now receive assistance under Ontario's Family Benefit Program... you will receive your benefits cheque each month, automatically. You do not have to apply for it.

If you are blind or disabled... and you do not receive Provincial assistance... please give us a call. Our telephone number is shown below.

Any questions? Call us, free of charge. Dial "0" and ask the operator for Zenith 8-2000. Residents within the Metro Toronto local calling area should dial 965-8470.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Sunday, June 30

Aries (March 21-April 19) You are apt to spend much deeper meanings into what other say to you than they intended. Try not to be overly sensitive.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) In a relationship with a close companion today, be sure to give her the benefit of the doubt or she'll feel she is not trusted.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You won't be so willing to be of service to someone you should because of what you think it is going to cost you in borrowed time.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You will be the one who puts the damper on today's fun activities when others are going around with a long face. Smile.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Family obligations may clip your wings a bit today and keep you closer to the nest than you had in mind.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will be the recipient of some advice you didn't solicit from one who feels he is older and far wiser than you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Although the attention of those about you may be centred on involved concerns, your mind is zeroed-in on a serious goal.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In your spare minutes today give some consideration to your plans for the coming week. Lay out a schedule that deals wisely with your time.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be burdened by another who always makes things more of a problem than they really are, then has you bail him out.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your better judgment should be telling you at this time not to try to move ahead too fast and leave old issues unsettled.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You feel you've earned something baked upon your past performance, this is not the time to be silent about your cause. Speak up.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll have to let your youngsters know that you have laid down certain rules for their own good. Let them know you intend to enforce them.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Monday, July 1

Aries (March. 21-April 19) Over the next few days you'll have to be very disciplined regarding your plans. Otherwise, because of vagueness and poor judgment they'll go awry.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Be watchful in a situation that you share jointly with another or it will turn out to be quite expensive to you.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) This is not a good time to involve yourself in an alliance or new partnership with one you know little about.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) In order to be more productive you'll have to treat the tasks that face you with more responsibility than you are doing at present.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Today and tomorrow you're apt to rely more heavily on your luck than your common sense. The drawback: Your luck is very fickle at present.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're needlessly envious of another whom you feel is getting the breaks in life you should be getting. Tsk, tsk.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have some big ideas. It's not likely they'll get off the ground if you stop dreaming and start doing.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In purchases today you'll buy illusion rather than quality. Be sure to get sales slips so merchandise can be returned.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be hesitant about backing off, or renegotiating an agreement that isn't all you want it to be.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) This will be one of those days when you'll put everything off until the last minute, then run around corners to get things done.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) If you want something properly done it's best to forget about having another do it for you. It will be easier that way.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Carefully think through for yourself suggestions given you by anyone. Their advice may not solve your particular problem.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'd better take your work as seriously as your hobbies, or else he may have a few choice words about your value to the company.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 Nov. 22) At this time your well-planned budget is just a scrap of paper; a major overnight that will have to be rectified quickly or a large headache will result.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) In your business dealings try not to pin your hopes on rose-colored projections but promise more than is deliverable.

Gemini (May 21 June 20) Avoid doing business with one who makes large promises, but never keeps them. You could be his next pigeon.

Sagittarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't be too eager to spend your hard-earned cash on the harebrained scheme of a pal who's letting you in on the ground floor.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Make it a point not to exaggerate any of your accomplishments even if you know them you're talking with are doing just that.

Urinary Reflux Can Be Dangerous

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our daughter, 4, has a urinary tract condition called reflux. It was diagnosed when she was two. The urologist said the condition might reverse itself, so he put her on a long-term drug program. She has remained free of infection.

Recent X-rays reveal no change and the urologist says now there is only a remote possibility of a reversal and wants to go ahead with surgery.

We are reluctant to agree and would like to wait perhaps a year longer in hopes that reversal will still come about. The antibacterial drugs have kept her free of infection and we don't see why she can't continue on them for a while longer.

The doctor says infection can occur at any time in spite of the medication and wants to operate before there is any major damage to the kidneys.

Do all "reflux" patients require surgery "sooner or later," as our urologist says? Can you explain the details of the surgery? — Mr. and Mrs. L.C. . .

A reflux in this case means that urine flows through the ureters (ducts leading to the bladder) but instead of staying in the bladder, some flows back into the ureters.

This creates a situation which is ideal for germs to progress; hence the antibacterial drugs as a precaution against infection. So far it has been successful, but I'm sure I don't have to tell you that if urinary infections get started they can be very stubborn and the risk to the kidneys is great.

The ureters pass through the bladder wall to enter into the bladder, and normally the segment embedded in the wall provides a sphincter or "valve" action to prevent the reflux or "flowback."

Depending on the exact anatomical abnormality, some cases can be handled conservatively as your daughter's has been, with antibiotics and ongoing frequent emptying of the bladder. Others demand surgery.

The majority of patients ultimately require surgery. A type of plastic surgery is involved, repositioning the lower portion of the ureters into the bladder wall.

Without knowing a good deal more than I do about the exact anatomical defect in your daughter's case, I am in no position to offer an opinion on whether to ask for another year of waiting and depending on the antibiotics.

But I do say that you should give due weight to your urologist's advice. After all he has studied the situation for two years now, he does not see prospects of the reflux correcting itself, and he is concerned lest waiting too long add to infection start and move into the kidneys.

You would be entirely warranted in asking your doctor about getting the opinion of another urologist, and it is my suspicion that you should do so before deciding on further waiting in the face of your urologist's recommendation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The solution to the problem of J.S.'s regarding his wife's careless dishwashing is simple. Get her a dishwasher. Even the most meticulous home-maker cannot stand the water temperature that a dishwasher uses.

Get a garbage disposal, too. I'll bet your wife knew the answer.—Mrs. C.F.S.

If J.S. is reading the column today, and can afford it, there's a good a saver.

Note to J.S.R.: No, positively washing your hair every day is not going to "make you go bald."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I hope you can help me because I've had this problem for three years. I am 15 now. My problem is somewhat embarrassed to talk about: my left breast is smaller than my right. I can tell the difference and I'm beginning to think other people can when I wear fairly tight shirts.

Is there a medicine or something that could help? Is it a disease or what?—Need Help.

Look at it this way: the perfectly symmetrical body has yet to be found. All of us—men and women—are created with imperfections and wouldn't life be pretty dull otherwise? Physically, your problem is not much different than that of many other young girls.

You are more likely than not right-handed. Thus the left side of your body is less developed than the right, a fact which applies to most other parts, hands, feet, face—and breasts.

Your real problem is that you began worrying about all of this rather early (at 12) and got yourself into a tizzy about it.

My advice, which I hope a lot of other young girls in your situation would also take, is simply to forget about it for a while. Believe me, in most such cases, not one person in a thousand will ever notice.

There is nothing medically that can be done to correct the situation short of plastic surgery. A "falsie" can be used to equalize matters.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you discuss hydrocele? I have had two hydroceles for several years, and while my doctor tells me they are nothing to be concerned about, I would appreciate your opinion.—E.P.

Hydrocele is an accumulation of fluid in the scrotum. It is not something you need worry about. But if it becomes large enough to be a nuisance or uncomfortable, the fluid can be aspirated (drawn off) through a hollow needle. Recurrence, however, is rather likely. In that case, a surgical procedure (not very complicated) can give permanent relief.

Note to Mrs. M.F.: No, there's no urgency about having a cataract removed, so it is more convenient to postpone the operation for a couple of months or more, tell your doctor so.

Water-Repellent Not Waterproof

Consumers' Association of Canada reminds shoppers that water-repellent does not mean waterproof. A water-repellent finish makes a fabric resistant to water but it won't keep you dry in a downpour. The finish may possibly wear off but can be reapplied. CAC national headquarters is located at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Both wins the spade lead and has to go after the club suit. How should he play it?

Old books on bridge said to go to dummy; lead the queen and duck it, ride. If the finesse lost to the king, go to dummy again and take a second finesse. This play would succeed 75 per cent of the time. Any time East held at least one honor.

A better play would be to lead dummy's nine. This would succeed almost 81 per cent of the time (any time East held an honor or West held all four cards of the suit.

The old books on bridge were all wrong here, the best mathematical play is to lay down the ace. This wins 83 per cent of the time since it only loses two tricks if East holds K J x or K J x x.

It also loses two tricks today. But the really expert play, as used by experts against players not good enough to play finesse from king-small, is to lead low toward dummy with the intention to play the nine if West plays low and finessing against the king if the nine loses to the jack.

This play only succeeds 80 per cent of the time against a man good enough to duck with king-small, but it works 94 per cent of the time against ordinary bridge players.

Of course justice doesn't always triumph. The best mathematical play is a loser today. Almost all other plays work.

BIRTHS

HUNTER — Doug and Janis are pleased to announce the birth of their daughter Erin Alexis on Tuesday, June 18, 1974 at Belleville General Hospital. 8 lbs. 11½ ozs. A sister for Laura and Shelley

FORBES — Dawn and Ian are happy to announce the arrival of a daughter, Jennifer Elizabeth, on Tuesday, June 25, 1974 at the Ottawa Hospital, Perth, Ontario. A sister for Kerri.

IN MEMORIAM

FARRELL — In loving memory of a dear husband, Joseph, who passed away June 30th, 1973.
Sweet memories, memories,
Of a loved one we miss so much
And those who think of him today,
Are those who knew him best.
The thrown he was called home,
May writher and deary,
But the love for him who lies beneath
Never fade away.
—Lovingly remembered by son Richard, daughter-in-law Lois.

HAYCRAFT — In loving memory of our dear father, Ernest, who passed away June 29, 1971.
The shock that we received that day
Can not stop time,
God gave us strength to meet it,
And courage to bear the brave,
But what it meant to lose you,
Dear Dad, we alone know,
It's lonely here without you,
We miss you more each day,
For life is not the same to us,
Since you were called away.
You left us with a sad farewell,
Our eyes and spoken,
You were gone before we realized,
That you were leaving us.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Gary and Cheryl.

ADAMS — In loving memory of a dear friend, Mildred Adams, who passed away seven years ago today.
We think of him at dawn,
We think of him at noon,
But think of him the most,
When evening shadows bring,
His memory to keep.
—Ever remembered by Hilda, Kay, Mona and family.

MACHARIAN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Malcolm Macharian, who passed away June 30, 1965.
Your presence I miss, your memory I treasure,
But in your heart you still live so dear,
—Ever remembered by wife Bernice and family.

BUSH — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Percival William Bush who passed away 11 years ago, July 1, 1963.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they will never,
The memory of those happy days,
When we have been together,
Shall be ever treasured by wife Ina and family.

PARSONS — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Percy Parsons, who passed away July 1st, 1970.
Sad and sudden was the call,
So dearly loved by one and all,
No one knows the heartache,
Only those who have lost a dear one suddenly missed by son Barry, daughter-in-law Marion, grandsons Jamie and Jeffrey.

STEVENSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Ross, who passed away June 29, 1971.
Time may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But memory keeps you ever dear,
You were loved in every way.
—Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Minnie C. Rose (Cooper) wish to express their sincere thanks to those who sent flowers for their expressions of sympathy, for those who sent donations of money for Meals-on-Wheels, for those who sent cards and for those who called at the home of their late friend. A special thank-you to Rev. Ernest Bowles for his kind words of comfort, to Mrs. Bowles, to Mr. Wright and pall bearers and anyone who helped in any way. God bless you all.
—Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hydeman and family.

The family of the late Mrs. Ina Pearl Thompson wish to thank the Nurses and Doctors of the 4th floor, Rev. Ernest Bowles for his kind words, the John R. Bush Funeral Home staff, the pall bearers and the flower girls, for their kindness and all those who sent cards, flowers and memorial donations in the loss of a dear mother. We can only say thank you from the heart.
—Mrs. Ruth Conrad

NOTICE

The Protection of Privacy Act

The protection of Privacy Act, which was passed by Parliament and given Royal Assent on January 14, 1974, is effective June 30, 1974. Among amendments that the Act makes to the Criminal Code are the following:

POSSESSION

178.18 (1) Every one who possesses, sells or purchases any electromagnetic, acoustic, mechanical or other device or any component thereof knowing that the design thereof renders it primarily useful for surreptitious interception of private communications is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for two years.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to

(a) a police officer or police constable in possession of a device or component described in subsection (1) in the course of his employment;

(b) a person in possession of such a device or component for the purpose of using it in an interception made or to be made in accordance with an authorization;

(c) an officer or servant of Her Majesty in right of Canada or a member of the Canadian Forces in possession of such a device or component in the course of his duties as such an officer, servant or member, as the case may be; and

(d) any other person in possession of such a device or component under the authority of a licence issued by the Solicitor General of Canada.

LICENSING

(3) A licence issued for the purpose of paragraph (2) (d) may contain such terms and conditions relating to the possession, sale or purchase of a device or component described in subsection (1) as the Solicitor-General of Canada may prescribe.

If you possess a device referred to in subsection 178.18 (1) you will be guilty of an offence if, after the coming into force of this section on or after June 30, 1974, unless you have obtained a licence.

If you are not sure whether a device in your possession is prohibited, you may wish to obtain private legal advice on the matter. Applications for a licence to possess a device should be made to: The Commissioner, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 1200 Alta Vista Drive, Ottawa K1A 0R2.

INTERCEPTION

178.11 (1) Every one who, by means of an electromagnetic, acoustic, mechanical or other device, wilfully intercepts a private communication is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for five years.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to

(a) a person who has the consent to intercept, express or implied, of the originator of the private communication or of the person intended by the originator thereof to receive it;

(b) a person who intercepts a private communication in accordance with an authorization or any person who in good faith aids in any way a person whom he has reasonable and probable grounds to believe is acting with any such authorization;

(c) a person engaged in providing a telephone, telegraph or other communication service to the public who intercepts a private communication,

(i) if such interception is necessary for the purpose of providing such service,

(ii) in the course of servicing observing or random monitoring necessary for the purpose of mechanical or service quality control checks, or,

(iii) if such interception is necessary to protect the person's rights or property directly related to providing such service; or

(d) an officer or servant of Her Majesty in right of Canada in respect of a private communication intercepted by him in the course of random monitoring that is necessarily incidental to radio frequency spectrum management in Canada.

(3) Where a private communication is originated by more than one person or is intended by the originator thereof to be received by more than one person, a consent to the interception thereof by any one of such persons is sufficient for the purposes of paragraph (2) (a), subsection 178.16(1) and subsection 178.2(1).

DISCLOSURE

178.18 (1) Where a private communication has been intercepted by means of an electromagnetic, acoustic, mechanical or other device without the consent, express or implied, of the originator thereof or of the person intended by the originator thereof to receive it, every one who, without the express consent of the originator thereof or of the person intended by the originator thereof to receive it, wilfully

(a) uses or discloses such private communications or any part thereof or the substance, meaning or purport thereof or of any part thereof, or

(b) discloses the existence thereof, is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for two years.

DEFINITIONS

178.1 In this Part,

"authorization" means an authorization to intercept a private communication given under section 178.13 or subsection 178.15(3);

"electromagnetic, acoustic, mechanical or other device" means any device or apparatus that is used or is capable of being used to intercept a private communication, but does not include a hearing aid used to correct subnormal hearing of the user to not better than normal hearing;

"intercept" includes listen to, record or acquire a communication or acquire the substance, meaning or purport thereof;

Copies of the Protection of Privacy Act are available at a cost of 60 cents from Information Canada bookshops or by mail from Information Canada, Ottawa, K1A 0S9.

Fingerprint Expert Plans to Rough It

VANCOUVER (CP) — After 25 years with the Vancouver police department, Sgt. Basil Clemens Molony is looking for new problems.

Considered by experts to be one of the top fingerprint authorities in Canada, Sgt. Molony, 51, said he and his wife plan to start "roughing it."

"It is what could be described as a fingerprint economic," said Chief Constable Don Winterton.

"Sgt. Molony probably has made one of the greatest contributions to fingerprinting of any man in Canadian history. I am not aware of any other with the background and understanding he possesses."

As a constable, Sgt. Molony was assigned to the identification branch in 1958. He did not like the clumsiness involved in filing and comparing fingerprints, so he devised a method of classification.

This replaced 10 individual prints with a single "plain impression" of the four fingers, with the thumb print alongside.

When correlated with the suspect's age, location of crime and type of criminal act, the system reduces by as much as 90 per cent the time needed to make identity comparisons.

After researching and developing the system, Sgt. Molony wrote a precis which was copyrighted by the City of Vancouver and circulated to forces throughout North America.

He then designed an iodine fumer that can reveal otherwise undiscovered latent fingerprints on surfaces such as paper.

Again, he wrote a description of the process and had his paper circulated.

Many forces, including the RCMP, now use a fingerprint classification system based on Sgt. Molony's research.

He was promoted to sergeant in 1963 and placed in charge of the fingerprint section.

Because equipment was scarce, he devised a special breathing apparatus used until regular equipment was available.

Meanwhile, he produced a training manual subsequently adopted by established diving authorities. Then, in 1968, he coached the only Canadian team to take part in the world skin diving championships.

The police diving unit was to a house he recently built later disbanded. Living now in nearby creek. He now is thinking up plans for a "shed" and an electrical power plant.

Sgt. Molony and his wife Lena, now that their two children are married, plan to move problems to solve.
